IRONDALE IS MOVING FOR A NEW TIN MILL TO COST ABOUT $70,000

A Large Part of the Capital Stock Has Been Subscribed and Every Prospect Is Promising.

Irondale, Sept. 13. — (Special.) — Irondale is to have a new two-mill tin plant.

When the mills of the American Tin Plate company were shut down last May and most of the equipment removed to the plant in Chester the hardest blow ever realized in the town was struck.

Since that time business has been on a steady decline; the population has decreased at an alarming rate and until the present week everything pointed to an almost total disbandment of both population and business.

As a result of the moves of a score or more of the remaining enterprising residents the town now has excellent prospects of another boom, with the possibility of reaching a point in the industrial world far exceeding that attained prior to the removal of the mills.

A public meeting was held in the town hall last evening for the purpose of determining the action to be taken in having a two-mill plant installed. Quite a large crowd assembled and the meeting was considered a most successful one. Committees previously appointed made encouraging reports. The plant will be an independent concern and will be owned largely by local capital.

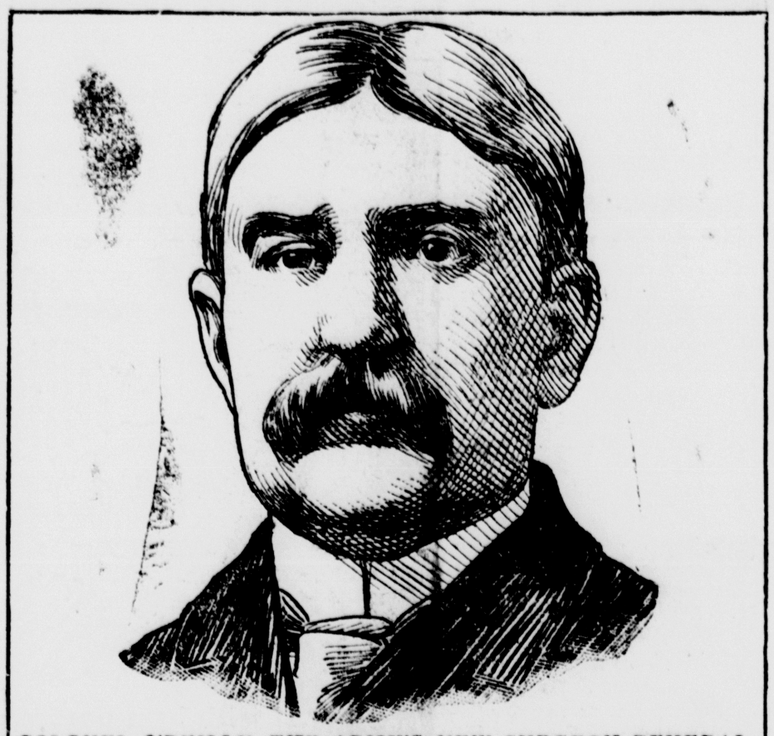

The committee on finances reported that over $20,000 had been subscribed and that they were confident that at least $25,000 more can be raised in the next few days. That the announced stockholders are confident of the project being a successful one was proven when a committee was appointed to apply for a charter.

The charter is to be made out in the name of the Irondale Tin & Sheet Mill company. The meeting adjourned without further action until next Friday evening, when it is expected that final arrangements will be made.

To erect and equip this plant as proposed it is estimated that $70,000 will be necessary. Of that amount $50,000 will be subscribed by local tin workers and business men. From other sources the remainder must come. No difficulty is anticipated in interesting outside capital to that extent. The mills will be operated absolutely independent of all other plants and will be under the supervision of men who will be not only workers in the plant, but stockholders, giving assurance that the financial interests will be attended to in a manner that will give good results to the stockholders.

The plant will be located on the old Furnace Hall property, which is owned by Manager William Banfield, of the American Tin Plate company. This property includes 80 acres of ground and a large building. The property has been optioned and can be purchased for $10,000. The building standing on the land will be put to excellent use, it being well adapted for a wash house.

Although it may be several months before work is commenced on the installation of the plant, the time is not far distant when the plans of those interested will be realized. All of the tin workers who own property in the town and who were compelled to depart to other milling localities will return. Over 100 men will be employed at the mills, and there are enough men who have personal interests in the town to fill the positions. After the mills are in full operation steps will be taken to enlarge the plant and then an influx of people will surely occur.

A MONUMENT DESERVED FOR A HISTORIC BATTERY

Columbus, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Captain T. D. Yost, of Wellsville, who commanded "Yost's Captured Battery," was here for the purpose of securing an appropriation for a monument for that body. Through inadvertance no provision was made by the legislature last winter when it appropriated funds for the erection of monuments in honor of Ohio troops on southern battlefields.

Captain Yost called on members of the Ohio battle monument commission and called their attention to the omission, which they promised to rectify. If an appropriation cannot be secured at the special session, one will likely be forthcoming at the next regular session. The battery was recruited from Columbiana Stark, Mahoning and Carroll counties and had an eventful career. The regiment was captured at Harper's Ferry, and after being exchanged was sent south. At Champion Hill the regiment assisted in the capture of rebel works, and among the equipment taken was a battery. Company F had previously been detached from the regiment and made the 26th Independant Battery of Ohio.

The command was unable to serve as an arm of the artillery, not having the necessary armament.

After the smoke of the engagement at Champion Hills had cleared away, General Gordon who was in command of the division' approached Captain Yost, and pointing to the captured battery, said: "Captain, there's your battery; take it." The company at once took charge of the pieces of artillery, turned in all infantry arms and served through the remainder of the war as a battery.

C. A. SMITH'S TEWKSBURY WON AMID EXCITEMENT

Tewksbury, a gray gelding, owned by C. A. Smith, of this city, won the board of trade $1,000 purse at the Wheeling races by clearly demonstrating his superiority in speed and endurance, over all other horses in the race. He won the fourth, fifth and seventh heats with ease, and caused a demonstration against the starter. It was the greatest race of the fair.

There was a rather sensational incident in connection with this race. After winning the fourth and fifth heats, Tewksbury was brought out on the track with the only remaining horses which had heats to their credit, Lucette and Conqueror. Tewksbury was behaving badly and scored several times before the other horses. The fifth time they came down, Tewksbury was a half dozen lengths behind the others, but Starter Al. Bernard gave the word.

Instantly there was a storm of hisses in the grand stand, continuing for several seconds, mingled with cries of "Robber," "Get another starter," etc. With this disadvantage Tewksbury might have won the heat but for going off his feet on the last turn in coming into the stretch. When the driver stepped to the track he was surrounded by the crowd and given a reception which indicated that the start was very unsatisfactory. Then when Tewksbury was brought out on the track for the final heat the crowd cheered vociferously, and when the horse went under the wire an easy winner of the heat and race the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

A considerable sum was won and lost on the result. There was a delegation of Marietta sports who came up to back Lucette, and they lost heavily. They were very sore.

BREAD PAN AS BATH TUB CAUSED BOARDERS' FLIGHT

"Yes, 'Squire McCarron, we absconded during the hours of the night from the home of our landlady, Mrs. Ellen Maloney," said Seth Herbert, speaking for himself and brother Fred this morning. "But I want to tell you we had a good reason for so doing. I'll bet you won't blame us, either. We did it because we found the landlady's son taking a bath in the bread pan. Just think of that a minute! Do you suppose we wanted to live and eat at a house where the bread is flavored with the scales of a human?'

The 'squire could not help smiling even if it is against the rules of the court, but he answered not a word.

Seth and Fred are employed in local potteries. They boarded and roomed at the home of Mrs. Maloney in the East End until about a week ago, when, after darkness had fallen and while Mrs. Maloney was absent, they packed their grips and left for other quarters. Togetner they owed a bill of over $22 to Mrs. Maloney. She had their wages attached and it was while questioning the 'squire as to the legality of Mrs. Maloney's procedure that the above story was narrated.

The reasaon offered might be considered grounds for moving, but the young men will have to square the bill nevertheless.

PACKERS' LOCAL EXPELS NINE OF ITS MEMBERS

Following in the wake of the expulsion of Mouldmakers' local, No. 22, from the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, nine members of Packers' local, No. 25, all being employed as boss packers, were expelled from that local last evening at a meeting held in the Knights of Columbus hall. While an interesting meeting was expected by all the members of this local, such developments were not expected quite so soon. Reasons alleged to be similar to the charges brought against the mouldmakers are said to have been the cause of the action taken by No. 25 last evening against certain of its members.

It is averred that during or just before the joint conference between committees representing the Brotherhood and the Western Manufacturers' Potters association, a communication similar, in some respects to that drafted by the mouldmakers, was presented to the officers of the manufacturers' association. As the mouldmakers claimed they were satisfied with existing conditions, so it is claimed that the communication prepared by certain members of No. 25 contained intimated satisfaction. This fact, it is said, reached the ears of the officers and other members of No. 25 and charges were preferred against those members who were alleged to have been connected with the drafting of the communication. In course of time these members against whom charges had been preferred were notified of the fact and asked to appear for trial, but this trial never took place, the accused never appearing before the local for that purpose. Last evening nine of the members of No. 25 were expelled and were to be notified of the fact either today or within a reasonable time.

Members of the local were loath to talk of the action taken last night, and further interesting developments may be expected.

COUNTY DITCH REPAIRS

Considered at a Meeting of Mahoning And Columbiana County Commissioners.

J. H. French and Christian Bowman, of Lisbon, and W. K. Gaston, of West Point, representing the county commissioners of Columbiana county, and J. W. Van Auker, M. Westerman and W. K. Wagner, of Youngstown, representing Mahoning county, met yesterday at the Seventh Avenue hotel, Pittsburg, for the purpose of making arrangements for the construction of a joint ditch for drainage purposes.

The ditch, which is about one mile in length, was constructed several years ago, and was calculated to drain a large tract of farm land lying at the northerly end of Columbiana county. The greater portion of the land through which the ditch passes is over the Mahoning county line. Recently it became clogged up, and it will require $3,000 for repairs. It was decided, if the property owners stand the assessment, there was nothing in the way of the progress of the work. It will be necessary, however, for the request to come in the shape of a petition, so that the several properties will come in for their assessments in the regular way.

Prosecuting Attorney J. H. Brookes, of this city, and Prosecutor W. F. Gibson, of Mahoning county, accompanied the parties as their legal advisers.

ROAD CASE DECIDED

After Protracted Litigation, In Favor of the Plaintiffs.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special.)—The case of John Matthews et al against James Faloon and A. Heasley has been decided by Judge Boone in favor of the plaintiffs. Matthews made application September 2, 1895, to the county commissioners to have the road leading through his farm and the farms of James Faloon, Heasley and Rosanna Mellon, in Franklin township, vacated. His petition was granted September 7, 1898.

Faloon and Heasley did not want the road vacated and appealed the case to probate court. Judge Boone affirmed the proceedings before the commissioners.

Jamestown vs. Y. M. C. A.

Monday's game between the Y. M. C. A. and Jamestown (N. Y.) teams will afford a good opportunity for the fans, who are so anxious to see a game between the Y. M. C. A.'s and the local team, to make a comparison between the two teams. It is argued that the work of the Y. M. C. A. team so far has been fully up to that of the East Liverpool team, as they had one game won and one lost to Parkersburg, which immediately afterward took two from Walsh's aggregation. They also won from Sewickley last Saturday in a magnificently fought game. The game Monday will be well worth seeing.

THE YOUNG MAN WAS NOT FOUND

NOT LIKELY TO RETURN HERE

FRIENDS ARE SHIELDING HIM

Constable Charles Gill returned this morning, after spending several days and nights in the vicinity of New Matamoras, where, it is supposed, he was on a search for Albert McIntosh, accused of cutting Albert Thompson in the fight at Grim's bridge last Saturday night.

The constable denies having been there for that purpose, but acknowledges tnat he saw in the neighborhood of 4,000 people who were relatives of McIntosh, and that none of them seemed to know of the young man's whereabouts.

Local authorities now think that not even the father of the wanted man, who stated a few days since that his son would give himself up on or before this evening, knows where the boy is in hiding.

No word has been received from the accused man and he is not expected to carry out his father's assurance. He certainly has a great number of friends. Very few men in this country could evade the officers as successfully as he has done.

If he appears before 'Squire McCarron between now and the day that the grand jury sits he police will be greatly surprised. The thought is advanced that he will remain away until the jury adjourns and then go before the 'squire; sign the bond that has been deposited and run the risk of the case being dropped before the sitting of the grand jury in February.

A PRIVATE SCHOOL

To Be Established to Accommodate Pupils in the Vicinity of Thompson Park.

The school in the vicinity of Calcutta will open Monday, and it is stated that the attendance this term will be much larger than last year. Many families residing north of the Thompson park will not send their children to No. 9 school this year. Instead a private school will be established. Last Tuesday evening a meeting of mothers residing north of the boulevard was held at the residence of Mrs. Mackey, near Thompson park, when it was decided that a private school should be established in that vicinity.

Mrs. Mackey was before her marriage a school teacher, and at the meeting it was decided that she should be engaged to teach the children of that vicinity. A room is to be fitted up similar to an up-to-date school room, and it is stated that about 12 scholars will attend the school at the opening, and that the number will be increased materially before another month. The expense of conducting this school will be paid by the parents of the children who attend the school, which will amount to about from $25 to $40 a month. While it is stated that these children could attend the Gardendale school, it is estimated that the walk is too far for the little ones, and for that reason and no other the parents of these children have decided to establish a private school.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

TWO ENGLISH GENTLEMEN.

Two of the most interesting gentlemen who have been in this city for many months are at the Thompson House, representing an English potters' supply house. They are Bertrand Rhead, representing the decalcomania department of Thomas Hulme, of Hanley, England, and W. J. B. Hulme, a brother of Thomas Hulme. It is the first visit to East Liverpool, and in fact to the United States, by Mr. Hulme. Twice each year Mr. Rhead comes to this city. His first visit to East Liverpool was last February, when he came here in the place of John Clarke, who represented the Thomas Hulme interests for many years until his untimely death early in the year while crossing the Atlantic. On his first trip to this country Mr. Rhead had but two hours' notice to prepare for the trip, and his last visit, from a financial standpoint, was a most successful one.

Mr. Hulme represents the clay department of the Hulme firm, and is here calling on the trade in that interest. He is a most interesting gentleman to talk with, but no more so than is Mr. Rhead, who on his last visit here made many friends. Mr. Rhead, when here early last year, was surprised at the vastness of the pottery industry in this city, but Mr. Hulme is more so, and good naturedly admits it. To a representative of this paper today, Mr. Hulme said:

"To tell you the truth, I was amazed when I looked over your city and saw so many potteries, and every one of them in full operation. You are to be congratulated upon this unusual business condition, although I have known for some time that all the East Liverpool potteries were working full. The offices of your potteries surprised me greatly, for there is not one of them that is not neatly furnished. The officials are most pleasant to talk with, a cordial greeting being extended to everyone. Your potteries are somewhat differently built than those in England. A four or five kiln pottery in the Staffordshire district is considered one of the most convenient size. But things are different here. Potteries with from 25 to 30 kilns are indeed mammoth concerns. In England we call ovens, and here the term kiln is applied. The ware made in this country is fired much harder than it is in England, but still a most excellent class of ware is made in East Liverpool. You have a beautiful little city, and your business is now at its height from what I can understand, and my best wishes for the continued success of this good trade is extended."

Mr. Rhead, since he came to the city a few days ago, has talked most entertainingly about the class of decalcomania that is being used in the decorating departments of the local potteries. Although there are at present no less than six "decal" salesmen in the city, all are apparantly doing a good business, and no person is feeling the effects of so many salesmen in the same line being in the city at the same time. Mr. Rhead among other things said: "It may be a surprise to many to know that one color appears to predominate in the decorating department of the potteries. Wherever I go the cry seems to be for pink. 'Tis a beautiful color, and the decorators knowing this fact, want something with a 'bit of pink in it.' Of course we accomodate them, and gladly. Pink shows well on a piece of ware no matter how small, and when a pleasing decoration is made, the sales of the firms are correspondingly increased."

Mr. Rhead has brought with him on this trip many new designs in "decal" work, the like of which has never been seen in the city before. Samples of these decorations are shown in his room, on East Liverpool made ware. During his last trip to this city he gathered many pieces of ware, taken from parts of dinner sets, and these were taken to England, and the decorations completed there. The decalcomania in some manner has to be made to suit the class of ware it is to be used on, hence this action. Both gentlemen will remain in this country for about six weeks, during which time they will visit all the pottery districts. Before they came here they stopped off for several days at Trenton, and made a tour of the eastern potteries.

MAYER IN SMILES.

William Mayer, residing on Derby Road, and who is employed as a dipper at Laughlin No. 2, is a happy man. When Bertrand Rhead arrived in this city a few days ago, among the first East Liverpool men he met was Mr. Mayer, who is an old friend. Soon after the meeting Mr. Rhead presented Mr. Mayer a plate, made of fine English china, upon which appeared a likeness of the King and Queen. Mr. Mayer was much pleased with the present, and prizes it very highly.

DRAINING THE EAST.

Nearly all the men to operate the new Buffalo pottery will be taken from Trenton. The concern is known as the Larkins Pottery company. The structure has been under course of construction for several weeks and will be ready this fall. James Bailey, a well known Trenton modeler, formerly employed at the Maddocks Lamberton works, has been busy getting out the shapes and designs that will be produced by the concern. Mr. Bailey has been engaged to fill a position at the plant as a modeler. William Rea, the manager, has also engaged John Powers, of Trenton, to be mould maker and Edward Moore, of the same city, to do the blocking and casing at the pottery.

'TIS LOCAL NO. 64.

MANY WERE TRANSFERED.

At a meeting of kilnmen's local No. 9, last evening, several new members were received by transfer. They were Joseph Moon, from Sebring, Fred Heckathorn, from No. 24 at Wellsville and Walter DeYarman, from No. 17. An honorary withdrawal card was issued to Elmer A. Stevenson, who left the trade to go to Mechanicstown to enter the mercantile business. Several committee appointed at the last meeting reported last evening and their reports accepted.

VERY STRANGE ACTIONS.

Word has been received in this city within the past few days, that the Cunard Steamship company has as yet failed to return to the heirs of the late James Clark his personal effects which were found in his stateroom last February after he had been buried at sea. Why this delay, cannot be accounted for by his many friends in America and England. It is intimated that another request will be made to the company soon to return these effects.

A JIGGERMAN HURT.

Herman King, a jiggerman at the French China, at Sebring, met with a serious mishap recently at Alliance. He went to that city on a bicycle, and in coming down the north side of the viaduct on the home trip, his foot slipped from the pedal and he was thrown with great force to the pavement. His face was badly cut and disfigured and it will be several days before he can resume work.

AGED DIPPER DEAD.

William Lynch, formerly employed as a dipper in the Sebring pottery died at the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, recently, aged about 62 years. Mr. Lynch was a soldier in the U. S. army, serving three years in the volunteer and four years in the regular service. He was also a well known railroader. He was born near Massillon and was well known in this city.

APPRENTICE PACKER.

Carl Weaver, who has been employed as a packer at the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, has resigned his position and is now located at the Standard, as an apprentice kilnman.

MURRAY IS ILL.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver, at Sebring, is in the city visiting friends. John has not been in the best of health for some time and he came here for the benefit of his health.

HE RETURNS TO TRENTON.

SOLICITING FUNDS.

Local No. 44, of Sebring, endorsed T. J. Duffy for congress at its last meeting and appointed a committee to solicit campaign funds.

MAKING NEW MODELS.

The Canonsburg pottery is to have a number of new models made in this city. Arrangements are now being made to have a dinner and toilet set modeled here, and it is expected that the work of the modelers will be completed in time for the firm to place the new shapes on the market about the first of December.

Fish Blowing Bait Up the Line.

How on earth or in the water fish contrive to blow large baits three or four yards up the line has yet to be explained. It is a common thing to find large slabs of pilchard bait used for pollack blown right up the line by large fish. This happens only when the pollack is itself hooked. I have recently found that large bass serve one the same trick, writes a correspondent, but in this case the bass, which is a more cunning fish than the pollack, sometimes gets away. To realize the immense difficulty of such a feat let any one put even a piece of paper on a hook and endeavor tho blow it up the line with a bellows. Much more difficult it must be with the resistance of the water, and by what muscular action the fish contrives it I know not. I have searched the textbooks in vain for some hint on the subject.—London Opinion.

The Word "Picnic."

Few people know the original meaning of the word "picnic." It is to be found set out in the London Times of a hundred years ago. "A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes. The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maitre d'hotel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art."

Where He Rode.

A schoolboy who was going to a party was cautioned by his father not to walk home if it rained and was given money for cab hire. It rained heavily, and great was the father's surprise when his son, in spite of the instructions he had received, arrived home drenched to the skin.

"Did you not take a cab as I ordered you, Alfred?" the parent asked sternly.

"Oh, yes; but when I ride with you you always make me ride inside. This time I rode on top with the driver. Say, dad, it was grand!"—Utica Observer.

EAST END

A SPEAKEASY

EVIDENCE INDICATES THAT ONE EXISTED IN THE EAST END.

Basket After Basket of Bottles Found In a Store Room.

It is thought by many in the East End that a speakeasy has been in existence in that section for months and that the shop has been closed up. This opinion is based on certain discoveries made within the past few days. It is said by those who have made these discoveries that there was a small store whcih changed hands on the first of the month, and since that time the new owner of the establishment has been making a general cleaning of the entire premises.

This work was started a few days ago. Basket after basket of whisky bottles were found in a remote part of the building, and under the counter were found half a dozen bottles of wine which had not been opened. Other things clearly indicate, it is alleged, that a speakeasy existed before the store changed ownership.

Several days ago two young men of the East End left their homes very suddenly, and it is intimated that one was given money to leave for a few weeks, or until after the coming session of the grand jury. It is not clearly known, however, that the matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury, but interesting developments are considered probable.

A RUSH FOR LEASES

North of Smith's Ferry As a Result of of an Oil Strike.

Eight miles north of the Smith's Ferry field, in Beaver county, and two miles north of the small produced drilled in by Galey Bros. on the Clark Hunter farm, a few days ago, Frank W. Neeley & Co. drilled in a wild cat on the Bradshaw farm and claim to have a 10 or 12-barrel pumper. There has been quite a rush for leases in that locality.

The territory between the last named well and the Galey Bros.' producer to the south, has all been leased within the past week.

An Apple-Paring Party.

An old-fashioned apple-paring party took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Heckathorn, on Pennsylvania avenue. About 15 persons were present, who, during the the evening prepared eight bushels of fine apples for the making of apple butter. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Chambers left this morning for Cambridge Springs for the benefit of the health of Mrs. Chambers, who has been suffering for some time with rheumatism.

The Free Methodists, who have been holding revival meetings in the East End for several weeks, have commenced soliciting funds for the erection of a chapel in the vicinity of Dry Run. It is thought this chapel will be built in Calhoun's addition.

At a meeting of the East End branch of the Protected Home Circle next Tuesday evening a class of 35 new candidates is to be initiated. These new members were received in the past two weeks, and the class does not include any of those who failed to appear for initiation at th last meeting. This will bring the total membership of this circle up near the 400 mark.

Marriages Without Money.

The poet and divine, John Donne, who became dean of St. Paul's in 1821, married a daughter of Sir George Moore without the consent of her parents. He was told by his father-in-law that he was not to expect any money from him. The bridegroom went home and wrote this witty note. "John Donne, Anne Donne, undone," which he sent to the angry father, and this had the effect of restoring them to favor. They were very poor at first, but things soon got brighter, and they lived most happily together.

Sir Joshua Reynolds after Flaxman had married told him that this would ruin him as an artist. When the husband related this to his wife, she resolved that marriage should make and not mar her husband and to this end further resolved that he should study at Rome and do everything that he might have done without matrimonial responsibilities. "But how?" asked Flaxman. "Work and economize," rejoined the brave woman. So well did they do this that he found that "wedlock is for an artist's good, rather than his harm," and they both discovered that they were made for each other.

Optical Talks...

Care of the Eye from childhood up to old age. Written especially for the News Review, by P. O Kennedy, the Sixth Street Optician

As I said in a former talk the greatest danger to the eye comes from eye strain, so called. Normal eyes, while they can be abused as readily as defective ones, do not show the strain as easily as do the latter. The reason for this is that in a normal eye the eyeball is neither too long nor too short, and the curvature of the cornea is nearly the same in all meredians. When the eyeball is too short the cilliary muscle is compelled to work "overtime," as it were—to accomodate the eye even when distant objects are being viewed—while in the normal eye the muscles are at rest when the eye is focused for distance.

The result of this "overtime" work on the part of the cilliary muscles is seen in the constantly recurring headaches with which so many people are afflicted.

When the eyeball is too long just the opposite is true—the cilliary muscle is not worked enough. Now it should not be understood that this will have the opposite effect to short eyeball troubles—in fact the results are largely the same—headaches This is explained by remembering the fast that all the muscles of the eye work in unison. When the eyes are converged so as to bring them together for near work the battle between the muscles begins. The eyes have to be turned in just as much as normal ones but the cilliary muscle does not have to do nearly as much work—thus the different muscles are thrown out of harmony and the result is almost the same as previously stated for short eyeballs.

Astigmatism is, also, frequently the cause of eyestrain but as the space allowed me in these talks is so limited I will not endeavor to go into details.

It will be seen, though, that what I am endeavoring to illustrate is that the eyes should never, under any circumstance, be overtaxed by forcing them to exert the different muscles. It will also be seen that the cause of strain is not, as most people think, in the nerves, but that it is solely in the muscles.

(To be continued Monday.)

A Dumas Story.

The younger Dumas once went to Villers Cotterets, his father's native village, to the unveiling of a statue to the creator of "The Three Musketeers." At the banquet in the evening the younger Dumas sat next to one of the oldest inhabitants who, in perfect good nature, but without any tact, began to tell a story of Dumas pere.

"Ah," said he, "he was a gay soul, your father! How we loved him. He was so kind hearted and generous. The last time he came to Villers Cotterets he gave a banquet in the Hotel de Ville. He forgot for some time after to pay the bill. See that fat man over there? He was the butcher who furnished the feast. I should not be surprised if the meat were still owing to him. But that is nothing. He is proud to this day of being the purveyor to Alexandre Dumas."

The story was an ironical commentary on the set speeches of the afternoon. The son was anxious then and there to settle his father's score.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Lamb Gourd of Samara.

In a book called "The Duke of Holstein's Travels Into Persia and Muscovy," published in 1636, there is an account of a curious vine product called the "lamb gourd," which runs as follows: "In the neighborhood of Samara, Russia, there grows a gourd which closely resembles a lamb in all its members. It changes place in growing as far as the stalk will reach, and wheresoever it turns the grass withers and dies. This change of the gourd plant the Muscovites call 'feeding.' They further say that when it ripens the stalk withers and that the outward rind of the gourd is then covered with a sort of wool, which they use instead of fur."

Scaliger also makes mention of the lamb gourd and says that it grows until the grass fails and that it then dies for want of nourishment. He also says that the wolf is the only animal that will feed upon it.

An Interesting Animal.

Proprietor of Menagerie—Walk up, ladies and gentlemen, and see our famous lion, Mustapha. He is as sensible as any human being. A French sergeant once pulled out of his foot a thorn on which he had stepped. What do you think the noble creature did? It devoured, one by one, in order of rank, all the superior officers of our sergeant until the latter found himself promoted to the grade of colonel. Walk in, gentlemen. Only a penny.—From the German.

An Opportunity.

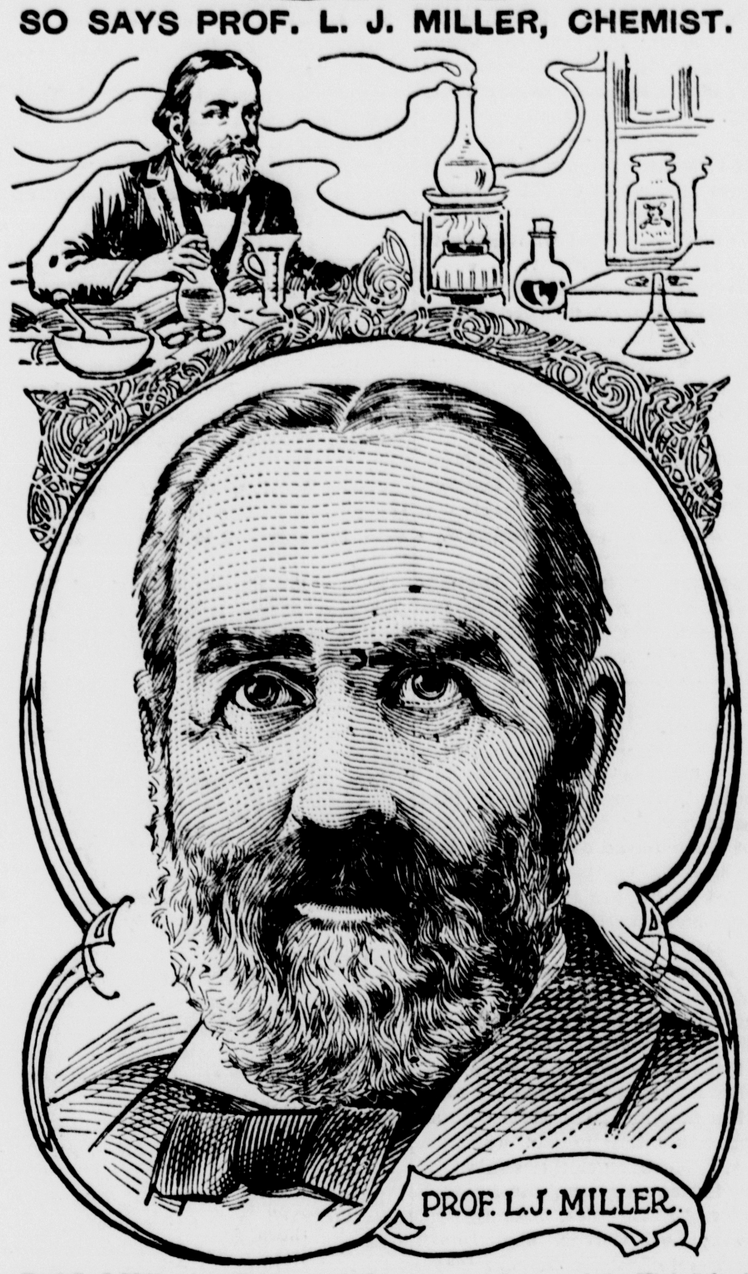

Henry—There's one thing that can be said of poor Tom. He died without owing a dollar to any one in the world.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 3327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—PROF. L. J. MILLER.

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Treat Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

Joseph Ridgeway.

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years."

Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."

Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A PRETTY LOVE STORY.

Concerns Germany's Crown Prince and a Beautiful American Girl.

Although vigorously denied on both sides, the general public seems loath to admit that the reported love affair between the crown prince of Germany and Miss Gladys Deacon is all a fiction. The story is too pretty to be false, as well as almost too good to be true.

The crown prince, so the story goes, met the beautiful Miss Deacon at Blenheim castle, England, where she was the guest of the Duchess of Marlborough. Immediately he lost his royal heart. Again and again they met, and in fervid gutturals the heir to the kaiser's crown spoke of his love to the charming American girl. For her he was willing to give up throne and country. Miss Deacon blushed and protested, but she listened. She accepted from her royal lover a ring which had once been worn by Queen Victoria.

When Kaiser William learned of this impetuous affair, he waxed wroth. He sent for the crown prince, shut him up in a castle and dispatched messengers to Miss Deacon demanding the return of the Queen Victoria ring. So persistent were these messengers that Miss Deacon, after numerous refusals, threw the ring in their faces and wept violently. Then her mother took her back to Paris.

Now from Berlin come denials that the crown prince ever gave away his ring. Mrs. Deacon also denies that her daughter had a love affair with the crown prince. They met, she admits, but they did not love.

Miss Deacon, who is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, has spent most of her life abroad. Her parents went to Paris to live soon after their marriage in 1879. Mr. Deacon belonged to a prominent and wealthy Boston family, and his wife was the daughter of the late Admiral Charles H. Baldwin, U. S. N., of New York.

A well remembered tragedy broke up the family, and Mr. Deacon died in 1901 in a sanitarium in this country. He left a considerable fortune to be divided among his four daughters.

Stopped For Once.

A citizen from the frontier, who never had been in Washington before, was visiting a friend in the nation's capital and was taken one day to the gallery of the senate while an important measure was under discussion.

A senator was delivering a long, prosy and apparently aimless speech, and the visitor soon grew tired of it.

"Why doesn't he say something worth listening to?" he whispered to his friend.

"Oh, he's merely talking against time."

"What's the good of that?" asked the other, aghast. "Time goes on just the same, doesn't it?"

His Folded Arms.

"Madge, Harry asked me to be his wife last night."

"Oh, I am so delighted!" replied her friend. "How did it happen?"

"Well, you see, he just asked me, and I said 'Yes,' and then he stood up and folded his arms."

"Well, I never! Was he not more interested than that? Whatever did you do at such treatment?"

"What could I do? You see, I was in his arms when he folded them!"

Saxon State Dinners.

At Saxon dinners slices of bread were the substitutes for plates, and these generally went into the alms basket afterward. Grandees were treated to a silver platter placed beneath the bread, which last in course of time became discarded as people came to recognize the superior advantages of metal and pewter.

An Unwilling Juror.

An Ingersoll Story.

John W. Mackay once invited Robert G. Ingersoll to visit the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft of one of the mines Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air, "Privately I always believed there was a hades somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

TWELVE PAGES.

A Japanese commissioner, sent here three years ago, returned to his country and said: "We asked, 'What is it that makes the United States such a great nation?' We investigated and found it was patents. And so we will have patents." There is a vast amount of truth in these sage remarks. Our patent system, adopted in Thomas Jefferson's day, has had its main features incorporated into the systems of the principal European countries, while American inventions are in use the world over. Our rank as a manufacturing nation, our industrial prosperity, our progress in arts and science, are due in a great measure to the inventive genius of Americans, whose knowledge and skill have revolutionized the processes in use in nearly every line of industry and effort, from the farm and the shop to the chemical laboratory and the astronomical observatory. True it is that thousands of inventions are made and never patented, and thousands that are patented come to naught, Yet every once in a while something is put before the public—the telephone and the trolley car for example—which creates a new industry and surprises the world. The great manufacturing states as a rule are the homes of inventors. In the recent decade beginning in 1890 New York led, with 37,519 patents, Pennsylvania following with 22,705, Illinois with 19,936, Massachusetts with 18,718 and Ohio with 15,248.

Twelve months have elapsed since President McKinley died, but McKinley prosperity is still with us in full strength and vigor. It is highly appropriate that the country give thought to the statesman and patriot whose wise policy caused his name to be blessed and revered by millions. It is a satisfaction that the local churches generally will observe McKinley day tomorrow. East Liverpool, both for sentimental and business reasons, has excellent cause for honoring the memory of one of our greatest presidents.

The Hungarian government is taking steps to prevent the emigration of its people. All America familiar with the Hungarian subjects that have landed on these shores in the past fifteen years will rejoice if the effort meets with success.

As a result of special legislation in past years, Summit county, according to the opinion of some of its foremost lawyers, is now without a jury law that is constitutional. There will be no jury trials in that county, it is announced, until the legislature enacts a new law. The pernicious and far-reaching effect of class legislation was never more convincingly illustrated.

There has been an anti-Tillman victory in the Democratic primaries in South Carolina. For once the Democratic party has done something deserving of the applause of the whole country.

Throwing mud at Senator Hanna will win Tom Johnson no votes. The people know the senator as a man to be trusted. They also know Johnson too well to trust him.

No Luck About It.

There is no luck about advertising, no chance, no scheme. It is legitimate, straightforward business from beginning to end, from the day the campaign is started clear up to the close of business at the finish. Advertising is a legitimate, reasonable means of gaining an end. The advertisement which appeals best is that which is planned with the greatest intelligence, contains the greatest volume of honest intention and speaks in frank, unequivocal words about reliable goods and about the careful, painstaking methods of those who are handling the business; presents in the best way logical arguments for the purchase of goods from the merchant in question. This is advertising that will pay, that cannot help it.—Advertising World.

Due to Advertising.

Chicago people believe, with apparent reason, that the surprising growth of their city is largely due to their confirmed habit of advertising its advantages. At a recent meeting of enterprising business men it was decided that an effort should be made to bring to Chicago some of the manufacturing establishments which are no longer prosperous in Europe and some of the European capital which is seeking investment. After considering the means of publicity the promoters of the project resolved to advertise Chicago in the leading newspapers of the principal cities of Europe.—Philadelphia Record.

AT THE THEATER

On Tuesday night the farcical comedy, "A Foxy Boy," will be presented for the first time at the Grand, and it is said to be a bunch of fun that will be delivered to the audience on that evening. The name of Charles H. Phillips, a gentleman who enjoys a reputation both in this country and in Europe as a whistler, appears in the list of entertainments. Mr. Phillips gives imitations of any and every bird that ever was known, without the aid of a mouthpiece which every stage whistler uses, using simply his teeth and tongue. Some of his effects are simply marvelous.

"Mr. Plaster of Paris," the successful musical farcical production, is furnishing huge amusement to the patrons of the theater all over the United States. It is a combine of wholesome comedy, fresh jokes, spirited music and a great deal of clever specialty work introduced during the play, which make things move swiftly during every moment of the performance. The comedians are worthy the name and as a real amusing and entertaining combination of music and fun "Mr. Plaster of Paris" is entitled to first place.

DON'T GET MORBID.

It Is Not a Difficult Matter to Think Yourself to Death.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

As a rule, the thought that kills relates to something the individual dreads more than anything else in the world. There is the germ of fatal thought in ninety-nine persons in every hundred, and the exception is only proof against the thought disease by having been inoculated with the lymph of optimism or philosophy.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of them or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much "doctoring" as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have. The thought disease sometimes cures itself after running its course; so does smallpox. But who would settle down to suffer from smallpox and chance recovery, as thousands of foolish persons settle down to let the thought disease, which has attacked them, do its worst?

Every melancholy thought, every morbid notion and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be physicked by cheerful thoughts, of which there is a store in every one's possession, bright companions—cheaper than drugs and pleasanter.

There have occurred scores of dozens of cases where healthy persons have thought themselves into having tumors and cancers—cases which admit of no doubt whatever that the diseases resulted from constant morbid fear. There might possibly be fewer cases of cancer if some great doctors could assure the world that it is not a hereditary disease, but morbid minded persons on hearing that there is cancer in their families generally do the very worst thing they can do under the circumstances—they conceive an awful dread that they will be afflicted with it. They dwell upon the fear constantly, and every trifling ailment which troubles them is at first mistaken for the premonitory symptoms of cancer.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

POULTRY POINTERS.

The best eggs are the result of a meat diet.

Weak legs come from forced growth, high feeding and close confinement.

Use no deformed or weak fowls for breeding and do not keep the same cock more than one season.

A molting hen seldom lays. She cannot be supplying eggs while the strain of growing new feathers is upon her.

A very fat hen seldom lays anything but soft shelled eggs. Apoplexy and egg bound are the result of excessive fat.

Leaves and hay chaff make excellent litter for the floors, and by throwing grain among it fowls are often kept busy scratching.

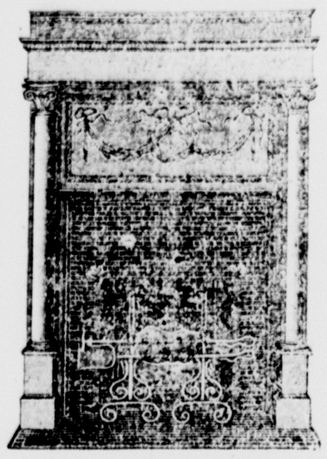

Keep the fowls away from the barns, stables and carriage houses. In such places they are nuisances; besides they are more comfortable in a place by themselves.

Hens must have carbonate and phosphate of lime for their shells, and these will be found in old plastering, broken oyster shells and bones, with some of the meat and gristle attached.

WELLSVILLE

READY FOR WORK

Supervisors of Water Works Improvements Have Arrived in Wellsville.

The consulting engineers in the employ of the R. W. Hunt company, of Pittsburg and Chicago, who are to superintend the construction of the new water works pumping station and sinking of the supply wells, arrived this morning and will have the work started as soon as the site has been decided upon.

The water works trustees will hold a meeting this evening at which time it is thought that the property belonging to Lester Laughlin just northeast of the city limits will be chosen.

THE TRUANCY LAW

A Wellsville Man Invokes It in Case of a Neighbor's Children.

A complaint has been filed with Mayor Fogo by Truant Officer Ellis J. Pease, who asks the mayor to enforce the law compelling all children to attend school and especially the boy and girl who are the children of Mrs. Henderson, residing on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

Mr. Pease has been having considerable trouble with the mother of these children, who, he says, refuses to send them to school.

The mayor stated last evening that he would enforce the law.

No Action Taken.

J. A. McMynn, of Chicago, and John R. Bower, of Pittsburg, representatives of the R. W. Hunt company, held a secret conference last evening with the city water works trustees. Matters relative to the new water works pumping station and supply wells were talked over, but no action taken. Mr. McMynn thought the city was making a mistake in not voting for a supply from Yellow Creek.

Likely to Be Fined.

Larry Chiley, the last of the four Italians who were arrested a few days ago for having stolen 150 pounds of brass fittings from the C. & P. Railroad company, was given a preliminary hearing last evening before Mayor Fogo. He will be given a final hearing next Monday evening and will be assessed probably $20 and costs, as were his alleged partners in the crime.

Old Machinery Sold.

All of the Champion Fire Brick and Clay company's machinery at the plant in the West End has been sold to Pittsburg parties and today Thomas Silver, Jr., is engaged in tearing it apart and placing it on cars ready for shipment. The new plant up "Driven From Home" hollow is to be entirely equipped with new machinery.

Chester Avenue Opening.

Street Commissioner Herbert and City Engineer Leith started the work this morning of opening Chester avenue in the West End. This work is in accordance with an action recentaly taken by council. The new street will be of vast benefit to several West End properties.

A Coming Wedding.

Rev. R. H. Edwards, rector of the Church of the Ascension, who recently accepted a call to St. Paul's church, Pittsburg, will preach his first sermon there October 5. It is reported that he will be married next Monday evening to a prominent Wellsville young lady.

Surprised the Pastor.

A surprise party was held last evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Prewitt, on Center street, by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church of which Dev. Prewitt is pastor. Nearly all of the active members of the society were present and the affair was most enjoyable.

May Reinstate Davis.

One of Wellsville's city officials stated last evening that Mayor Fogo has decided to re-instate Officer Davis, of the local police force, who was suspended. The mayor will make no statement.

A $5,000 Deal.

Drunk And Disorderly.

Regarded In Different Ways.

That one can obtain more favors by "jollying" than by being brusque is just as true as "one can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar." Two young men have lived in a boarding house in West Twenty-third street for some time, and one has the reputation of being a "jollier," while the other is quick spoken and of a bearish disposition. The young men are friends and usually breakfast together. Their respective standings in the estimation of the dining room maid may be judged from the way in which that damsel shouted their order—both had requested steaks—down the dumb waiter shaft recently:

"A nice beefsteak, a trifle rare, for Mr. Wood; some meat for Baldwin."—New York Tribune.

Very Simple.

A rather simple looking lad halted before a blacksmith's shop on his way home from school and eyed the doings of the proprietor with much interest.

The brawny smith, dissatisfied with the boy's curiosity, held a piece of red-hot iron suddenly under the youngster's nose, hoping to make him beat a hasty retreat.

"If you'll give me half a dollar, I'll lick it," said the lad.

The smith took from his pocket half a dollar and held it out.

The simple looking youngster took the coin, licked it and slowly walked away whistling.—Chums.

The Dissyllabic Scot.

The difficulty of rhyming to "girl" is mainly due to the varieties of its pronunciation. It is never pronounced, as it is so often conventionally written, "gall," but one often hears "gell," with a hard "g." Moreover, in Scotland, though it is as well not to mention the fact to a Scotsman, it consists of two syllables—"gurrel." The other day it was pointed out to a Scotsman that the name of his national poet was a dissyllable in Ayrshire. "Hoot awa'!" he said, or words to that effect. "Burruns two syllables! Absurrud!"—London Chronicle.

A Curious Custom.

In some parts of Brittany a curious marriage custom prevails. On certain fete days the marriageable girls appear in red petticoats, with white or yellow borders round them. The number of borders denote the portion the father is willing to give his daughter. Each white band denotes $20 per annum; each yellow band represents $200 a year.

Reciprocity.

Suburbanite—Well, you have told my fortune. How much?

In Chester School House Basement To Be Fitted Up At Once.

The Chester board of education at a meeting today, decided to fit up the basement of the Chester Central school for school purposes, making an addition of two rooms to this building. The probable teachers will be Miss Nellie Carman, of the East End, and Miss Edna Joseph, of Wellsville.

The contract for remodeling the cellar of the Central school was let to John Mercer, who will commence work at once.

Rival Candidates.

Prof. G. A. Allison, principal of the Chester schools, and Miss Jane Stewart, the primary teacher, are rival candidates for the office of county superintendent of schools in Hancock county. The contest promises to be interesting, as both candidates have a large number of friends working in their interests.

Mixed Eggs.

Professor Edwin Ray Lankester was sitting in his office in the Natural History museum, London, when he was visited by an elderly woman, evidently from the country, who carried a parcel which she handled with the most exaggerated care. She was in a state of great excitement and exclaimed:

"I've got two of 'em."

"Two of what?" inquired the professor.

"Two 'awks' eggs," replied the woman. "I'm told they're worth a thousand pounds apiece."

The professor, much interested, looked at the eggs. "These are not auks' eggs," he said.

"They are 'awks' eggs," said his visitor. "My son Joe found 'em."

A light dawned on the naturalist. "The kind of eggs which are so valuable," he remarked gently, "are the eggs of an extinct bird called the auk—a-u-k."

"Oh, hauk!" said the woman. "I'll pay out that 'Enry 'Obhouse as told me it was 'awks' eggs as was wanted."

And she went away."

Soft and Warm.

The latest device of girlhood is a fancy for stuffing pillows with old love letters. There is one thing about the contents of these pillows that can be depended upon with a marked degree of certainty—they are sure to be soft.

More Than Clumsy.

"My fingers seem to be all thumbs today," apologetically remarked the clumsy butcher.

"Ah," said the customer significantly, "that accounts for them getting in the weigh."—Philadelphia Record.

Discouraging.

It is discouraging, to say the least, to a young man who has been tenderly nursing a few straggling hairs on his upper lip for three months to have his girl say, "Oh, Charley, why don't you let your mustache grow?"

The reason we don't see our own faults is that our eyes are just big enough for other people's.—New York News.

Trotting, pacing and running races each day, Oct. 13, 14, 15 and 16, at Columbian Park.

Thunder Lore.

The natives of the Hawaiian Islands considered thunder as being Mauna Loa's echo from the clouds. This curious notion has crystallized a weather proverb which is now current among many of the white residents of the islands—viz, "It will rain today; Mauna Loa shakes the clouds." In this conpection it may be remarked that the early Scandinavian settlers in Iceland believed that there were some mysterious and supernatural connections between the roarings of Hecla and the "angry mutterings of Jove." In England many of the peasantry still plant the house leek—"Jupiter's beard"—on their house roofs as a preventive against thunder, lightning and evil spirits, a custom which reminds one of Charlemagne's edict, "Et habeat quisque supra domum suam Jovis barbam."

Another widespread superstition, and one that has been noted among the tribes and nations from China to England and from Cape Hatteras to the Golden Gate, tells us that if the "claps" or reports of thunder come in even numbers the storm will be of short duration and very mild, but, on the other hand, if they come in uneven numbers, especially if the reports be a series of five, nine or thirteen distinct claps, much loss of life and property will result.

The Gleaners.

The old custom of gleaning in the harvest fields, which recalls the Biblical story of Ruth and Naomi, is not obsolete in England, and in Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and the neighboring counties as soon as the wheat is gathered in the late days of August there may be seen in the newly cleared fields numbers of women and children diligently picking up one by one the scattered ears and forming them into neat little sheaves, which they carry in their hands until large enough to be bound up. When the daylight fails, all the booty is bound up in cloths and carried home on the heads of the gleaners. At home they thrash it out by hand and sell the grain or use it for their chickens. The gathering of a half peck is usually a full day's work for a child, and often a woman spends a whole day in gathering very little more. Gleaning, however, is looked upon somewhat in the light of a picnic. The mother and children leave home in the morning, take with them food for the day, and stay out in the fields until nightfall.—Detroit Free Press.

A Quick Witted Pastor.

In Germany a country preacher was preaching a sermon when suddenly he lost the thread of his discourse, and, do what he would, he could not find it again.

The congregation was greatly embarrassed and was wondering what the matter was when he startled it by exclaiming hurriedly, "Pardon me, my brethren, for pausing in my sermon, but it seems to me that I smell fire somewhere—and—and it might be well to see that it has not broken out in the church or in any of the nearby houses."

Before the words were all uttered the congregation was pouring out of the church, each family being anxious to make sure that its home was not on fire. It need hardly be said that the fire existed only in the pastor's imagination.

They are just out—new fall style suits.

Softening the Blow.

The cashier of a certain firm had absconded, and the staff of clerks were deciding on a fit and proper person to acquaint the head of the firm of the fact on his arrival.

Ultimately the matter was left in the hands of the head clerk, possibly because none of the others cared to undertake the responsibility.

There had been a dogfight in the street, and a small crowd was just dispersing as the chief's carriage dashed up.

"What's that crowd after, Jorkins?" demanded the head of the firm.

"Vacancy? What vacancy?"

"Cashier, sir."

"But we want no cashier, Jorkins."

"Beg pardon, sir; but we've a vacancy for one!"

"Jorkins, are you mad?"

"No, sir. That is, sir, I don't know, sir. Fact is, sir—all the cash is gone and—and"—

"Well?"

"The cashier's gone with it, sir."

Foiled by Humidity.

Noiselessly, but with all his might, the burglar tugged at the bureau drawer.

In vain.

It refused to open.

He tugged again.

"Give it another jerk," said a voice behind him.

The burglar turned.

The owner of the house was sitting up in bed and looking at him with an expression of the deepest interest on his face.

"Jerk it again. There's a lot of valuable property in that drawer, but we haven't been able to open it since the damp weather began. If you can pull it out, I'll give you a handsome royalty on everything that's"—

But the burglar had jumped out through the window, taking a part of the sash with him.—Chicago Tribune.

FRANK CROOK'S

OF INTEREST TO LADIES.

Every woman is interested in her complexion, and anything which will tend to improve it usually receives her careful consideration. The idea that local treatment with lotions and creams is the correct way to improve the complexion is decidedly erroneous. There is always a cause for every effect, and the cause for a bad complexion is a sluggish liver, poor digestion, or bad, poisonous blood. The only way to improve it is nature's way—remove the cause—and as a natural consequence the skin will become clear, fresh and bright. Wright's Celery Tea is especially adapted to the delicate organism of woman, and to these particular causes which are so baneful to her pride. It cleanses the blood, whitens the skin, and imparts the glow of youth to the complexion. 25c and 50c.

SECOND DEFEAT FOR WASHINGTON

They Lost the Game In the Ninth When Reilly Landed a Threebagger.

BOTH SIDES PLAYED WELL

And Put Up an Interesting Contest. Errors Were Few And Hits Many. "Kid" Barker, Home From Bloomington, in the Game.

Everybody played a good game. It was one of the best of the season. It was fight from the first. The visiting twirler bested Gehring on the strikeouts, but at the end his work fell a little short. It was undoubtedly due to agitation, nowever. Just at the time that Colonel Ridgely, one of the star pitchers of the real Washington & Jefferson college team, would have the locals guessing he would go into the air over some trifling matter and allow the next man up his base on four wild ones.

Hits, eight in number, were made by each aggregation. But they were all scattered and did little good. That is, all of them but that one landed by Reilly in the ninth, when he made the ball hunt the tall timbers in left field and by so doing allowed Godwin to score the winning run.

In the first inning neither side scored. The second resulted in a similar manner for the visitors, but not so with the locals. Barker ,not the boy, but the "kid," was first up. He got smashed. But it was because he did not try to get out of harm's way. Heckathorn placed a beauty for two bases. Barker scored. Emmerling fanned. Webb was out. Maley had his luck with him, getting first on McIlveen's error. Heckathorn scored on the rankness. Maley went out, just because he didn't think that Redleg could throw to first .

The next inning showed a turn of the tables. This time the locals got an egg, while the college boys jumped up three notches. Gehring gave them two bases on balls and a three-base hit. That caused it all. In the next a few more were made by the locals, three in all. A conglomoration of hits, bases on balls and a fielder's choice mixed with a few drops of a rattling substance caused this. A blank for each was the result of the fifth. In the sixth and seventh the visitors tied the score, making one in each inning. That was the last of the runs registered for the visitors. They failed thereafter to reach third base. How the locals won in the ninth has already been told.

Carson Finch, the ball player from New Cumberland, umpired the game and did good work. One decision made by him did not meet with the approval of the visitors, but it was straight nevertheless. It was when he called McIlveen out after he had hit for two bases and reached the bag. When he crossed first base he should have stopped long enough to let his No. 11's touch the bag. That is what it is there for. Instead he ran madly over it, and in consequence was called out.

Many were pleased beyond measure when they saw Barker in uniform. He returned from Bloomington Thursday evening and could not stay out of the game. His playing was all that could be desired. He will play in the game when Washington, D. C., is here, which will be during the first week of next month. Webb played an unusually fine game. He was there at all stages. Three putouts and three assists are good enough for any one.

Emmerling tore his finger during the first of the game, but was game and played as he always does.

Davis accepted everything that went his way. What more could he do?

Grandpa, the ladies' favorite, hit them some. He did everything else, too.

Maley could not have played better, unless he had been in the box.

Eckels has a bright future. He nabs them all. He is quick and is just the kind of a man for the position.

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Kind Words for Win Mercer—Toadix Carey's Excellent Record.

The sporting papers are saying all sorts of things about "Win" Mercer. "Win" is to be associated during the fall with Umpire Cantillon, who is now arranging for post-season games between a picked team of American league players and the Champion Pittsburg team. The first two games will be played in Pittsburg, October 7 and 8; the next two in Cleveland, on the next two days, and two more in Chicago, October 11 and 12. It has not been decided yet where the seventh game will be played.

One paper says: : The makeup of the All-American team of Joe Cantillon, "Win" Mercer and "Tip" O'Neill, is as follows: Catchers, Sullivan and Kahoe; pitchers, Mercer, Bernhard, Lee; first base, Harry Davis; second base, Lajoie; third base, Bradley; shortstop, Monte Cross, left field, Hartzell; center field, Jones; right field, Barrett.

Win Mercer is reported by one paper as pitching the best ball of his career this season, and, oddly enough, batting miserably. Mercer says the American league will surely locate in Pittsburg next year.

In pitching Mercer has gained an average of .518, standing eighteenth in the list of pitchers. He has played 27 games, winning 14 and losing 13.

Toadix Carey, who is playing first base for the Washington American league, on last Friday had a batting average of .302. He is the third best batter in that club.

GOT RELIEF FROM THE START.

If you suffer from lumbago or any other disease of a similar nature, isn't it fair to suppose that if BLOOD WINE will cure another sufferer from the same trouble it will be of the same benefit to you? Hundreds of letters from grateful people tell of the good results which may be obtained from BLOOD WINE. J. L. Toryner, 10 E. Merrimack Street, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I cannot speak too highly in praise of BLOOD WINE, as it has done me a vast amount of good. For several weeks I suffered terribly from lumbago, but failed to find anything beneficial until I commenced taking BLOOD WINE. I got relief from the start, and was soon able to resume work."

MRS. STEWART DEAD.

Wife of U. S. Senator Dies of Injuries, Due to an Automobile Accident.

THROWN AGAINST A POLE.

Machine Ran Into It—She Was Riding With Two Young Men—Senator at The Hague In Connection With the Pius Arbitration Case.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William M. Stewart, wife of the senior United States senator from Nevada, was killed yesterday at Alameda, Cal. Mrs. Stewart was riding in an automobile with Henry Foote and a young man named Taylor. Through an accident the machine ran into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Stewart was thrown against the pole with great force and was so seriously injured that death soon followed. Her home was at Washington, D. C.

Stewart at The Hague.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Senator Stewart at present is at The Hague in connection with the Pius fund arbitration, in which he has taken a deep interest. The case involves title to a large amount of money claimed by the Catholic church of Lower California, to be held for it by the government of Mexico. It was due largely to the senator's efforts that the claim was submitted to the arbitration of the distinguished European tribunal now engaged on its settlement. The senator and Mrs. Stewart, since the sale of their old home on Dupont Circle, known as Stewart's Castle, to Senator Clark, of Montana, and its subsequent destruction, had lived in the winter time in an old-fashioned residence on F street, near the state, war and navy department building.

Not So Much In Society.

In the summer they spent more or less time at Ashburn, a village in Virginia, where the senator had established a large dairy farm, which he ran on scientific and sanitary principles. Of late years they had not taken so much interest in social affairs as formerly.

KAISER PRAISES ROOSEVELT.

Sent Messages Through General Corbin—Asked to Be Remembered to "Miss Alice."

Berlin, Sept. 13.—Emperor William, in saying goodby to Generals Corbin, Young and Wood yesterday, remarked that he was specially interested in the three Americans. He admired President Roosevelt unmeasuredly. He admired his versatility, courage, power for hard work and insight into the needs of his country. His majesty added that he watched Mayor Seth Low's administration of New York because he thought it important to the commercial world that New York city should be well governed. The emperor also said he was very sorry Andrew D. White, the United States ambassador, was leaving his court. He had the most cordial feeling for him personally, because of the man he is and for his services in fostering good will between Germany and the United States.

General Corbin had an opportunity to present President Roosevelt's message about the St. Louis exposition, and Emperor William replied that he would see that Germany had a good representation. "I will send you a large party," he added pleasantly.

His majesty sent some personal messages to President Roosevelt through General Corbin and asked to be remembered especially to "Miss Alice," as he called Miss Roosevelt.

The emperor conversed with each of the Americans and told them how much he had enjoyed their visit. The farewell took place on the field just after Emperor William returned from leading the cavalry charge, which concluded the manoeuvres.

MURDERED FORMER WIFE.

Man In Nebraska Also Killed Her Father and Wounded Her Mother.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 13.—Gottlieb Niegenfind Thursday night shot and killed his former wife, Mrs. Anna Peters, shot five times at Albert Breyer, her father, who died yesterday morning, and shot the wife of Breyer in the shoulder, seriously wounding her. After the shooting Niegenfind left the house and, meeting Mrs. Peters' sister, Lena Breyer, attempted a criminal assault, but was frightened away.

He had quarreled with his father in-law over his children.

Two sheriff's posses were scouring the country for him.

Mrs. Peters had been divorced from her husband two years.

President Appoints Platt's Man.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The president has appointed Representative George W. Ray United States district judge of the northern district of New York, vice Alfred Coxe, who has been appointed United States circuit judge. The appointment settles a long controversy. Mr. Ray was Senator Platt's candidate.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY GREATER.

More So Than at Any Recent Date, Said Dun's Deview—Coke Blockade Still Exists.

New York, Sept. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Industrial activity is greater than at any recent date. Many new factories and mills have been added to the productive capacity, facilities are being increased at old plants, and idle shops resumed through the settlement of labor controversies. A coke blockade still exists, the railways being unable to handle the output, which is above all records and in urgent request. Despite the rapid development of transportation facilities, the nation's needs have grown still faster, and the situation is distressing for shippers and consumers. Large crops are being harvested, and the greater abundance of foodstuffs caused a decline in prices of commodities during August of 3.5 per cent, as measured by Dun's index number. Retail trade is large, with a bright outlook for the future in jobbing and wholesale business. There are few of the cancellations so numerous at this time last year, while collections are improving. An advance of 22.9 per cent in bank exchanges at New York over the same week last year cannot be explained by speculation, as dealings in stocks were also heavy in 1901. Railway earnings in August exceeded last year's by 4.2 per cent and those of 1900 by 18.1 per cent.

Although the weekly capacity of pig iron furnaces in blast on Sept. 1 was reported as 335,189 tons by the Iron Age, it has since been appreciably curtailed by the inadequate supply of fuel, on which account numerous furnaces were blown out or at least banked. As consumptive requirements are increasing, it is necessary to place orders abroad more extensively, and in some cases the entire output of foreign plants has been secured. Not only raw material, but billets and even rails are sought in other markets.

With the completion of early orders there has come a quiet market for woolens and worsted, but mills have large contracts on hand.

Low stocks of wheat and poor grading of receipts, together with fears of frost in corn sections, sustained quotations when a decline would have been imminent if full confidence were placed in official returns of condition.

Failures for the week numbered 205 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 18 a year ago.

CALL MONEY AT 20.

List Closed With Marked Declines, In Stock Market, Friday.

New York, Sept. 13.—Call money advanced to 20 per cent shortly before the close of yesterday's market and the list, which had been heavy throughout, closed with marked declines. Opening prices were lower, though mostly fractional, but the unsettled tone which characterized the day's comparatively moderate transactions was apparent from the outset. Missouri Pacific was the chief sufferer in the early trading, selling off about 2 points and making no recovery. The decline in the grangers and Pacifics was in part due to reports of frost in the corn belt.

The selling of Baltimore and Ohio was accompanied by reports that insiders had discounted the extra stock issue.

The United States Steel shares were heavy, with little or no evidence of support. There were movements in other stocks.

A Wonderful Echo.

At a watering place in the Pyrenees the conversation at table turned upon a wonderful echo to be heard some distance off on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

"It is astonishing," said an inhabitant of the Garonne. "As soon as you have spoken you hear distinctly the voice leap from rock to rock, from precipice to precipice, and as soon as it has passed the frontier the echo assumes the Spanish accent."—Pearson's Weekly.

Knights of Old.

The knights of the days of chivalry were so well protected by their armor that they were practically invincible to all ordinary weapons. Even when dismounted they could not be injured save by the misericordia, a thin dagger, which penetrated the chains of the armor. In more than one battle knights fallen from their horses could not be killed until their armor had been broken up with axes and hammers.

Good Cooks.

"If all sick people had good cooks," says the London Hospital, "how much greater might be the proportions of recoveries!" The value of the patent foods which are advertised so much lies largely, it says, in the ease with which they are prepared for the table.

A Half Partner.

A.—That woman who just went out is the partner of your joys and sorrows, I suppose.

B.—She's partner to my joys all right, but when it comes to my sorrows she slips over to see her mother.

Reversed.

Rodrick—Say, old man, you have been through the ordeal of proposing. What does a fellow do after he pops the question?

Van Albert—Why, he questions pop, of course.—Chicago News.

In His Dreams.

Hewitt—When I was on the boat the other night, I had a lower berth, but I dreamed I was sleeping in the upper berth.

Jewett—Sort of overslept yourself, eh?

Good manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse. Whoever makes the fewest persons uneasy is the best bred in the company.

HEAD OF NAVAL ACADEMY.

Captain Brownson a Man of Good Record and Wide Experience.

President Roosevelt has paid a signal honor to Captain Willard Herbert Brownson, U. S. N., in appointing him to the post of superintendent of the Naval academy. Captain Brownson will take charge in October, when Commander Richard Wainwright will resume duty afloat. The superintendency of the academy, important at all times, will be even more so in the near future, when the recently authorized improvements and enlargements are to be consummated.

Although Captain Brownson entered the navy just too late to see service in the civil war, he has a brilliant record. He is a native of New York state and is fifty-seven years old. He was appointed a cadet in 1861 and was graduated with honors four years later.

After acting in a number of capacities afloat and ashore and seeing service against pirates in the gulf of Mexico, Commander Brownson was assigned to the Detroit in 1893. He attracted worldwide attention soon after by defying the Brazilian insurgent admiral at Rio Janeiro.

CAPTAIN WILLARD H. BROWNSON.

Just before the Spanish war Captain Brownson was assigned to the task of purchasing war vessels and munitions in Europe. During the war he commanded the Yankee, and since 1900 he has been in charge of the battleship Alabama. He will reach flag rank during his term of office at Annapolis.

Captain Brownson is universally conceded to be one of the ablest officers in the service. One of his superiors said of him a few years ago: "Brownson is poise and pluck personified. He is a fighter by instinct, and his instincts are quick and sure. For a thoroughly trained, all around man, to be depended on absolutely in any emergency, and with unlimited judgment and courage, we have no abler officer in the navy than Brownson."

The Hopping Rheumatism.

"Yes," said the old man, "'peared lak he wuz give over inter de han's er Satan, en Satan 'flicted him wid de hoppin' rheumatism. Fust it wuz in one place, en den it wuz another, but he went ter prayin' ter be relieve' of it, en one day, whilst it wuz a-hoppin' fum one j'int ter another, it hopped into his wooden leg, an' he pulled off de leg an' th'owed it in de fire, en it en de rheumatism wuz teetotally consumed."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Generous Empress.

It is said that one morning at breakfast a general related to the emperor the misfortunes of a brither officer who "because he had not 15,000 francs must be dishonored." While the emperor questioned further particulars Eugenie flew to her room and, returning with a package of banknotes, said, "Take them, general, and never tell me his name." And his name the generous empress never knew.

FOUND HIS WIFE

BUT SHE IS MARRIED TO ANOTHER MAN.

Pennsylvania Man's Hunt for Missing Spouse Leads to a Sensation.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special)—Lycurgus Crossman, a farmer of West Sunbury, Pa., came here today in search of his wife and child. He found his wife married to another man and unwilling to give up the little one. They lived together for six years in Butler county, Pa., and they were anything but happy ones.

Four years ago when Jessie, the youngest, was four months old Mrs. Crossman took the baby, leaving the other two children, and left home. After much wandering she wound up at Lisbon and went to work as a house keeper for William Gamble, a stone mason, 68 years old. Though but 28 years of age she married Gamble on Nov. 6, 1901. She soon concluded that she had not found her affinity and left Gamble for John Griffith, with whom she is now living.

All this time Crossman had never heard from his absent spouse. Six weeks ago he started in search of her and found her here. With Sheriff Leonard he visited the Griffith home this morning. The interview was a stormy one. Mrs. Crossman told him he could not have the child; also that she would knock his brains out if he did not go away and leave her alone. The interested parties will have a meeting before Justice Dickinson this evening to see if their troubles can be patched up.

A Clever Pickpocket.

In Paris two police officers recently got upon the track of a pickpocket. They surprised him in the act at the omnibus bureau and followed him in hot pursuit. He was a thin, poorly clad young fellow. In the Rue Rochechonaut, however, he suddenly disappeared. Judging that he had slipped into one of the houses they set themselves to watch for his reappearance. The thief in the meantime had entered a bathing establishment, and after a refreshing bath entered the box of another bather and calmly clothed himself in the smart suit he found there, then passed proudly and peacefully out before the very eyes of his pursuers. The climax of humor came when the other bather, arrayed in the rags of the pickpocket, was grabbed by the officers of the law at the door and dragged off to the station house. With some difficulty the situation was explained; but the pickpocket is still laughing.

Make the Most of Your Gifts.

Personality has done wonders with both heredity and environment. It has made moderate gifts accomplish marvelous things. Men with moderate gifts, by patient and persistent application have put to shame the splendidly equipped, who have indolently frittered away their patrimony. Out of the most untoward surroundings men have found their way to the grandest achievements. The boy from the log cabin has outstripped the boy from the palace. The barefooted boy has outstripped the boy of pampered indulgence. The plodder has outstripped the genius. The tortoise has passed the hare. Whether a man be richly endowed or moderately endowed, his success will depend on the use he makes of what God has given him.—Independent.

POTTERY MAKING IN NEW JERSEY

Valuable Statistics on the Rise and Growth of the Industry at Trenton.

EFFECT OF COAL FAMINE

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., September 13.—The special committee appointed several weeks ago by the Mercer County Central Labor union to gather statistics of the pottery industry in this city has completed its work. The committee filed its report at a meeting last night. It will place it on file for reference for the several pottery labor organizations, which when disputes arise, are often called upon to consult statistics which are not always available. The central body is making a specialty of gathering reports for the several allied trades which when completed will be distributed in book form. The report begins with a short description of the manner in which clay products are mined, giving the location in New Jersey where the various kinds of material are found. With the exception of some porcelain clays found in the northern part of the state and some in Mercer county, substantially all the valuable clays and sands are mined in Middlesex county, which is the home of the terra cotta industry.

In relating the history of pottery in New Jersey the report reads:

"The first pottery works in New Jersey were erected at Old Bridge, Middlesex county, but the first white ware with any pretentions to artistic beauty was made by the American Pottery company at Jersey City in 1829.

"In 1852 the pottery industry of Trenton was begun by James Taylor in partnership with a man named Speeler. The Centennial exhibition in 1876 opened a new era in the pottery industry. The ivory porcelain and Parian vases exhibited there by Trenton manufacturers attracted much attention and greatly lessened the popular prejudice in favor of foreign made pottery. The stimulus thus given called into existance many new establishments, some of which afterwards became famous. Heretofore there had been little disposition on the part of practical master potters to go beyond the making of such ware as was put to ordinary uses. But employes and workmen grew in experience and skill and the reputation of Trenton pottery products became firmly established."

According to the report there are now 32 potteries in this city, representing a capital of nearly $8,000,000. $4,928,952 is represented in real estate. They are controlled by 42 proprietors and firm members who employ 238 salaried officials and clerks at salaries aggregating nearly $300,000 a year. The total number of men employed, including wage earners and piece workers is 4,289 whose yearly wages amount to $2,343,754.

The total cost of the materials used last year was $1,196,291 divided as follows: Clay, $292,500, fuel, $287,198, packing materials, $128,769, and miscellaneous, $487,914. The total value of products was nearly $5,000,000, showing a vast increase over the census report for 1900, which was $4,785,142.

Of this amount $751,444 represents the sale of cream colored ware and $442,354 was realized on white granite pieces.

Semi-vitreous porcelain brought $494,870. Bone china, delft and helleck ware brought a return or $42,000. Sanitary ware, which is coming to be the important branch of the local pottery industry, brought returns reaching nearly $2,000,000.

Solid porcelain bath and laundry tubs which is practically a new line of industry commanded $275,973. Electrical supplies of the same grade of clay together with porcelain door-knobs and hardware trimmings aggregate over $225,000. Terra cotta, fire and other clay products are credited with $83,160.

The machinery of the different plants is as follows: Disintegrators, 60; agitators, 70; slip pumps, 43; lawns, 48; clay presses, iron, 26, wood, 39. The other paradhernalia is set forth in the report as follows: Pugmills, 45, sagger mills, 58, wad mills, 31, jiggers, 166, and all other machines numbering 562. There are 152 up draft kilns, 33 with down draft and 62 decorating kilns.

Terra cotta, brick and tile are given a prominent place in the report which was only originally intended for statistics concerning the pottery industry.

The present coal famine may completely revolutionize pottery in this city. This is confined principally to the rougher grades of ware which are now being burned in kilns fired with soft coal. This condition was made necessary by the failure of the manufacturers to secure anthracite coal and nearly all in order to burn bituminous coal had their kilns remodeled. Since the soft coal has been given a trial those manufacturing a rougher grade of ware are not likely to go back to hard coal because of the cheapness of the other grade which they claim answers the purpose very well.

Charles M. Doneaghue, proprietor of the Trenton Stilt, Spur and Pin works, in talking to the News Review correspondent yesterday concerning the advisability of soft coal said:

"Before the present coal famine all of my kilns were so constructed as to burn only hard coal. When I learned that hard coal could not be procured I had them remodeled at an expense of $500 each.

I now find that bituminous coal is little adapted to firing materials made from a coarser grade of clay than is anthracite. In the first place it is cheaper and the kiln heats quicker. Even when the coal strike does end I do not think that I shall again use hard coal."

The few minor disputes which arose in some of the sanitary shops over the new sanitary list have been amicably adjusted. The trouble started in the Keystone pottery, when one of the shop foremen tried to place his version upon certain conditions provided for in the list. His ruling met with a protest from the employes, with the result that the trouble received several airings before the Sanitary Ware Pressers' Local No. 45. A committee which was appointed secured a peaceful settlement after several conferences with the owners of the plant.

Vice President Hutchins, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, has returned home after visiting East Liverpool and Baltimore, which was his home before coming to this city.

YOUNG MAN SUED

Charged With Paternity of a Child Born in the County Infirmary.

Miss Laura Munsey, the young woman found in a helpless and pitiable condition under the Jethro bridge on the evening of August 11, and who was taken in charge the next day by the infirmary directors and later was placed in the country infirmary by them, has made information against a young man, Herman Willison, in 'Squire Riddle's court, at Lisbon, charging him with being the father of her child, which was born shortly after her commitment to the institution. Willison was arrested and his case was set for a hearing in 'Squire Riddle's court yesterday, and he was placed under $300 bond.

Miss Munsey made the information a few days after the birth of her child and a warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Leonard. This official came to this city and searched for the man but to no avail. For quite a while Willison eluded the officer and finally tiring of his being hounded met Constable Powell and voluntarily surrendered. The constable took him before 'Squire McLane, who released him on a signed bond for his appearance before 'Squire Riddle.

A MALICIOUS FALSEHOOD

Published By a Sensation Monger on Two Successive Days.

Following the miserable fake published Wednesday by a local evening paper concerning "Big Six" Johnson, a former well known colored man of this city, whom that paper had as a fugitive from justice, charging him with the possible murder of Robert Gilmore at Finleyville, Pa., came another story which was written by the same pipesmoker, which is denounced nothing but a falsehood.

If the wind jammer really received the special from Alliance, as was claimed, he certainly has a confederate in that city of his own type. As was stated in the News Review last evening, the "Big Six" at Alliance is not wanted on the charge of murder and will not be arrested.

Acting Chief Dawson states that he received word from the chief of police at Alliance yesterday afternoon saying that "Big Six" was in Alliance on the day of the crime, and no suspicion rests upon him.

GERMAN METHODISTS

Elders Reported Work In Excellent Shape, at Conference.

OHIO DISTRICT AN EXCEPTION.

Much Sickness Reported There—Invitation of Third Church, of Cincinnati, For Next Year Accepted—Mission Work Considered Last Night.

Pittsburg, Sept. 13.—At the second day's opening session of the Central German conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in the First church of Pittsburg, South Eighteenth street, yesterday, elders of the several districts reported work in excellent shape, with the exception of the Ohio district, where much sickness has prevailed in the past year.

Rev. H. Praeger, superintendent of the interdenominational German deaconess home and Bethesda hospital, at Cincinnati, said the work there is progressing and that a debt of $13,000 is expected to be lifted this year. Several students of the German Wallace college, Berea, O., passed successful examinations for advancement. F. Maijens, J. Lanny and C. Rudin were ordained to the ministry and received into the conference. An invitation from the Third church of Cincinnati for the next conference was accepted unanimously.

In the afternoon Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald held a meeting of his cabinet of four presiding elders at the residence of Jacob Eisele, in the East End. The appointment of pastors for the several churches in the conference was decided. Announcement of these will be made Monday.

Among the standing committee meetings were those of the Bible cause, deaconess cause and church extension. The last named committee decided to distribute about $1,000 in relief.

The evening session was devoted to missions. Rev. H. Praeger, of Cincinnati, spoke upon the deaconess' work, saying a deaconess will soon be at work in this city. Rev. C. E. Severinghaus, of Nashville, Tenn., preached a missionary sermon. The conference treasurer reported that the receipts were $10,697, an increase of $794 over last year.

MINISTERS ARE AROUSED.

Trying to Prevent McGovern-Corbett Contest—Club Lawyers Say They Can't.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 13.—Rev. E. L. Powell, chairman of the ministers' committee of the city, which has taken up the fight against the McGovern-Corbett contest, scheduled to take place in this city Sept. 22, has received the replies to letters addressed to Governor Beckham and Mayor Grainger, of Louisville, protesting against the bout.

Governor Beckham replied that the matter would receive his very careful consideration. Mayor Grainger said: "As mayor, I assure you there shall be no violation of the law."

Attorneys for the Southern Athletic club advised Manager R. C. Gray yesterday that the fighters could not be enjoined and that the articles of agreement are in accordance with the state law governing boxing contests.

BOSS A. R. SHEPHERD DEAD.

Began and Carried Out Improvements Which Made Washington a Magnificent City.

Washington, Sept. 13.—A private telegram received here yesterday afternoon from Batopilas, Mexico, announced the death there yesterday morning of Alexander R. Shepherd, who was vice president of the board of public works of the District of Columbia during the territorial government of the District in 1871 and two years later governor of the District. He was 67 years of age. The cause of death was peritonitis, brought on by an attack of appendicitis. Mrs. Shepherd, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Merchant, who reside in Washington, were informed of the serious illness of the governor Thursday and left at once for Batopilas.

Governor Shepherd, as the executive officer of the board of public works, in spite of vigorous opposition, began and successfully continued improvements in all parts of the city, with the result that Washington became a magnificent capital. To the governor is given credit for nipping in the bud a project for the removal of the capital to some western city, which was warmly agitated at one time. At the expiration of his term as governor, in company with New York capitalists, he purchased the old Hacienda San Miguel silver mines at Batopilas, which in later years have proved profitable, and there he has since resided. He leave, a widow and seven children.

FIRED UPON MOROS.

Americans Dispersed Enemy and Had No Casualties.

Manila, Sept. 13.—A party of Moros who occupied a wooded hill fired into Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, during the night of Sept. 9. The Americans returned the fire spiritedly and dispersed the enemy. There were no casualties among the troops.

Captain John J. Pershing, of the Fifteenth infantry, commanding the American forces at Lake Lanao, Mindanao, visited the friendly natives formally, Sept. 10. He took with him a troop of cavalry, two companies of infantry and two Maxim guns. The friendlies welcomed the Americans cordially and their meeting was successful. Brigadier General Samuel S. Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, cables that the expects to reach Camp Vicars today, Sept. 13.

PRISONERS ESCAPED.

Bound and Gagged Keeper, at Dayton, O.—One Recaptured.

Dayton, O., Sept. 13.—Four prisoners, Joseph Parker, charged with murder; Ira Bechtel, forgery; William Hickey, horse stealing, and Edward Williams, pocket picking, escaped from the county jail shortly after midnight Thursday night. Parker, who murdered his wife, attempted suicide following the murder, and his life for a long time hung by a thread. In consequence a watch was kept on him night and day, Joseph Dear being employed for that purpose.

The prisoners were kept on the second floor of the jail. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Night Turnkey Kershner, in the office of the first floor, was startled by an alarm signal from the second floor. Responding he found Dear greatly excited. He said the prisoners had bound and gagged him and cast him into a corner. They then cut a hole through the steel ceiling and attic floor to the roof, and then slid down lightning rods to freedom.

Dear is unable to give an intelligible explanation. He is held in the jail pending an investigation. Ira Bechtel was recaptured at his home, Green and Tecumseh streets, by Deputy Sheriff Wright. He was with his wife. He said that the prisoners had been engaged for five or six weeks in sawing their way out.

"Your cipher message of this morning received. The revolutionists are near the railroad line and the situation is serious. The transit across the isthmus is still open.

"Potter."

The cipher message referred to was one from the navy department announcing the sending of the Wisconsin and the Cincinnati to the scene. The Cincinnati has left Cape Haytien and will arrive at Colon tomorrow.

The Lieutenants of Morgan

One of the prime elements in the success of J. Pierpont Morgan, the head of the United States Steel corporation and other great industrial and financial enterprises, is his tact in surrounding himself with men competent to carry out the details of his vast projects. His chief lieutenants are George W. Perkins and Charles M. Schwab. The former looks after the Wall street interests of the great financier, while the latter, until recently compelled to take a temporary rest on account of health, managed the affairs of the corporation controlling eight-tenths of the steel output of this country which Mr. Morgan's genius as a promoter brought into being.

While in physique and mental processes Mr. Perkins and Mr. Schwab are wholly dissimilar, there is much in their careers that is analogous. Both are comparatively young men and possessed of remarkable energy and business sagacity. Mr. Perkins was born on Jan. 31, 1862, and Mr. Schwab on Feb. 18 of the same year. Each began at the lower rung of the ladder, though in widely separated spheres, and both have risen to eminence in the financial world with almost meteoric rapidity.

Mr. Perkins was the son of an insurance agent of moderate means in Chicago, where he received his early training. He was even at an early age remarkably quick and accurate at figures, though he cared very little for other studies. His business career was marked with unusual success from its very beginning, which was in a humble position in the Chicago office of the New York Life Insurance company. He became successively bookkeeper, cashier, inspector of agencies and superintendent of the western department. Then he was called to the home office of the company in New York and leaped almost at a bound into the third vice presidency.

From that time forward until he became associated with Mr. Morgan there was not a big loan made or a large investment financed by the company that Mr. Perkins did not know all about, and in most of them he was the guiding spirit.

He was instrumental to a large degree in putting up the big marble building that is the monument of the company on Broadway in New York. He went to Europe and reorganized general agencies there and then came back to reorganize them here. He introduced reforms and suggested policies that attracted the attention of business men.

Mr. Morgan knew of them, as he has known for a long time of the doings of many young men in the mercantile field with a capacity for executive management, a good head for figures and above all an ability to keep their own counsel.

One day Mr. Perkins received an offer from Mr. Morgan to get out of the insurance business and go into his office. It was an opportunity that few men would care to throw away, irrespective of salary considerations. It was said at the time that Morgan gave Mr. Perkins nearly triple the salary he got with the insurance company and that he received $12,000 a year with the latter.

However this may be, it is evident that for the business sagacity and executive ability that he brings to the aid of the great financier's big enterprises he receives an ample reward. Mr. Perkins lives in one of the most palatial residences on Riverside drive, overlooking the Hudson.

For ten years or more Mr. Perkins has been an influential man in financial circles in New York, but not in a manner that was calculated to bring his name much before the public. It is only since his name appeared as going to Ohio for a conference with Senator Hanna as to a possible settlement of the coal strike that he has begun to be talked about. Since then he has been much in the public eye, particularly during the time Mr. Morgan was in Europe, when he was in direct control of the latter's vast interests.

The confidence which Mr. Morgan has in Mr. Perkins and the close relations between them were aptly illustrated by a recent incident. Upon his return the other day from Europe Bishop Potter consulted Mr. Morgan as to the status of the coal strike and the prospect of settlement.

"Go to my office and ask Perkins," was the sole reply of the great man who controls steel and iron and railroads as the player moves the figures on a chessboard.

Mr. Morgan's other lieutenant, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, is perhaps not so closely allied to him as Mr. Perkins and operates in a very different field, though he is no less an important factor in his enterprises. No career in American industrial life has been more spectacular than that of Mr. Schwab. Born amid very humble surroundings and self educated, he was at the age of thirty-nine elected president of the largest combine in the world, the United States Steel corporation, at a salary generally understood to be $1,000,000.

In the steel industrial combination Mr. Schwab is generally considered as the representative of Andrew Carnegie, who holds a prior lien on the entire property of the corporation in the $305,000,000 of bonds paid to him for his Carnegie steel mills, of which Mr. Schwab was then president.

In dates and facts Mr. Schwab's meteoric career may be briefly summarized: Born at Williamsburg, Pa., forty years ago of poor parents, he attended a small elementary school until he was sixteen years of age and then began clerking in a grocery store at $2.50 a week. At eighteen he obtained work in the Edgar Thomson Steel works, operated by Andrew Carnegie at Braddock, Pa., at a dollar a day. He was set to driving stakes and did it so well that within six months he became assistant engineer.

Just seven years after he entered the Carnegie concern he was sent as chief engineer, then at the age of twenty-five, to rebuild the great Homestead steel plant.

In 1887 he became superintendent of the Homestead works, and five years later he was made general superintendent of the Thomson works. He subsequently built the great steel rail mill and practically reconstructed the entire plant, receiving at this time a salary of $35,000 a year.

In 1896 he was elected a member of the board of managers and in 1897 president of the Carnegie steel mills. He drew a salary of $50,000, with an interest in the amount of business done by the company. Then followed the election to the United States Steel corporation presidency in 1901, the position which he now occupies.

Since that time Mr. Schwab has been a resident of New York and has been an interesting figure in the social and financial world. He is many times a millionaire and spends his money freely, both for his own gratification and for benevolent purposes.

Mr. Schwab recently purchased a lot on Riverside drive, in New York, not far from the residence of Mr. Perkins, on which he is to build a home which it is said will be the most gorgeous private residence in America. The entire investment, house and lot, is expected to amount to about $5,000,000.

Mr. Schwab took a trip to Europe last winter, during which time he was almost continually in the public eye. First he went to Monte Carlo. Extravagant reports came back by cable of his winnings and losses at the gambling table. There was widespread comment upon these reports, and it was currently reported in Wall street, though subsequently denied, that J. P. Morgan & Co. cabled to Mr. Schwab inquiring into the truth of the reports and advising no more gambling. The stories of the Monte Carlo winnings and losses thereupon ceased.

When next heard of, Mr. Schwab was in Vienna. He was accorded a most gracious reception by the emperor of

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

Austria, and it was reported that the emperor wanted to see Mr. Schwab again, but found it impossible to arrange it. Then he went to London, and King Edward and he had a half hour's talk, the details of which were more or less fully reported.

A short time ago Mr. Schwab was taken suddenly ill while driving at Atlantic City, where he has a country residence, and is now taking a vacation for his health. He, however, still retains his position as president of the United States Steel corporation, and his close friends declare that his illness is not of a serious character.

Railroad Time Tables.

The genius to arrange a railroad time card, or time table, so that it may be readily, easily and accurately understood by the occasional traveler is not yet born. Perhaps he will have to be made. But no matter how much the patrons of a road may be mystified the management takes particular pains to supply a special card "for the government and information of employees only." This table is so simple that a child can understand it. The second page usually contains a table showing the rate of speed required per mile for a train to travel a given number of miles in an hour. It starts at fifteen miles an hour, which is four minutes to the mile, and goes as high as 100 miles an hour, or a mile in thirty-six seconds, and shows 200 subdivisions.

This card gives locations of regular water stations, yard limits, situations of standard clocks, maximum speed of freight trains between different towns, what days are holidays, speeds at which trains may cross bridges at various hours and a list of all stations and trains. It is likely, of course, that were similar cards furnished to the traveling public there would be no abatement of fool questions. Besides, it is not to the interest of a railroad company to take the public too entirely into its confidence.—New York Press.

Who Executed Charles I.?

In the burial register of Whitechapel under the year 1649 is the following entry:

"June 21st. Richard Brandon, a man out of Rosemary lane. This Brandon is held to be the man who beheaded Charles the First."

A less distinguished candidate for the infamy was one William Howlett, actually condemned to death after the restoration for a part he never played and only saved from the gallows by the urgent efforts of a few citizens who swore that Brandon did the deed. Brandon was not available for retribution. He had died in his bed six months after Charles was beheaded and had been hurried ignominiously into his grave in Whitechapel churchyard. As public executioner of London he could hardly escape his destiny, but it is said that remorse and horror shortened his days. In his supposed "Confession," a tract widely circulated at the time, he claims that he was "fetched out of bed by a troop of horse" and carried against his will to the scaffold; also that he was paid £30, all in half crowns, for the work and had "an orange stuck full of cloves and a handkerchief out of the king's pocket." The orange he sold for 10 shillings in Rosemary lane.—Harper's Magazine.

Washington's Birthday.

Washington's birthday was made a legal holiday by vote of the Massachusetts legislature April 15, 1856; therefore Feb. 22, 1857, was first a legal holiday. For many years previous Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis held a reception at her home on Feb. 22, to which all the people of the city of Boston were invited. Her house was open to the public on that day, and before and after the day became a legal holiday all the military companies of Boston would parade past her house on the 22d. Probably the first occasion of Washington's birthday being recognized was Feb. 12, 1781. That was by the French troops at Newport, R. I. As the 11th fell on Sunday, the celebration was held on the 12th. This was according to the old style of reckoning.

Checking a Hemorrhage.

Even a very slight hemorrhage is always startling, but it does not necessarily mean anything dangerous. It may be caused by a slight disarrangement of the stomach as well as by a disease of the lungs or heart. No one but an experienced physician should decide this question, however. Let the patient lie quietly and give him cold drinks until a physician comes. A little salted water is a simple, familiar household remedy for such cases. Quiet and rest are positively essential if the cause is a serious one.

THE COLLECTOR WHO KNEW

An Illustration of the Danger of Being Too Self Confident.

"The trouble with you fellows is you want things, but you know nothing about 'em. You come over here and carry home a lot of truck that a European collector wouldn't give house room, and when you see a really good thing you don't know it, or you won't pay a price for it unless some dealer makes you. You see, you don't know; that's what's the matter; how can you? Nobody in America wanted antiques before the Centennial. If you'd lived here tweaty years, like me, you'd learn something, you'd find out that collecting isn't a thing of money, but knowing."

We had been walking in Venice down a narrow calle while the collector was speaking. "Look at that old brass scale," he resumed, pointing to a fish stall in the little outdoor market on which we had just emerged. "There's a gem, not very old, but of the finest seventeenth century Venetian work. If you saw that in a New York dealer's, all cleaned up, you'd give up a good deal for it; but you'd 'a' passed it by a dozen times if I hadn't spoken about it. See that old junk stand over there? I never pass a thing like that. You can never tell what you may pick up—if you only know."

We had scarcely reached the stand when the collector thrust out his hand with the swiftness of a hawk darting on its prey, and swooped upon a little jewel box.

"Carnelian! Russian, I should say, from the Ural mountains. It's not of great value, but it's a pretty little thing, if it was cleaned up. It's mine, anyway." To the keeper of the stall: "Quanto?"

The Venetian slowly uncoiled himself and came down from the church steps, where he had been sleeping.

"Does the signore want the pretty trifle? The signore knows its value better than I, and he'll be generous?"

"I'll give you a lira for it. It isn't worth it, but one mustn't be hard with the poor."

"I had hoped I should get five!"

"Well, I'll make it two."

"It is the signore's."

"There, you see!" exultingly chuckled the collector. "That's what it is to know. An exquisite carnelian Russian jewel casket for 40 cents! You'd never have thought of looking among a lot of rusty old iron for a thing like that, would you?"

While speaking he held the box with a miser's clutch.

"May I see it, please?"

He reluctantly handed it to me as though fearing I might make a sudden dash down the calle with his treasure.

"Phew!" said I contemptuously, handing the box back to him. "It's not carnelian at all. It's glass, nothing but glass."

"Glass!" drawing a magnifier from his waistcoat pocket and mutely examining the purchase. "I'm—I'm—afraid—it is!" he said sheepishly.

"Of course it is."

"I—don't know," sadly. "Yes, it is glass! You see, it's so dirty. Oh, well, we all make mistakes at times. Do you want it?" disgust taking the place of sadness. "You can have it for a quarter."

"Well, I guess it's worth a quarter." I think my eyes must have snapped. "Yes."

And that is how an almost unique example of the cinque cento came into my collection of Venetian glass.—New York Post.

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

MONIE BOWEY.

Miss Monie Bowey.

WINE OF CARDUI is one medicine that should always be kept on hand in every home for immediate use when female weakness first makes its appearance. Miss Bowey's painful and dangerous accident would not have resulted so seriously had she taken Wine of Cardui promptly.

Wine of Cardui makes women more womanly by curing their weakness and making them stronger. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Bowey. As a medicine for all women in every trying period of their lives can you think of a better medicine for yourself, your sister, your daughter or your mother? Can you think of a more acceptable present to give your friend than a bottle of this medicine which will bring her health and happiness? You are suffering? Your duty is to rid yourself of this pain. If your daughter, mother, sister or friend is sick and in need of relief, your duty is equally great to them. Many women, now well, owe their lives to friends who brought them Wine of Cardui.

Wine of Cardui is adapted to women at any age in any walk of life. For the working woman it gives her strength for her tasks and better treatment than a doctor for very small cost.

Your druggist will sell you a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui. Secure the medicine today. Take it in the privacy of your home. Relief will come to you as surely as you take it.

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

Financial Manager of The Coal Strike

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 13.—One of the most interesting figures among the men who have been conducting the business end of the anthracite miners' strike is that of William B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. As the financial manager of the strike he receives and disburses funds to the amount of $2,000,000 a month.

For the handling of this vast amount of money he receives a modest salary, of which he contributes 25 per cent to the relief fund. While half a million dollars of miners' money passes through his hands every week, probably not more than $2,000 a year goes to his own account for the services he renders.

Wilson is a Scotchman by birth, slow, frugal and absolutely trusted by his fellows. He is under bond to the United Mine Workers' association in the meager sum of $25,000. He is a round headed man with wide open blue eyes, set well apart, and he talks slowly and with great deliberation. He conveys the impression of possessing great caution, application and fixity of purpose, and he handles the vast sums of money that the mails bring to his desk every morning as if it were a commercial product and not the legal tender of the country. He is assisted in his work by about a dozen young women, who handle the money, keep the books and attend to the vast amount of correspondence that is necessary to conduct the business of the association. Wilson designed the system by which the association's funds are handled, and it is simplicity itself.

The headquarters of President Mitchell are in Wilkesbarre, from which place he directs the miners' strike, while Wilson stays here in Indianapolis and collects and distributes the sinews of war. Indianapolis is the general headquarters of the association because it is the geographical center of the coal mining industry of the United States. Mitchell's office is here, and here he can be found in times of peace, directing the fortunes of the association.

The career of the man is as interesting as his present occupation and office. He was born in Blantyre, Scotland, and came to America when he was seven years old. When he was nine years old, he was a mine worker. His father was a miner, but owing to an injury to his back was able to undercut a coal bank, but unable to do his loading into the cars. This the boy did for him.

At the age of eleven years he was a half member of the Miners and Laborers' Benevolent association. In 1876, when he was fourteen years old, he was local secretary of the union, and he was only nineteen years of age when he was dismissed from employment in the mines because of his active connection with the union. He went to Iowa and dug coal and worked on railroads and returned to Pennsylvania, where he again got occupation in the mines. In 1885 young Wilson was elected a member of the district executive board in Pennsylvania and five years later was a party to the organization of the United Mine Workers' association.

He became a member of the national executive board of that body in 1891 and was then elected president of District No. 2 of Bituminous, Pa. May 8, 1900, he was appointed to fill the vacancy created in the office of secretary-treasurer and was elected to it in 1901 and re-elected in 1902. He is supreme financial officer of the organization.

Such in brief has been the career of the man in whom the mine workers of the country place such absolute trust that they send him their contributions without hesitancy. Wilson is now forty years old, but in spite of the fact that he went to work in the mines when only nine years old he has been able through the qualities of persistence and concentration, which he possesses to a marked degree, to educate himself. He has read much and is a competent mining engineer.

WITH THE WRITERS.

How a Novelist Was Called to Task. A Fascinating Story.

[Special Correspondence.]

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 13.—Will N. Harben was taken to task the other day by the original of one of the characters in his new novel, "Abner Daniel," which the Harpers have just issued. The mountaineer and ex-moonshiner called on the author in his office in Dalton, Ga. Mr. Harben saw by the angry fire in the man's eye that serious trouble was brewing.

"Look y' heer," said the visitor, "folks says you've been pokin' fun at me in a book. I don't know whether it's so or not, but I'm heer to say ef it is me 'n' you'll hitch in short order."

The man, the prototype of Mr. Harben's Pole Baker, was a powerful fellow, who had had as many shooting scrapes as he had fingers and toes, and the worst part of the affair was that the author had really drawn his portrait in the novel. Harben deliberated and then said:

"Mr. ——, I know you are a fair man and will do what is right. Here is a copy of the book. Sit down and read it, and then, if you desire, I will give you satisfaction."

The man flushed under the unusual proposition, but finally consented and sat down near the author's desk. All the afternoon he bent over the book. Mr. Harben went in and out of the office several times without causing the reader to raise his head.

Finally he laid the book down and said sheepishly: "I don't think I kin kick. I was a little afeerd you'd made me show the white feather, but that feller they say is like me's got a sight more grit 'n' I have. Huh!" admiringly. "He'd fight a circular saw bare handed. No, I don't think I kin kick."

One of the most fascinating novels of the Revolutionary period thus far given to the world is "My Captive," which has just been published by D. Appleton & Co. The author is Joseph A. Altsheler, the Kentucky novelist and journalist, whose books, "The Sun of Saratoga," "A Soldier of Manhattan," "In Circling Camps," etc., have given the author a well deserved reputation as a writer of excellent historical fiction. "My Captive" is a pretty Tory, and her captor is Philip Marcel, a Continental soldier, serving under Generals Greene and Morgan. He says:

"I looked at the prisoner, and I was vexed by doubt. With a battle on one side of him and a woman on the other what is a man to do? She returned my gaze with great, pure eyes, which seemed to say I was a villain, a monster. Yet I had been doing my exact duty, that of a faithful soldier in the cause of the Continental congress and freedom, while she—a woman, a girl—had presumed to turn from the things for which God intended her and to meddle with war. I was more than vexed—I was angry, angry at her for attempting such a task and angry at myself for being forced into a situation so full of troubles."

These are the opening lines of the story, and the adventures of the fair Tory and the man she calls "rebel" fill 281 very interesting pages. Mr. Altsheler has the true art of the story teller, and "My Captive" takes the reader's attention prisoner and holds it from first page to finis.

The new novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn," which has been running as a serial, will soon be published in book form. This novel is Mr. Smith's longest one as well as his most ambitious. The chief part of the story deals with the life of an artist in New York, and Mr. Smith pictures artistic and literary life in New York during the last thirty five years, with which he has been so familiar. The early part of the story is practically the history of the end of one civilization—that of the old south, where the hero was born, and from which he is transferred to New York studios and so called Bohemian cafes.

WHY WHITE RETIRES.

Withdrawal of Embassador to Germany Due to Advancing Age.

Andrew D. White, United States embassador to Germany, whose resignation of the post at Berlin goes into effect on Nov. 1, will be seventy years of age on the day fixed for his retirement. The reason assigned for his withdrawal from the post which he has so creditably filled is his advancing years.

Mr. White has represented this country at Berlin since 1897. Much of the time his duties were trying and complicated, especially preceding and during the Spanish-American war, when the sympathy of the German court seemed to favor our enemies.

Mr. White's diplomatic career began when he was only twenty-two years old, just after his graduation from Yale, when he was appointed an attache at St. Petersburg. Later he was president of Cornell university, resigning in 1885. Since then he has been minister to Russia and also a member of the Venezuela commission.

The untimely death of Mr. White's son last year is said to have hastened his decision to retire to private life.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You may prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get the reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

WHERE HOPS GROW

[Special Correspondence.]

Pleasanton, Cal., Sept. 13—Very few people appreciate the growing importance of the hop industry in this country and the present large scale on which it is conducted. Enough is now grown here to supply not only the home demand, but to help out thirsty Englishmen, 65,000 bales being annually exported to Great Britain. The acreage in both countries is the same (55,000), but the demand is different, more beer being consumed by Englishmen than in any other country in the world, not even excluding Germany, figuring on a per capita basis. It will thus be seen that a hop growing country has one big claim to supremacy in the world of trade.

The drawback is that hops will not grow everywhere. They demand warm, dry valleys removed from the sea. Of the area under cultivation in this country 7,500 acres are in California, twice as many as in any other state in the Union, and the biggest single hop farm is at this place, where 500,000 vines grow under one wire, covering the country with a canopy of pale green vines and blossoms and exhaling a heavy odor, which is most oppressive.

The entire product of this farm, amounting to 2,800 bales, is sent direct to a famous maker of pale ale in London and brings in to the growers about $110,000 every year. So highly does the brewer value these hops that he pays from 2 to 4 cents more a pound for them than for any other hops from the same locality.

The entire hop output of America is worth about $16,000,000 annually, and to harvest this crop an army of 240,000 men, women and children is employed as pickers alone, for there are 72,000,000 hop vines to be stripped. The picking has to be done by hand within the month of September, when the blossoms are at their best. The work is not very arduous or difficult, but it demands speed, and for this reason the army of hop pickers must be concentrated in short order at the various farms throughout the country.

THE BELLE OF THE HOPFIELD.

They come from the countryside, from the mountains and from the cities and camp at the scene of their labors. Their tents, thatched huts and wigwams form a wonderfully attractive picture for the space of a few weeks, and then the pickers, their work done, disappear like magic for another year. The average pay is 85 cents for every 100 pounds of blossoms gathered, and each worker earns on an average $1.05 a day. Their pay, however, is based on the prevailing price for hops. Some families come to hopfields and work as a unit, earning about $10 every day that the season lasts. The biggest individual picking recorded was 458 pounds by a young man of nineteen, who thus earned $3.80 for his day's work.

The Pleasanton plantation is notable in that it employs only white labor and does not allow intoxicants to be used on the premises. The result is that a superior class of workers is attracted to the place, and not a few women and young girls are to be seen busy in the fields. Each harvester pulls down a vine and picks off its hundreds of little, light blossoms, dropping them into a large open basket. When the basket is filled, its contents are transferred to a large sack,

Hop picking has but two drawbacks. One is the so called hop poisoning, which is a sort of prickly heat or rash sometimes produced by contact of face and arms with the nettlelike fuzz on the stalks of the hop vine. It does not affect all pickers. The other is the dark staining of the hands resulting from the resin of the blossom. It may be removed by rubbing with the crushed green leaves of the hop.

"My wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief of Police, 33 Prospect Street, Weissport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart.

"You can publish this letter if you wish. We have received such benefit that we wish every sufferer could derive the same amount of good. My wife's complaint seemed to be a complication of diseases—so the doctors said. We will ever remain your friends. May God bless you and your Institute."

LIFE PLANT.

Stillwater, O., Nov. 5th, 1898

Life Plant Co.,

Messrs:—After trying the best physicians and the popular remedies of the day for fifteen years for a stubborn case of Eczema, without being benefited, and as physicians claimed there was no cure for me I had concluded to abandon the use of all medicines, believing my case incurable.

Six years ago, hearing through a friend who had tried it, that LIFE PLANT was a wonderful remedy, I was persuaded to make one more trial. $5 worth of LIFE PLANT cured me and I would not take the disease back to keep for thousands of dollars. I was cured six years ago and the disease does not return.

Since being cured myself I have persuaded a number of my friends who had bad cases of Eczema, to try LIFE PLANT, and it cured in every case, and the best of all is, they stay cured. I have given you herein a plain statement of facts and you are at liberty to publish the same for the benefit of those afflicted. Yours truly,

W. H. HOUK.

"COMPULSORY" LAW

Not Wanted by the Anthracite Miners, Said President Mitchell.

WOULDN'T BIND WORKINGMEN

If Pennsylvania, Just to Win Their Own Strike—Answers Hewitt—No Conflict Between Stone and Quay Over Attempts to Settle Trouble.

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, came here last night and was presented with about $3,000 by the organized workmen of this city for the benefit of the striking mine workers, at a joint mass meeting of the United Trades association, the Allied Building Trades and the Central Labor union, held at Labor Lyceum hall. The money was gathered by these organizations through house-to-house contributions, jars placed on street corners and other places and proceeds from picnics. After the relief money had been formally presented to him Mr. Mitchell made a short address. He said, in part, that the spokesmen of the operators contended they were making a fight for individual liberty and for a principle, but Mr. Mitchell claimed the operators are battling to give wages satisfactory only to the coal trust. He said the strikers are just as firm today as they were four months ago.

Three Killed by Police.

The coal operators, he said, have characterized the miners' union as an "irresponsible and lawless body." He admitted there had been some lawlessness, but "of the six persons killed in the coal fields since the strike was started, three were murdered by the coal and iron policemen." No one deplored lawlessness more than he did, even though committed by his own brother. He characterized most of the special policemen as "criminals and thugs."

Continuing, the miners' president said in part:

"Governor Stone is contemplating an extra session of the Pennsylvania legislature for the purpose of having enacted a compulsory arbitration law. The miners are willing to arbitrate, but they are not willing to have compulsory arbitration. They are not willing to enslave the workmen of Pennsylvania in order to get out of their difficulty. It has been the invariable rule for workmen throughout the country to abide by the decision of arbitration boards and also the rule for organized workmen to stand by their contracts."

He referred to the recent public statement of ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, of New York city, in which he said Mr. Mitchell was responsible for the anthracite strike and that he had ordered the bituminous miners to quit work, but they had refused. Mr. Mitchell denied these statements and also refuted Mr. Hewitt's claim that he has been a friend of labor. Mr Hewitt, he said, is a director in the Erie railroad and a director in a very large coal company. "All of the men in the employ of Mr. Hewitt in West Virginia," Mr. Mitchell said, "are on strike, although he never told that to the public."

Frail Children Have to Work.

He pictured the young and frail children going to the mines and factories, when they ought to be in the schools, where they could receive an education and become good citizens of their country. He asked the citizens of Philadelphia to further assist the strikers. "We cannot win the strike alone," he said, in part, "but with the help of the trades unions of the country victory will be ours."

Harrisburg, Sept. 13.—Governor Stone said yesterday afternoon that there was no conflict between him and Senator Quay in attempting to settle the coal strike. He said: "Certainly not. I am glad to see that Senator Quay is moving in the matter. Everyone ought to do all that he can to help on a settlement."

CONFERENCE ON THE STRIKE.

Late Last Night Mitchell, Stone, Flinn and Others Get Together.

Harrisburg, Sept. 13.—A conference was held at the executive mansion last night between Governor Stone, Senator William Flinn and M. K. McMullin, of Pittsburg, President Mitchell and District Presidents Duffy, Fahy and Nichols, of the United Mine Workers, for the purpose of discussing means of settling the anthracite coal strike.

The conference was held at the suggestion of the governor, who has devised a plan by which he hopes to effect a settlement between the operators and miners without the necessity of an extra session of the legislature for the enactment of arbitration legislation.

The governor declined to outline his plan in advance of the conference and none of the other parties to it would make any statement until after they had seen the executive and heard his suggestions for ending the strike.

DEMOCRAT INTRODUCED A CODE.

Reading Interrupted by Adjournment of Ohio Senate—Friend of Foraker Addressed House.

Columbus, Sept. 13.—The senate was only in session about five minutes yesterday. Senator Royer introduced the York code bill, the only measure presented by a Democratic member, and the clerk was proceeding to read it, when he was interrupted by Senator Hosea, who moved an adjournment until Monday at 4:30 p. m. While only four or five members voted in favor of the motion, those opposed to it being given no opportunity to protest, the motion was declared carried by Senator Wirt, who was presiding.

Judge E. B. King, of Sandusky, one of the Republican leaders in Northwestern Ohio and a close friend of Senator Foraker, addressed the house yesterday on the constitutionality of municipal codes. He expressed the opinion that the Guerin amendment to cure the defects in the Cincinnati Traction company property, made by the decision knocking out the Pogers law, would be constitutional. Secretary Goldsmith, of the Ohio Federation of Labor, addressed the committee in a petition that an eight hour law be incorporated in the code.

A committee was appointed to present resolutions upon the anniversary of President McKinley's death. The house adjourned over until Monday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Pierce Dead.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Rev. Dr. William C. Pierce, a pioneer Methodist minister, of the Western Reserve, died yesterday at the residence of his granddaughter in this city. He was born in Peru, Berkshire county, Mass., in 1815, and was for a number of years a member of the faculty of Baldwin university, Berea, O. He had labored in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Await New Legislation.

Akron, O., Sept. 13.—The petit jury in common pleas court was discharged yesterday and there will be no more jury trials in Summit county until a new jury law is passed by the legislature. This is the result of the question raised in a damage case Tuesday that Summit county was working under a law to which it had no right.

Truth.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always near at hand, sits upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

The Pen Mar Coal company has purchased the Standard Nos. 1, 2 and 3 mines at Pine Hill, Pa., from the W. T. Rainey company.

Mrs. W. Bowman, wife of a motorman on the Mahoning valley electric lines, died in a dentist's chair at Niles, O., while under the influence of chloroform.

The National Association of Master Bakers adjourned at Cincinnati to meet next year in Philadelphia and the following year in St. Louis. Robert B. Ward, of Pittsburg, was chosen a member of the executive committee.

Perry C. Minshall, ex-president of the Mineral county court, and a member of the firm of Puter & Minshall, who had been suffering with nervous prostration for several months, shot and killed himself at Piedmont, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cowles, of Akron, O., have celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Sixty years ago he was a teacher at Oberlin college, when Rhoda Barnum, a student, and he became sweethearts and soon after were married.

The annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of West Virginia elected officers at Wheeling as follows: T. M. Barnes, of Clarksburg, president; J. W. Leach, of Benwood, first vice president; J. Tregallis, of Grafton, second vice president; M. C. Whitlatch, of Parkersburg, third vice president; John C. Strobel, of Wheeling, secretary; Val Fruth, of Charleston, treasurer. The next convention will be held at Parkersburg.

Prof. Mac Mossman, of Newark, O., caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of his wife, Mrs. Annie Mossman, charging her with threatening to shoot him. Justice Atcherly had not more than issued the warrant for Mrs. Mossman's arrest than he was called upon to issue a similar one, Mrs. Mossman claiming she was afraid of her husband. Prof. Mossman met his wife in Huntington, W. Va., and their wedding followed in a few hours after the meeting.

The body of a man named William Holmes was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, at Pittsburg, by a track walker. The man had been struck by a train. His head was split open, and his brains were scattered over the tracks for some distance.

Chairman Thomas E. Burton and several members of the congressional rivers and harbors committee, accompanied by a number of Pittsburg rivermen, left on an inspection of the local harbors about Pittsburg.

Superintendent John McAleese, of the Pittsburg bureau of police, will probably show conclusively that he intends to strike at the heart of a system of managing disorderly houses that has sprung up in the city. He has practically completed the work preliminary to prosecutions of agents and owners of houses used to line the pockets of certain people.

Ralph J. Williams, 6½ years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Williams, of 1240 Talbot avenue, Braddock, Pa., died from the effects of a teaspoonful of carbolic acid administered by his parents by mistake for a medicine that had been prescribed by a physician.

A Kiss and a Bite.

In his volume, "The Kiss and Its History," Dr. Christopher Nyrop of the University of Copenhagen relates that in England in 1837 Thomas Saveland brought an action against Miss Caroline Newton, who had bitten a piece out of his nose for his having tried to kiss her by way of a joke. The defendant was acquitted, and the judge laid it down that "when a man kisses a woman against her will she is fully entitled to bite his nose if she so pleases."

"And eat it up, if she has a fancy that way," added a jocular barrister half aloud.

His Bluff Quickly Called.

"I want you to understand," he said, "that I'm the master in this house."

"All right," she replied. "Go out and tell the cook that we're going to have company all next week."

Then he put on his hat and went away, making sarcastic remarks about people who were afraid to say their souls were their own.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Learning.

Elizabeth, a little Boston girl, is seven. Quite an old girl now is Elizabeth. "You do not mind me as well as you did when you were two years old," observed her grandmother.

"You see, I didn't know anything then, and so of course I always did just what any one told me to," replied Elizabeth.—Buffalo Commercial.

Expressive.

"Well, Tommy, how does it taste?" asked his father.

"Why," replied Tommy, with a puzzled face, "it tastes like your foot's asleep."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

VANDERBILT'S FIANCEE.

Miss Neilson Is a Beauty and Has a Fortune of Her Own.

Miss Kathleen Gebhard Neilson, whose engagement to Reginald C. Vanderbilt has just been announced, is a member of the old New York family of Neilson and has an ample fortune in her own right.

Her father, who died several years ago, was prominent in New York society, and her mother was Miss Belle Gebhard, a sister of Fred Gebhard, the well known clubman.

Miss Neilson inherits the beauty of her mother. She is tall, shapely and in addition to being an excellent golfer, tennis player and swimmer is a highly accomplished horsewoman. She is a devout Catholic and is regular in attendance at confession and mass.

Until the engagement was announced Miss Kathleen spelled her Christian name with a "K," but the cards bearing the notice of her betrothal spelled it with a "C," and society is interested in knowing why the "K" was dropped. It is said that young Vanderbilt's mother was opposed to the marriage because of Miss Neilson's religion, but her objection has been overcome.

Reginald Calhoun Vanderbilt is the youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. He may still be called a college boy, for as he failed to pass his examinations in June at Yale he is supposed to be preparing to take his degree this fall.

When his father died, Reginald fell heir to $5,000,000 without conditions. Then there was a trust fund of $5,000,000 divided among the four children, share and share alike. The rest of his wealth he inherited from his grandfather's estate. The Vanderbilt millions are well invested, and his income is not less than $400,000 a year. Further, in the event of the death of his elder brother, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, without issue, Reginald would be the residuary legatee to an amount which is now more than $40,000,000. But that contingency is very remote.

A Fit Subject.

A Natural Question.

Little Walter was eating lunch, when he gave his arm a sudden shove, and, splash! down went his glass of milk.

"I knew you were going to spill that" said mamma angrily.

"Well, if you knew," queried Walter, "why didn't you tell me?"

Solving the Problem.

"What can I do for my little boy," asked mamma, "so that he won't want to eat between meals?"

"Have the meals ficker together," replied the young hopeful.

DOWN TO FACTS

Read What East Liverpool Citizens Say.

Get down to the facts of the matter. Don't take a stranger's word. It is easier to prove the truthfulness of statements made by citizens of East Liverpool than endorsement coming from some far away place. Read the following:

Mr. S. C. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across my back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy, and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation I have since purchased Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it, when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected of any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbors' experience and profit by his opinions."

IRONDALE IS MOVING FOR A NEW TIN MILL TO COST ABOUT $70,000

A Large Part of the Capital Stock Has Been Subscribed and Every Prospect Is Promising.

Irondale, Sept. 13. — (Special.) — Irondale is to have a new two-mill tin plant.

When the mills of the American Tin Plate company were shut down last May and most of the equipment removed to the plant in Chester the hardest blow ever realized in the town was struck.

Since that time business has been on a steady decline; the population has decreased at an alarming rate and until the present week everything pointed to an almost total disbandment of both population and business.

As a result of the moves of a score or more of the remaining enterprising residents the town now has excellent prospects of another boom, with the possibility of reaching a point in the industrial world far exceeding that attained prior to the removal of the mills.

A public meeting was held in the town hall last evening for the purpose of determining the action to be taken in having a two-mill plant installed. Quite a large crowd assembled and the meeting was considered a most successful one. Committees previously appointed made encouraging reports. The plant will be an independent concern and will be owned largely by local capital.

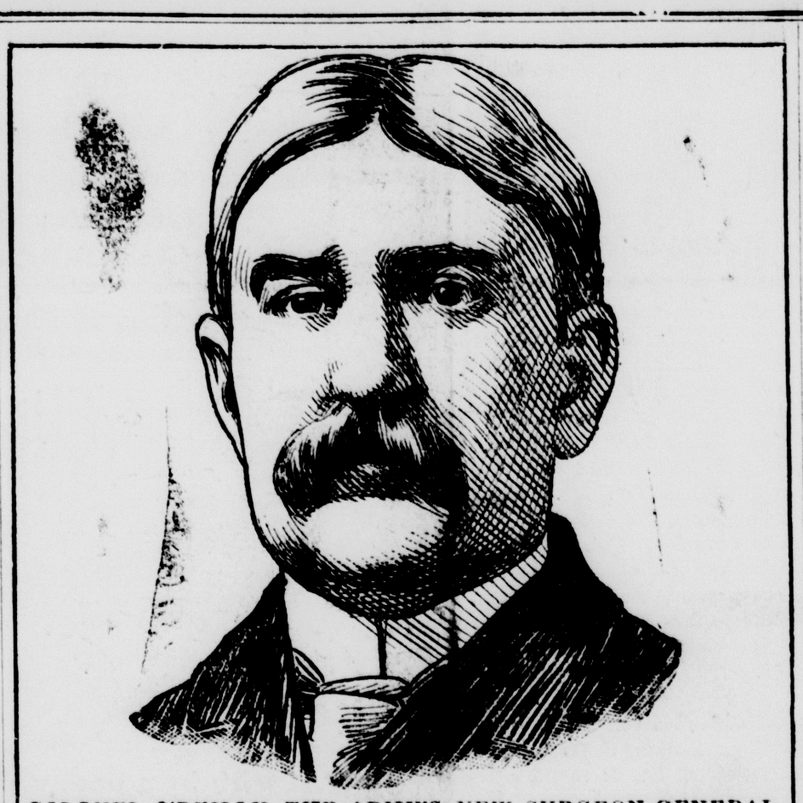

The committee on finances reported, that over $20,000 had been subscribed and that they were confident that at least $25,000 more can be raised in the next few days. That the announced stockholders are confident of the project being a successful one was proven when a committee was appointed to apply for a charter.

The charter is to be made out in the name of the Irondale Tin & Sheet Mill company. The meeting adjourned without further action until next Friday evening, when it is expected that final arrangements will be made.

To erect and equip this plant as proposed it is estimated that $70,000 will be necessary. Of that amount $50,000 will be subscribed by local tin workers and business men. From other sources the remainder must come. No difficulty is anticipated in interesting outside capital to that extent. The mills will be operated absolutely independent of all other plants and will be under the supervision of men who will be not only workers in the plant, but stockholders, giving assurance that the financial interests will be attended to in a manner that will give good results to the stockholders.

The plant will be located on the old Furnace Hall property, which is owned by Manager William Banfield, of the American Tin Plate company. This property includes 80 acres of ground and a large building. The property has been optioned and can be purchased for $10,000. The building standing on the land will be put to excellent use, it being well adapted for a wash house.

Although it may be several months before work is commenced on the installation of the plant, the time is not far distant when the plans of those interested will be realized. All of the tin workers who own property in the town and who were compelled to depart to other milling localities will return. Over 100 men will be employed at the mills, and there are enough men who have personal interests in the town to fill the positions. After the mills are in full operation steps will be taken to enlarge the plant and then an influx of people will surely occur.

A MONUMENT DESERVED FOR A HISTORIC BATTERY

Columbus, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Captain T. D. Yost, of Wellsville, who commanded "Yost's Captured Battery," was here for the purpose of securing an appropriation for a monument for that body. Through inadvertance no provision was made by the legislature last winter when it appropriated funds for the erection of monuments in honor of Ohio troops on southern battlefields.

Captain Yost called on members of the Ohio battle monument commission and called their attention to the omission, which they promised to rectify. If an appropriation cannot be secured at the special session, one will likely be forthcoming at the next regular session. The battery was recruited from Columbiana Stark, Mahoning and Carroll counties and had an eventful career. The regiment was captured at Harper's Ferry, and after being exchanged was sent south. At Champion Hill the regiment assisted in the capture of rebel works, and among the equipment taken was a battery. Company F had previously been detached from the regiment and made the 26th Independant Battery of Ohio.

The command was unable to serve as an arm of the artillery, not having the necessary armament.

After the smoke of the engagement at Champion Hills had cleared away, General Gordon who was in command of the division approached Captain Yost, and pointing to the captured battery, said: "Captain, there's your battery; take it." The company at once took charge of the pieces of artillery, turned in all infantry arms and served through the remainder of the war as a battery.

C. A. SMITH'S TEWKSBURY WON AMID EXCITEMENT

Tewksbury, a gray gelding, owned by C. A. Smith, of this city, won the board of trade $1,000 purse at the Wheeling races by clearly demonstrating his superiority in speed and endurance, over all other horses in the race. He won the fourth, fifth and seventh heats with ease, and caused a demonstration against the starter. It was the greatest race of the fair.

There was a rather sensational incident in connection with this race. After winning the fourth and fifth heats, Tewksbury was brought out on the track with the only remaining horses which had heats to their credit, Lucette and Conqueror. Tewksbury was behaving badly and scored several times before the other horses. The fifth time they came down, Tewksbury was a half dozen lengths behind the others, but Starter Al. Bernard gave the word.

Instantly there was a storm of hisses in the grand stand, continuing for several seconds, mingled with cries of "Robber," "Get another starter," etc. With this disadvantage Tewksbury might have won the heat but for going off his feet on the last turn in coming into the stretch. When the driver stepped to the track he was surrounded by the crowd and given a reception which indicated that the start was very unsatisfactory. Then when Tewksbury was brought out on the track for the final heat the crowd cheered vociferously, and when the horse went under the wire an easy winner of the heat and race the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

A considerable sum was won and lost on the result. There was a delegation of Marietta sports who came up to back Lucette, and they lost heavily. They were very sore.

BREAD PAN AS BATH TUB CAUSED BOARDERS' FLIGHT

"Yes, 'Squire McCarron, we absconded during the hours of the night from the home of our landlady, Mrs. Ellen Maloney," said Seth Herbert, speaking for himself and brother Fred this morning. "But I want to tell you we had a good reason for so doing. I'll bet you won't blame us, either. We did it because we found the landlady's son taking a bath in the bread pan. Just think of that a minute! Do you suppose we wanted to live and eat at a house where the bread is flavored with the scales of a human?'

The 'squire could not help smiling even if it is against the rules of the court, but he answered not a word.

Seth and Fred are employed in local potteries. They boarded and roomed at the home of Mrs. Maloney in the East End until about a week ago, when, after darkness had fallen and while Mrs. Maloney was absent, they packed their grips and left for other quarters. Togetner they owed a bill of over $22 to Mrs. Maloney. She had their wages attached and it was while questioning the 'squire as to the legality of Mrs. Maloney's procedure that the above story was narrated.

The resason offered might be considered grounds for moving, but the young men will have to square the bill nevertheless.

PACKERS' LOCAL EXPELS NINE OF ITS MEMBERS

Following in the wake of the expulsion of Mouldmakers' local, No. 22, from the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, nine members of Packers' local, No. 25, all being employed as boss packers, were expelled from that local last evening at a meeting held in the Knights of Columbus hall. While an interesting meeting was expected by all the members of this local, such developments were not expected quite so soon. Reasons alleged to be similar to the charges brought against the mouldmakers are said to have been the cause of the action taken by No. 25 last evening against certain of its members.

It is averred that during or just before the joint conference between committees representing the Brotherhood and the Western Manufacturers' Potters association, a communication similar, in some respects to that drafted by the mouldmakers, was presented to the officers of the manufacturers' association. As the mouldmakers claimed they were satisfied with existing conditions, so it is claimed that the communication prepared by certain members of No. 25 contained intimated satisfaction. This fact, it is said, reached the ears of the officers and other members of No. 25 and charges were preferred against those members who were alleged to have been connected with the drafting of the communication. In course of time these members against whom charges had been preferred were notified of the fact and asked to appear for trial, but this trial never took place, the accused never appearing before the local for that purpose. Last evening nine of the members of No. 25 were expelled and were to be notified of the fact either today or within a reasonable time.

Members of the local were loath to talk of the action taken last night, and further interesting developments may be expected.

ROAD CASE DECIDED

After Protracted Litigation, In Favor of the Plaintiffs.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special.)—The case of John Matthews et al against James Faloon and A. Heasley has been decided by Judge Boone in favor of the plaintiffs. Matthews made application September 2, 1895, to the county commissioners to have the road leading through his farm and the farms of James Faloon, Heasley and Rosanna Mellon, in Franklin township, vacated. His petition was granted September 7, 1898.

Faloon and Heasley did not want the road vacated and appealed the case to probate court. Judge Boone affirmed the proceedings before the commissioners.

WIFE BEATING ALLEGED

Salem Aeronaut Held for Court on a Serious Charge.

Salem, September 13.—(Special.)—Frank Johnson, an aeronaut, of this city, has been bound over to court by Mayer Baker on a charge of wife beating.

Johnson went to the Broadway hotel Wednesday night, where his wife is employed as a waiter, and without warning or provocation beat her shamefully. It is not likely that the bond of $200 will be furnished. Johnson is well known throughout the state for his daring feats.

Jamestown vs. Y. M. C. A.

Monday's game between the Y. M. C. A. and Jamestown (N. Y.) teams will afford a good opportunity for the fans, who are so anxious to see a game between the Y. M. C. A.'s and the local team, to make a comparison between the two teams. It is argued that the work of the Y. M. C. A. team so far has been fully up to that of the East Liverpool team, as they had one game won and one lost to Parkersburg, which immediately afterward took two from Walsh's aggregation. They also won from Sewickley last Saturday in a magnificently fought game. The game Monday will be well worth seeing.

To Hold a Rummage Sale.

The officers of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, held a meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. R. B. Watson, of Sixth street. It was decided to hold a rummage sale some time next month.

THE YOUNG MAN WAS NOT FOUND

NOT LIKELY TO RETURN HERE

FRIENDS ARE SHIELDING HIM

Constable Charles Gill returned this morning, after spending several days and nights in the vicinity of New Matamoras, where, it is supposed, he was on a search for Albert McIntosh, accused of cutting Albert Thompson in the fight at Grim's bridge last Saturday night.

The constable denies having been there for that purpose, but acknowledges tnat he saw in the neighborhood of 4,000 people who were relatives of McIntosh, and that none of them seemed to know of the young man's whereabouts.

Local authorities now think that not even the father of the wanted man, who stated a few days since that his son would give himself up on or before this evening, knows where the boy is in hiding.

No word has been received from the accused man and he is not expected to carry out his father's assurance. He certainly has a great number of friends. Very few men in this country could evade the officers as successfully as he has done.

If he appears before 'Squire McCarron between now and the day that the grand jury sits he police will be greatly surprised. The thought is advanced that he will remain away until the jury adjourns and then go before the 'squire; sign the bond that has been deposited and run the risk of the case being dropped before the sitting of the grand jury in February.

A PRIVATE SCHOOL

To Be Established to Accommodate Pupils in the Vicinity of Thompson Park.

The school in the vicinity of Calcutta will open Monday, and it is stated that the attendance this term will be much larger than last year. Many families residing north of the Thompson park will not send their children to No. 9 school this year. Instead a private school will be established. Last Tuesday evening a meeting of mothers residing north of the boulevard was held at the residence of Mrs. Mackey, near Thompson park, when it was decided that a private school should be established in that vicinity.

Mrs. Mackey was before her marriage a school teacher, and at the meeting it was decided that she should be engaged to teach the children of that vicinity. A room is to be fitted up similar to an up-to-date school room, and it is stated that about 12 scholars will attend the school at the opening, and that the number will be increased materially before another month. The expense of conducting this school will be paid by the parents of the children who attend the school, which will amount to about from $25 to $40 a month. While it is stated that these children could attend the Gardendale school, it is estimated that the walk is too far for the little ones, and for that reason and no other the parents of these children have decided to establish a private school.

The Sirius-Oakland foot ball team will open the season on next Saturday afternoon in West End park in a game wth the West End Rovers. Both teams played excellent games last year and they will likely engage in a hard tussle.

J. H. French and Christian Bowman, of Lisbon, and W. K. Gaston, of West Point, representing the county commissioners of Columbiana county, and J. W. Van Auker, M. Westerman and W. K. Wagner, of Youngstown, representing Mahoning county, met yesterday at the Seventh Avenue hotel, Pittsburg, for the purpose of making arrangements for the construction of a joint ditch for drainage purposes.

The ditch, which is about one mile in length, was constructed several years ago, and was calculated to drain a large tract of farm land lying at the northerly end of Columbiana county. The greater portion of the land through which the ditch passes is over the Mahoning county line. Recently it became clogged up, and it will require $3,000 for repairs. It was decided, if the property owners stand the assessment, there was nothing in the way of the progress of the work. It will be necessary, however, for the request to come in the shape of a petition, so that the several properties will come in for their assessments in the regular way.

Prosecuting Attorney J. H. Brookes, of this city, and Prosecutor W. F. Gibson, of Mahoning county, accompanied the parties as their legal advisers.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

Was the High School Boys' Dance Given at Rock Springs Pavilion.

One of the most enjoyable events of the entire social season was the dance given at Rock Springs park last evening by the high school boys. The programs were neat and handsome. On their back they bore the membership roster.

The music, by Rocereto's orchestra, of Rochester, was received with great enthusiasm. The dancing lasted until 1 o'clock.

NEW RURAL ROUTE

Carrier Expected to Start On His 24 Mile Round Next Week.

It is expected that the new rural delivery route from this city will be put in operation next week. F. M. Eakin, of Clarkson, will be the carrier. Most of the patrons now have their boxes in place.

The route is 24 miles, as follows: Calcutta, Spruceville, Harmony school house, Gaston's mill, Cannon's mill and return by way of Carpenter's run, coming in on West Market street. At Mrs. Altafer's residence near the Harmony school house, Eakin will meet the carrier from Negley. Any mail that is to be exchanged will be transferred at that point.

It is expected that the Azelda postoffice will be abolished.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

TWO ENGLISH GENTLEMEN.

Two of the most interesting gentlemen who have been in this city for many months are at the Thompson House, representing an English potters' supply house. They are Bertrand Rhead, representing the decalcomania department of Thomas Hulme, of Hanley, England, and W. J. B. Hulme, a brother of Thomas Hulme. It is the first visit to East Liverpool, and in fact to the United States, by Mr. Hulme. Twice each year Mr. Rhead comes to this city. His first visit to East Liverpool was last February, when he came here in the place of John Clarke, who represented the Thomas Hulme interests for many years until his untimely death early in the year while crossing the Atlantic. On his first trip to this country Mr. Rhead had but two hours' notice to prepare for the trip, and his last visit, from a financial standpoint, was a most successful one.

Mr. Hulme represents the clay department of the Hulme firm, and is here calling on the trade in that interest. He is a most interesting gentleman to talk with, but no more so than is Mr. Rhead, who on his last visit here made many friends. Mr. Rhead, when here early last year, was surprised at the vastness of the pottery industry in this city, but Mr. Hulme is more so, and good naturedly admits it. To a representative of this paper today, Mr. Hulme said:

"To tell you the truth, I was amazed when I looked over your city and saw so many potteries, and every one of them in full operation. You are to be congratulated upon this unusual business condition, although I have known for some time that all the East Liverpool potteries were working full. The offices of your potteries surprised me greatly, for there is not one of them that is not neatly furnished. The officials are most pleasant to talk with, a cordial greeting being extended to everyone. Your potteries are somewhat differently built than those in England. A four or five kiln pottery in the Staffordshire district is considered one of the most convenient size. But things are different here. Potteries with from 25 to 30 kilns are indeed mammoth concerns. In England we call ovens, and here the term kiln is applied. The ware made in this country is fired much harder than it is in England, but still a most excellent class of ware is made in East Liverpool. You have a beautiful little city, and your business is now at its height from what I can understand, and my best wishes for the continued success of this good trade is extended."

Mr. Rhead, since he came to the city a few days ago, has talked most entertainingly about the class of decalcomania that is being used in the decorating departments of the local potteries. Although there are at present no less than six "decal" salesmen in the city, all are apparantly doing a good business, and no person is feeling the effects of so many salesmen in the same line being in the city at the same time. Mr. Rhead among other things said: "It may be a surprise to many to know that one color appears to predominate in the decorating department of the potteries. Wherever I go the cry seems to be for pink. 'Tis a beautiful color, and the decorators knowing this fact, want something with a 'bit of pink in it.' Of course we accomodate them, and gladly. Pink shows well on a piece of ware no matter how small, and when a pleasing decoration is made, the sales of the firms are correspondingly increased."

Mr. Rhead has brought with him on this trip many new designs in "decal" work, the like of which has never been seen in the city before. Samples of these decorations are shown in his room, on East Liverpool made ware. During his last trip to this city he gathered many pieces of ware, taken from parts of dinner sets, and these were taken to England, and the decorations completed there. The decalcomania in some manner has to be made to suit the class of ware it is to be used on, hence this action. Both gentlemen will remain in this country for about six weeks, during which time they will visit all the pottery districts. Before they came here they stopped off for several days at Trenton, and made a tour of the eastern potteries.

MAYER IN SMILES.

William Mayer, residing on Derby Road, and who is employed as a dipper at Laughlin No. 2, is a happy man. When Bertrand Rhead arrived in this city a few days ago, among the first East Liverpool men he met was Mr. Mayer, who is an old friend. Soon after the meeting Mr. Rhead presented Mr. Mayer a plate, made of fine English china, upon which appeared a likeness of the King and Queen. Mr. Mayer was much pleased with the present, and prizes it very highly.

DRAINING THE EAST.

Nearly all the men to operate the new Buffalo pottery will be taken from Trenton. The concern is known as the Larkins Pottery company. The structure has been under course of construction for several weeks and will be ready this fall. James Bailey, a well known Trenton modeler, formerly employed at the Maddocks Lamberton works, has been busy getting out the shapes and designs that will be produced by the concern. Mr. Bailey has been engaged to fill a position at the plant as a modeler. William Rea, the manager, has also engaged John Powers, of Trenton, to be mould maker and Edward Moore, of the same city, to do the blocking and casing at the pottery.

'TIS LOCAL NO. 64.

MANY WERE TRANSFERED.

At a meeting of kilnmen's local No. 9, last evening, several new members were received by transfer. They were Joseph Moon, from Sebring, Fred Heckathorn, from No. 24 at Wellsville and Walter DeYarman, from No. 17. An honorary withdrawal card was issued to Elmer A. Stevenson, who left the trade to go to Mechanicstown to enter the mercantile business. Several committee appointed at the last meeting reported last evening and their reports accepted.

VERY STRANGE ACTIONS.

Word has been received in this city within the past few days, that the Cunard Steamship company has as yet failed to return to the heirs of the late James Clark his personal effects which were found in his stateroom last February after he had been buried at sea. Why this delay, cannot be accounted for by his many friends in America and England. It is intimated that another request will be made to the company soon to return these effects.

A JIGGERMAN HURT.

Herman King, a jiggerman at the French China, at Sebring, met with a serious mishap recently at Alliance. He went to that city on a bicycle, and in coming down the north side of the viaduct on the home trip, his foot slipped from the pedal and he was thrown with great force to the pavement. His face was badly cut and disfigured and it will be several days before he can resume work.

AGED DIPPER DEAD.

William Lynch, formerly employed as a dipper in the Sebring pottery died at the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, recently, aged about 62 years. Mr. Lynch was a soldier in the U. S. army, serving three years in the volunteer and four years in the regular service. He was also a well known railroader. He was born near Massillon and was well known in this city.

APPRENTICE PACKER.

Carl Weaver, who has been employed as a packer at the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, has resigned his position and is now located at the Standard, as an apprentice kilnman.

MURRAY IS ILL.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver, at Sebring, is in the city visiting friends. John has not been in the best of health for some time and he came here for the benefit of his health.

HE RETURNS TO TRENTON.

SOLICITING FUNDS.

Local No. 44, of Sebring, endorsed T. J. Duffy for congress at its last meeting and appointed a committee to solicit campaign funds.

MAKING NEW MODELS.

The Canonsburg pottery is to have a number of new models made in this city. Arrangements are now being made to have a dinner and toilet set modeled here, and it is expected that the work of the modelers will be completed in time for the firm to place the new shapes on the market about the first of December.

Fish Blowing Bait Up the Line.

How on earth or in the water fish contrive to blow large baits three or four yards up the line has yet to be explained. It is a common thing to find large slabs of pilchard bait used for pollack blown right up the line by large fish. This happens only when the pollack is itself hooked. I have recently found that large bass serve one the same trick, writes a correspondent, but in this case the bass, which is a more cunning fish than the pollack, sometimes gets away. To realize the immense difficulty of such a feat let any one put even a piece of paper on a hook and endeavor tho blow it up the line with a bellows. Much more difficult it must be with the resistance of the water, and by what muscular action the fish contrives it I know not. I have searched the textbooks in vain for some hint on the subject.—London Opinion.

The Word "Picnic."

Few people know the original meaning of the word "picnic." It is to be found set out in the London Times of a hundred years ago. "A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes. The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maitre d'hotel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art."

Where He Rode.

A schoolboy who was going to a party was cautioned by his father not to walk home if it rained and was given money for cab hire. It rained heavily, and great was the father's surprise when his son, in spite of the instructions he had received, arrived home drenched to the skin.

"Did you not take a cab as I ordered you, Alfred?" the parent asked sternly.

"Oh, yes; but when I ride with you you always make me ride inside. This time I rode on top with the driver. Say, dad, it was grand!"—Utica Observer.

EAST END

A SPEAKEASY

EVIDENCE INDICATES THAT ONE EXISTED IN THE EAST END.

Basket After Basket of Bottles Found In a Store Room.

It is thought by many in the East End that a speakeasy has been in existence in that section for months and that the shop has been closed up. This opinion is based on certain discoveries made within the past few days. It is said by those who have made these discoveries that there was a small store which changed hands on the first of the month, and since that time the new owner of the establishment has been making a general cleaning of the entire premises.

This work was started a few days ago. Basket after basket of whisky bottles were found in a remote part of the building, and under the counter were found half a dozen bottles of wine which had not been opened. Other things clearly indicate, it is alleged, that a speakeasy existed before the store changed ownership.

Several days ago two young men of the East End left their homes very suddenly, and it is intimated that one was given money to leave for a few weeks, or until after the coming session of the grand jury. It is not clearly known, however, that the matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury, but interesting developments are considered probable.

A RUSH FOR LEASES

North of Smith's Ferry As a Result of of an Oil Strike.

Eight miles north of the Smith's Ferry field, in Beaver county, and two miles north of the small produced drilled in by Galey Bros. on the Clark Hunter farm, a few days ago, Frank W. Neeley & Co. drilled in a wild cat on the Bradshaw farm and claim to have a 10 or 12-barrel pumper. There has been quite a rush for leases in that locality.

The territory between the last named well and the Galey Bros.' producer to the south, has all been leased within the past week.

An Apple-Paring Party.

An old-fashioned apple-paring party took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Heckathorn, on Pennsylvania avenue. About 15 persons were present, who, during the the evening prepared eight bushels of fine apples for the making of apple butter. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Mrs. A. Hayes and daughter Ruby are visiting friends at Monaca.

Mrs. Eliza White is ill of the grip at her home on Railroad street.

Martha Hilton, of Dixonville, is able to be out after a lingering illness.

Alex Brownlee has removed from Dixonville to his home in Calhoun's addition.

Jacob Slaughter left this morning for Vandergrift, Pa., where he has taken a position.

Rev. Bert Chambers left this morning for Washington, Pa., where he will tomorrow deliver an address upon mission work.

A foot ball game between the Oakland and the Dixonville club will be played next Saturday afternoon at Columbian park.

Miss Georgie Shingleton, who has been ill for several weeks at her home in Helena, is recovering, and is expected to be able to be out within two or three weeks.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Chambers left this morning for Cambridge Springs for the benefit of the health of Mrs. Chambers, who has been suffering for some time with rheumatism.

The Free Methodists, who have been holding revival meetings in the East End for several weeks, have commenced soliciting funds for the erection of a chapel in the vicinity of Dry Run. It is thought this chapel will be built in Calhoun's addition.

At a meeting of the East End branch of the Protected Home Circle next Tuesday evening a class of 35 new candidates is to be initiated. These new members were received in the past two weeks, and the class does not include any of those who failed to appear for initiation at th last meeting. This will bring the total membership of this circle up near the 400 mark.

Tired

that's all. No energy, no vim, no vigor, no ambition. The head aches, thoughts are confused, memory fails. Life becomes a round of work but half accomplished, of eating that does not nourish, of sleep that fails to refresh and of resting that never rests. That's the beginning of nervous prostration.

"I was very nervous and so tired and exhausted that I could not do my work. One dose of Dr. Miles' Nervine quieted my nerves and drove away the lassitude. Seven bottles did wonders in restoring my health."

Marriages Without Money.

The poet and divine, John Donne, who became dean of St. Paul's in 1821, married a daughter of Sir George Moore without the consent of her parents. He was told by his father-in-law that he was not to expect any money from him. The bridegroom went home and wrote this witty note. "John Donne, Anne Donne, undone," which he sent to the angry father, and this had the effect of restoring them to favor. They were very poor at first, but things soon got brighter, and they lived most happily together.

Sir Joshua Reynolds after Flaxman had married told him that this would ruin him as an artist. When the husband related this to his wife, she resolved that marriage should make and not mar her husband and to this end further resolved that he should study at Rome and do everything that he might have done without matrimonial responsibilities. "But how?" asked Flaxman. "Work and economize," rejoined the brave woman. So well did they do this that he found that "wedlock is for an artist's good, rather than his harm," and they both discovered that they were made for each other.

Optical Talks...

Care of the Eye from childhood up to old age. Written especially for the News Review, by P. O. Kennedy, the Sixth Street Optician

As I said in a former talk the greatest danger to the eye comes from eye strain, so called. Normal eyes, while they can be abused as readily as defective ones, do not show the strain as easily as do the latter. The reason for this is that in a normal eye the eyeball is neither too long nor too short, and the curvature of the cornea is nearly the same in all meredians. When the eyeball is too short the cilliary muscle is compelled to work "overtime," as it were—to accomodate the eye even when distant objects are being viewed—while in the normal eye the muscles are at rest when the eye is focused for distance.

The result of this "overtime" work on the part of the cilliary muscles is seen in the constantly recurring headaches with which so many people are afflicted.

When the eyeball is too long just the opposite is true—the cilliary muscle is not worked enough. Now it should not be understood that this will have the opposite effect to short eyeball troubles—in fact the results are largely the same—headaches. This is explained by remembering the fast that all the muscles of the eye work in unison. When the eyes are converged so as to bring them together for near work the battle between the muscles begins. The eyes have to be turned in just as much as normal ones but the cilliary muscle does not have to do nearly as much work—thus the different muscles are thrown out of harmony and the result is almost the same as previously stated for short eyeballs.

Astigmatism is, also, frequently the cause of eyestrain but as the space allowed me in these talks is so limited I will not endeavor to go into details.

It will be seen, though, that what I am endeavoring to illustrate is that the eyes should never, under any circumstance, be overtaxed by forcing them to exert the different muscles. It will also be seen that the cause of strain is not, as most people think, in the nerves, but that it is solely in the muscles.

A Dumas Story.

The younger Dumas once went to Villers Cotterets, his father's native village, to the unveiling of a statue to the creator of "The Three Musketeers." At the banquet in the evening the younger Dumas sat next to one of the oldest inhabitants who, in perfect good nature, but without any tact, began to tell a story of Dumas pere.

"Ah," said he, "he was a gay soul, your father! How we loved him. He was so kind hearted and generous. The last time he came to Villers Cotterets he gave a banquet in the Hotel de Ville. He forgot for some time after to pay the bill. See that fat man over there? He was the butcher who furnished the feast. I should not be surprised if the meat were still owing to him. But that is nothing. He is proud to this day of being the purveyor to Alexandre Dumas."

The story was an ironical commentary on the set speeches of the afternoon. The son was anxious then and there to settle his father's score.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Lamb Gourd of Samara.

In a book called "The Duke of Holstein's Travels Into Persia and Muscovy," published in 1636, there is an account of a curious vine product called the "lamb gourd," which runs as follows: "In the neighborhood of Samara, Russia, there grows a gourd which closely resembles a lamb in all its members. It changes place in growing as far as the stalk will reach, and wheresoever it turns the grass withers and dies. This change of the gourd plant the Muscovites call 'feeding.' They further say that when it ripens the stalk withers and that the outward rind of the gourd is then covered with a sort of wool, which they use instead of fur."

Scaliger also makes mention of the lamb gourd and says that it grows until the grass fails and that it then dies for want of nourishment. He also says that the wolf is the only animal that will feed upon it.

An Interesting Animal.

Proprietor of Menagerie—Walk up, ladies and gentlemen, and see our famous lion, Mustapha. He is as sensible as any human being. A French sergeant once pulled out of his foot a thorn on which he had stepped. What do you think the noble creature did? It devoured, one by one, in order of rank, all the superior officers of our sergeant until the latter found himself promoted to the grade of colonel. Walk in, gentlemen. Only a penny.—From the German.

An Opportunity.

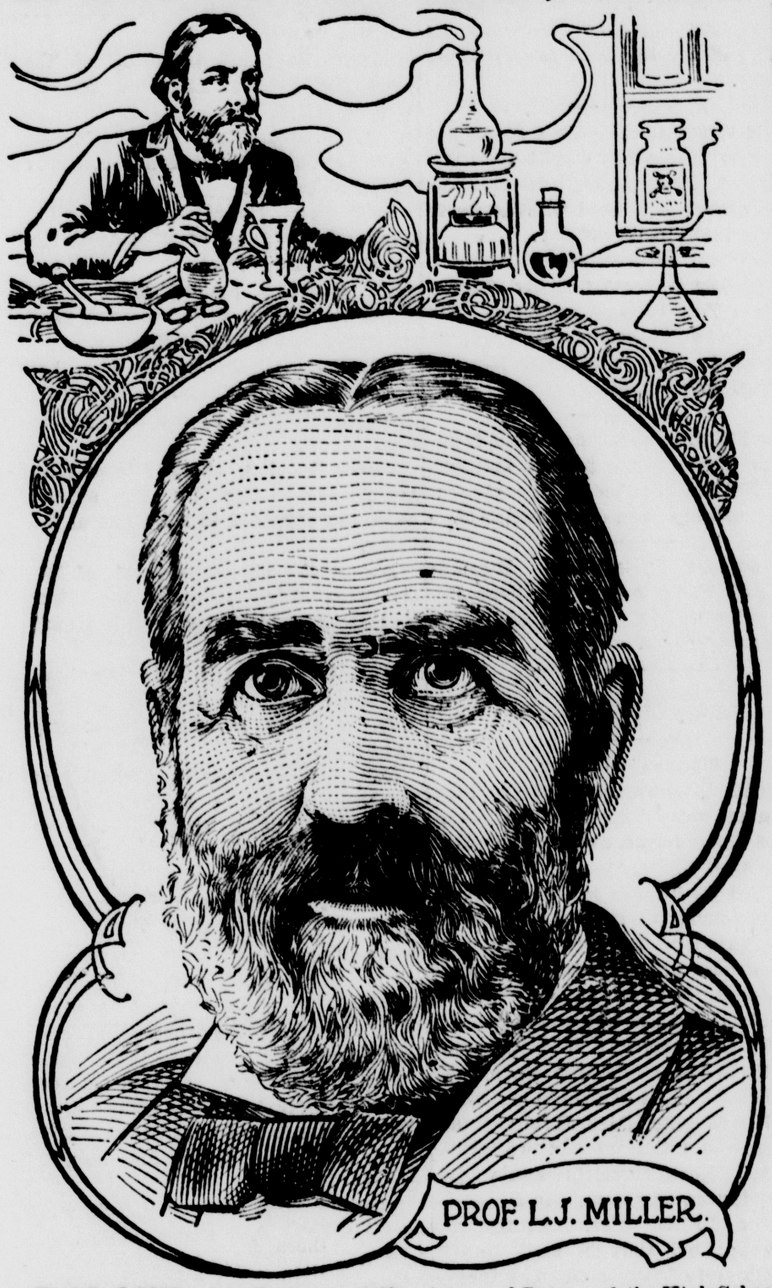

Henry—There's one thing that can be said of poor Tom. He died without owing a dollar to any one in the world.

Dick—And think of the opportunities he must have had! It should be a warning to everybody still alive. You haven't got a couple of dollars about you that you can let me have until I see you again?—Boston Transcript.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 3327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—PROF. L. J. MILLER.

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Treat Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system.

Joseph Ridgeway.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years."

Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."

Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A PRETTY LOVE STORY.

Concerns Germany's Crown Prince and a Beautiful American Girl.

Although vigorously denied on both sides, the general public seems loath to admit that the reported love affair between the crown prince of Germany and Miss Gladys Deacon is all a fiction. The story is too pretty to be false, as well as almost too good to be true.

The crown prince, so the story goes, met the beautiful Miss Deacon at Blenheim castle, England, where she was the guest of the Duchess of Marlborough. Immediately he lost his royal heart. Again and again they met, and in fervid gutturals the heir to the kaiser's crown spoke of his love to the charming American girl. For her he was willing to give up throne and country. Miss Deacon blushed and protested, but she listened. She accepted from her royal lover a ring which had once been worn by Queen Victoria.

When Kaiser William learned of this impetuous affair, he waxed wroth. He sent for the crown prince, shut him up in a castle and dispatched messengers to Miss Deacon demanding the return of the Queen Victoria ring. So persistent were these messengers that Miss Deacon, after numerous refusals, threw the ring in their faces and wept violently. Then her mother took her back to Paris.

Now from Berlin come denials that the crown prince ever gave away his ring. Mrs. Deacon also denies that her daughter had a love affair with the crown prince. They met, she admits, but they did not love.

Miss Deacon, who is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, has spent most of her life abroad. Her parents went to Paris to live soon after their marriage in 1879. Mr. Deacon belonged to a prominent and wealthy Boston family, and his wife was the daughter of the late Admiral Charles H. Baldwin, U. S. N., of New York.

A well remembered tragedy broke up the family, and Mr. Deacon died in 1901 in a sanitarium in this country. He left a considerable fortune to be divided among his four daughters.

Stopped For Once.

A citizen from the frontier, who never had been in Washington before, was visiting a friend in the nation's capital and was taken one day to the gallery of the senate while an important measure was under discussion.

A senator was delivering a long, prosy and apparently aimless speech, and the visitor soon grew tired of it.

"Why doesn't he say something worth listening to?" he whispered to his friend.

"Oh, he's merely talking against time."

"What's the good of that?" asked the other, aghast. "Time goes on just the same, doesn't it?"

His Folded Arms.

"Madge, Harry asked me to be his wife last night."

"Oh, I am so delighted!" replied her friend. "How did it happen?"

"Well, you see, he just asked me, and I said 'Yes,' and then he stood up and folded his arms."

"Well, I never! Was he not more interested than that? Whatever did you do at such treatment?"

"What could I do? You see, I was in his arms when he folded them!"

Saxon State Dinners.

At Saxon dinners slices of bread were the substitutes for plates, and these generally went into the alms basket afterward. Grandees were treated to a silver platter placed beneath the bread, which last in course of time became discarded as people came to recognize the superior advantages of metal and pewter.

An Unwilling Juror.

A New Hampshire judge has in his possession the following letter sent to him by an old farmer who had been notified that he had been drawn as a juror for a certain term of court: "Dear Jedge: I got your letter tellin' me to come to Manchester an' do dooty on the joory, an' I write you these fue lines to let you know that you'll have to git some one else, for it ain't so that I kin leave home now. I got to do some butcherin', an' sort over a lot of apples just about the time the joory will be settin' in your court. Si Jackman of this town says that he would as soon as not go, for he ain't nothin' else to do jess now, so you better send fer him. I hate the worst way not to oblidge you, but it ain't so I kin at present. Ennyhow, I ain't much on the law, never havin' been a jooryman 'ceptin' when old Bud Stiles got killed by the cars here some years ago when I was one that set on the boddy with the koroner. So you better send for Si Jackman, for he has got some kin in manchester he wants to visit ennyhow, an' he'd be willin' to go for his car fare there an' back. Ancer back if you want Si."—Lippincott's.

An Ingersoll Story.

John W. Mackay once invited Robert G. Ingersoll to visit the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft of one of the mines Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air, "Privately I always believed there was a hades somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

TWELVE PAGES.

A Japanese commissioner, sent here three years ago, returned to his country and said: "We asked, 'What is it that makes the United States such a great nation?' We investigated and found it was patents. And so we will have patents." There is a vast amount of truth in these sage remarks. Our patent system, adopted in Thomas Jefferson's day, has had its main features incorporated into the systems of the principal European countries, while American inventions are in use the world over. Our rank as a manufacturing nation, our industrial prosperity, our progress in arts and science, are due in a great measure to the inventive genius of Americans, whose knowledge and skill have revolutionized the processes in use in nearly every line of industry and effort, from the farm and the shop to the chemical laboratory and the astronomical observatory. True it is that thousands of inventions are made and never patented, and thousands that are patented come to naught, Yet every once in a while something is put before the public—the telephone and the trolley car for example—which creates a new industry and surprises the world. The great manufacturing states as a rule are the homes of inventors. In the recent decade beginning in 1890 New York led, with 37,519 patents, Pennsylvania following with 22,705, Illinois with 19,936, Massachusetts with 18,718 and Ohio with 15,248.

Twelve months have elapsed since President McKinley died, but McKinley prosperity is still with us in full strength and vigor. It is highly appropriate that the country give thought to the statesman and patriot whose wise policy caused his name to be blessed and revered by millions. It is a satisfaction that the local churches generally will observe McKinley day tomorrow. East Liverpool, both for sentimental and business reasons, has excellent cause for honoring the memory of one of our greatest presidents.

The Hungarian government is taking steps to prevent the emigration of its people. All America familiar with the Hungarian subjects that have landed on these shores in the past fifteen years will rejoice if the effort meets with success.

As a result of special legislation in past years, Summit county, according to the opinion of some of its foremost lawyers, is now without a jury law that is constitutional. There will be no jury trials in that county, it is announced, until the legislature enacts a new law. The pernicious and far-reaching effect of class legislation was never more convincingly illustrated.

No Luck About It.

There is no luck about advertising, no chance, no scheme. It is legitimate, straightforward business from beginning to end, from the day the campaign is started clear up to the close of business at the finish. Advertising is a legitimate, reasonable means of gaining an end. The advertisement which appeals best is that which is planned with the greatest intelligence, contains the greatest volume of honest intention and speaks in frank, unequivocal words about reliable goods and about the careful, painstaking methods of those who are handling the business; presents in the best way logical arguments for the purchase of goods from the merchant in question. This is advertising that will pay, that cannot help it.—Advertising World.

Due to Advertising.

Chicago people believe, with apparent reason, that the surprising growth of their city is largely due to their confirmed habit of advertising its advantages. At a recent meeting of enterprising business men it was decided that an effort should be made to bring to Chicago some of the manufacturing establishments which are no longer prosperous in Europe and some of the European capital which is seeking investment. After considering the means of publicity the promoters of the project resolved to advertise Chicago in the leading newspapers of the principal cities of Europe.—Philadelphia Record.

AT THE THEATER

On Tuesday night the farcical comedy, "A Foxy Boy," will be presented for the first time at the Grand, and it is said to be a bunch of fun that will be delivered to the audience on that evening. The name of Charles H. Phillips, a gentleman who enjoys a reputation both in this country and in Europe as a whistler, appears in the list of entertainments. Mr. Phillips gives imitations of any and every bird that ever was known, without the aid of a mouthpiece which every stage whistler uses, using simply his teeth and tongue. Some of his effects are simply marvelous.

"Mr. Plaster of Paris," the successful musical farcical production, is furnishing huge amusement to the patrons of the theater all over the United States. It is a combine of wholesome comedy, fresh jokes, spirited music and a great deal of clever specialty work introduced during the play, which make things move swiftly during every moment of the performance. The comedians are worthy the name and as a real amusing and entertaining combination of music and fun "Mr. Plaster of Paris" is entitled to first place.

DON'T GET MORBID.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

As a rule, the thought that kills relates to something the individual dreads more than anything else in the world. There is the germ of fatal thought in ninety-nine persons in every hundred, and the exception is only proof against the thought disease by having been inoculated with the lymph of optimism or philosophy.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of them or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much "doctoring" as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have. The thought disease sometimes cures itself after running its course; so does smallpox. But who would settle down to suffer from smallpox and chance recovery, as thousands of foolish persons settle down to let the thought disease, which has attacked them, do its worst?

Every melancholy thought, every morbid notion and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be physicked by cheerful thoughts, of which there is a store in every one's possession, bright companions—cheaper than drugs and pleasanter.

There have occurred scores of dozens of cases where healthy persons have thought themselves into having tumors and cancers—cases which admit of no doubt whatever that the diseases resulted from constant morbid fear. There might possibly be fewer cases of cancer if some great doctors could assure the world that it is not a hereditary disease, but morbid minded persons on hearing that there is cancer in their families generally do the very worst thing they can do under the circumstances—they conceive an awful dread that they will be afflicted with it. They dwell upon the fear constantly, and every trifling ailment which troubles them is at first mistaken for the premonitory symptoms of cancer.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

POULTRY POINTERS.

The best eggs are the result of a meat diet.

Weak legs come from forced growth, high feeding and close confinement.

Use no deformed or weak fowls for breeding and do not keep the same cock more than one season.

A molting hen seldom lays. She cannot be supplying eggs while the strain of growing new feathers is upon her.

A very fat hen seldom lays anything but soft shelled eggs. Apoplexy and egg bound are the result of excessive fat.

Leaves and hay chaff make excellent litter for the floors, and by throwing grain among it fowls are often kept busy scratching.

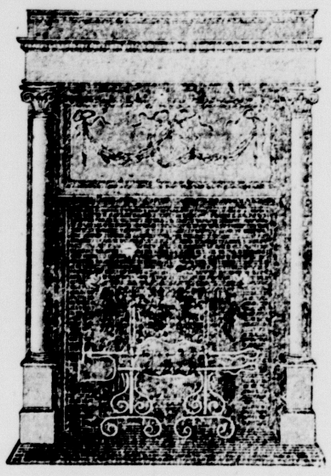

Keep the fowls away from the barns, stables and carriage houses. In such places they are nuisances; besides they are more comfortable in a place by themselves.

Hens must have carbonate and phosphate of lime for their shells, and these will be found in old plastering, broken oyster shells and bones, with some of the meat and gristle attached.

The Dinner Table.

The woman from New England buys a "tablespread," while her sister from the south buys a "tablecloth." The woman from Nova Scotia orders the servant to "lay the table," while with most of us natives of the United States the command is to "set the table." In the country the hostess says to her guests, "Sit by," when it is time to eat; in town it is "Please sit down;" in the city among the swells there is no further invitation than the announcement of the servant that "Dinner is served."—Exchange.

WELLSVILLE

READY FOR WORK

Supervisors of Water Works Improvements Have Arrived in Wellsville.

The consulting engineers in the employ of the R. W. Hunt company, of Pittsburg and Chicago, who are to superintend the construction of the new water works pumping station and sinking of the supply wells, arrived this morning and will have the work started as soon as the site has been decided upon.

The water works trustees will hold a meeting this evening at which time it is thought that the property belonging to Lester Laughlin just northeast of the city limits will be chosen.

THE TRUANCY LAW

A Wellsville Man Invokes It in Case of a Neighbor's Children.

A complaint has been filed with Mayor Fogo by Truant Officer Ellis J. Pease, who asks the mayor to enforce the law compelling all children to attend school and especially the boy and girl who are the children of Mrs. Henderson, residing on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

Mr. Pease has been having considerable trouble with the mother of these children, who, he says, refuses to send them to school.

The mayor stated last evening that he would enforce the law.

No Action Taken.

J. A. McMynn, of Chicago, and John R. Bower, of Pittsburg, representatives of the R. W. Hunt company, held a secret conference last evening with the city water works trustees. Matters relative to the new water works pumping station and supply wells were talked over, but no action taken. Mr. McMynn thought the city was making a mistake in not voting for a supply from Yellow Creek.

Likely to Be Fined.

Larry Chiley, the last of the four Italians who were arrested a few days ago for having stolen 150 pounds of brass fittings from the C. & P. Railroad company, was given a preliminary hearing last evening before Mayor Fogo. He will be given a final hearing next Monday evening and will be assessed probably $20 and costs, as were his alleged partners in the crime.

Old Machinery Sold.

All of the Champion Fire Brick and Clay company's machinery at the plant in the West End has been sold to Pittsburg parties and today Thomas Silver, Jr., is engaged in tearing it apart and placing it on cars ready for shipment. The new plant up "Driven From Home" hollow is to be entirely equipped with new machinery.

Chester Avenue Opening.

Street Commissioner Herbert and City Engineer Leith started the work this morning of opening Chester avenue in the West End. This work is in accordance with an action recentaly taken by council. The new street will be of vast benefit to several West End properties.

A Coming Wedding.

Rev. R. H. Edwards, rector of the Church of the Ascension, who recently accepted a call to St. Paul's church, Pittsburg, will preach his first sermon there October 5. It is reported that he will be married next Monday evening to a prominent Wellsville young lady.

Surprised the Pastor.

A surprise party was held last evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Prewitt, on Center street, by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church of which Dev. Prewitt is pastor. Nearly all of the active members of the society were present and the affair was most enjoyable.

May Reinstate Davis.

One of Wellsville's city officials stated last evening that Mayor Fogo has decided to re-instate Officer Davis, of the local police force, who was suspended. The mayor will make no statement.

A $5,000 Deal.

Drunk And Disorderly.

Bert Callahan, arrested by Officer Henthorn, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was fined $5.05 and released.

Regarded In Different Ways.

That one can obtain more favors by "jollying" than by being brusque is just as true as "one can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar." Two young men have lived in a boarding house in West Twenty-third street for some time, and one has the reputation of being a "jollier," while the other is quick spoken and of a bearish disposition. The young men are friends and usually breakfast together. Their respective standings in the estimation of the dining room maid may be judged from the way in which that damsel shouted their order—both had requested steaks—down the dumb waiter shaft recently:

"A nice beefsteak, a trifle rare, for Mr. Wood; some meat for Baldwin."—New York Tribune.

Very Simple.

A rather simple looking lad halted before a blacksmith's shop on his way home from school and eyed the doings of the proprietor with much interest.

The brawny smith, dissatisfied with the boy's curiosity, held a piece of red-hot iron suddenly under the youngster's nose, hoping to make him beat a hasty retreat.

"If you'll give me half a dollar, I'll lick it," said the lad.

The smith took from his pocket half a dollar and held it out.

The simple looking youngster took the coin, licked it and slowly walked away whistling.—Chums.

The Dissyllabic Scot.

The difficulty of rhyming to "girl" is mainly due to the varieties of its pronunciation. It is never pronounced, as it is so often conventionally written, "gall," but one often hears "gell," with a hard "g." Moreover, in Scotland, though it is as well not to mention the fact to a Scotsman, it consists of two syllables—"gurrel." The other day it was pointed out to a Scotsman that the name of his national poet was a dissyllable in Ayrshire. "Hoot awa'!" he said, or words to that effect. "Burruns two syllables! Absurrud!"—London Chronicle.

A Curious Custom.

Reciprocity.

Suburbanite—Well, you have told my fortune. How much?

Gypsy—Only 50 cents.

Suburbanite—Here it is. Now I'll tell your fortune for nothing. If any of my chickens are missing tomorrow morning, I'll have your entire gang run in.—Chicago Tribune.

TWO MORE ROOMS

In Chester School House Basement To Be Fitted Up At Once.

The Chester board of education at a meeting today, decided to fit up the basement of the Chester Central school for school purposes, making an addition of two rooms to this building. The probable teachers will be Miss Nellie Carman, of the East End, and Miss Edna Joseph, of Wellsville.

The contract for remodeling the cellar of the Central school was let to John Mercer, who will commence work at once.

Rival Candidates.

Prof. G. A. Allison, principal of the Chester schools, and Miss Jane Stewart, the primary teacher, are rival candidates for the office of county superintendent of schools in Hancock county. The contest promises to be interesting, as both candidates have a large number of friends working in their interests.

An Interesting Meeting.

Jr. O. U. A. M. council meeting Monday evening will be unusually interesting, as Enoch Riley, the state delegate, will give his report of the proceedings of the state council. Brunt Shriver, of New Martinsville, State Councilor O. O. Allison's secretary, will receive a salary of $1,000 per year.

Miss Flora Campbell, the 11 year old daughter of Thomas Campbell, of Carolina avenue, is seriously ill with typhoid fever.

Mixed Eggs.

Professor Edwin Ray Lankester was sitting in his office in the Natural History museum, London, when he was visited by an elderly woman, evidently from the country, who carried a parcel which she handled with the most exaggerated care. She was in a state of great excitement and exclaimed:

"I've got two of 'em."

"Two of what?" inquired the professor.

"Two 'awks' eggs," replied the woman. "I'm told they're worth a thousand pounds apiece."

The professor, much interested, looked at the eggs. "These are not auks' eggs," he said.

"They are 'awks' eggs," said his visitor. "My son Joe found 'em."

A light dawned on the naturalist. "The kind of eggs which are so valuable," he remarked gently, "are the eggs of an extinct bird called the auk—a-u-k."

"Oh, hauk!" said the woman. "I'll pay out that 'Enry 'Obhouse as told me it was 'awks' eggs as was wanted."

And she went away."

Soft and Warm.

The latest device of girlhood is a fancy for stuffing pillows with old love letters. There is one thing about the contents of these pillows that can be depended upon with a marked degree of certainty—they are sure to be soft.

More Than Clumsy.

"My fingers seem to be all thumbs today," apologetically remarked the clumsy butcher.

"Ah," said the customer significantly, "that accounts for them getting in the weigh."—Philadelphia Record.

Discouraging.

It is discouraging, to say the least, to a young man who has been tenderly nursing a few straggling hairs on his upper lip for three months to have his girl say, "Oh, Charley, why don't you let your mustache grow?"

The reason we don't see our own faults is that our eyes are just big enough for other people's.—New York News.

Thunder Lore.

The natives of the Hawaiian Islands considered thunder as being Mauna Loa's echo from the clouds. This curious notion has crystallized a weather proverb which is now current among many of the white residents of the islands—viz, "It will rain today; Mauna Loa shakes the clouds." In this conpection it may be remarked that the early Scandinavian settlers in Iceland believed that there were some mysterious and supernatural connections between the roarings of Hecla and the "angry mutterings of Jove." In England many of the peasantry still plant the house leek—"Jupiter's beard"—on their house roofs as a preventive against thunder, lightning and evil spirits, a custom which reminds one of Charlemagne's edict, "Et habeat quisque supra demum suam Jovis barbam."

Another widespread superstition, and one that has been noted among the tribes and nations from China to England and from Cape Hatteras to the Golden Gate, tells us that if the "claps" or reports of thunder come in even numbers the storm will be of short duration and very mild, but, on the other hand, if they come in uneven numbers, especially if the reports be a series of five, nine or thirteen distinct claps, much loss of life and property will result.

The Gleaners.

The old custom of gleaning in the harvest fields, which recalls the Biblical story of Ruth and Naomi, is not obsolete in England, and in Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and the neighboring counties as soon as the wheat is gathered in the late days of August there may be seen in the newly cleared fields numbers of women and children diligently picking up one by one the scattered ears and forming them into neat little sheaves, which they carry in their hands until large enough to be bound up. When the daylight fails, all the booty is bound up in cloths and carried home on the heads of the gleaners. At home they thrash it out by hand and sell the grain or use it for their chickens. The gathering of a half peck is usually a full day's work for a child, and often a woman spends a whole day in gathering very little more. Gleaning, however, is looked upon somewhat in the light of a picnic. The mother and children leave home in the morning, take with them food for the day, and stay out in the fields until nightfall.—Detroit Free Press.

A Quick Witted Pastor.

In Germany a country preacher was preaching a sermon when suddenly he lost the thread of his discourse, and, do what he would, he could not find it again.

The congregation was greatly embarrassed and was wondering what the matter was when he startled it by exclaiming hurriedly, "Pardon me, my brethren, for pausing in my sermon, but it seems to me that I smell fire somewhere—and—and it might be well to see that it has not broken out in the church or in any of the nearby houses."

Before the words were all uttered the congregation was pouring out of the church, each family being anxious to make sure that its home was not on fire. It need hardly be said that the fire existed only in the pastor's imagination.

They are just out—new fall style suits.

Softening the Blow.

The cashier of a certain firm had absconded, and the staff of clerks were deciding on a fit and proper person to acquaint the head of the firm of the fact on his arrival.

Ultimately the matter was left in the hands of the head clerk, possibly because none of the others cared to undertake the responsibility.

There had been a dogfight in the street, and a small crowd was just dispersing as the chief's carriage dashed up.

"What's that crowd after, Jorkins?" demanded the head of the firm.

"Vacancy? What vacancy?"

"Cashier, sir."

"But we want no cashier, Jorkins."

"Beg pardon, sir; but we've a vacancy for one!"

"Jorkins, are you mad?"

"No, sir. That is, sir, I don't know, sir. Fact is, sir—all the cash is gone and—and"—

"Well?"

"The cashier's gone with it, sir."

Foiled by Humidity.

Noiselessly, but with all his might, the burglar tugged at the bureau drawer.

In vain.

It refused to open.

He tugged again.

"Give it another jerk," said a voice behind him.

The burglar turned.

The owner of the house was sitting up in bed and looking at him with an expression of the deepest interest on his face.

"Jerk it again. There's a lot of valuable property in that drawer, but we haven't been able to open it since the damp weather began. If you can pull it out, I'll give you a handsome royalty on everything that's"—

But the burglar had jumped out through the window, taking a part of the sash with him.—Chicago Tribune.

OF INTEREST TO LADIES.

Every woman is interested in her complexion, and anything which will tend to improve it usually receives her careful consideration. The idea that local treatment with lotions and creams is the correct way to improve the complexion is decidedly erroneous. There is always a cause for every effect, and the cause for a bad complexion is a sluggish liver, poor digestion, or bad, poisonous blood. The only way to improve it is nature's way—remove the cause—and as a natural consequence the skin will become clear, fresh and bright. Wright's Celery Tea is especially adapted to the delicate organism of woman, and to these particular causes which are so baneful to her pride. It cleanses the blood, whitens the skin, and imparts the glow of youth to the complexion. 25c and 50c.

SECOND DEFEAT FOR WASHINGTON

They Lost the Game In the Ninth When Reilly Landed a Threebagger.

Everybody played a good game. It was one of the best of the season. It was fight from the first. The visiting twirler bested Gehring on the strikeouts, but at the end his work fell a little short. It was undoubtedly due to agitation, nowever. Just at the time that Colonel Ridgely, one of the star pitchers of the real Washington & Jefferson college team, would have the locals guessing he would go into the air over some trifling matter and allow the next man up his base on four wild ones.

Hits, eight in number, were made by each aggregation. But they were all scattered and did little good. That is, all of them but that one landed by Reilly in the ninth, when he made the ball hunt the tall timbers in left field and by so doing allowed Godwin to score the winning run.

In the first inning neither side scored. The second resulted in a similar manner for the visitors, but not so with the locals. Barker ,not the boy, but the "kid," was first up. He got smashed. But it was because he did not try to get out of harm's way. Heckathorn placed a beauty for two bases. Barker scored. Emmerling fanned. Webb was out. Maley had his luck with him, getting first on McIlveen's error. Heckathorn scored on the rankness. Maley went out, just because he didn't think that Redleg could throw to first .

The next inning showed a turn of the tables. This time the locals got an egg, while the college boys jumped up three notches. Gehring gave them two bases on balls and a three-base hit. That caused it all. In the next a few more were made by the locals, three in all. A conglomoration of hits, bases on balls and a fielder's choice mixed with a few drops of a rattling substance caused this. A blank for each was the result of the fifth. In the sixth and seventh the visitors tied the score, making one in each inning. That was the last of the runs registered for the visitors. They failed thereafter to reach third base. How the locals won in the ninth has already been told.

Carson Finch, the ball player from New Cumberland, umpired the game and did good work. One decision made by him did not meet with the approval of the visitors, but it was straight nevertheless. It was when he called McIlveen out after he had hit for two bases and reached the bag. When he crossed first base he should have stopped long enough to let his No. 11's touch the bag. That is what it is there for. Instead he ran madly over it, and in consequence was called out.

Many were pleased beyond measure when they saw Barker in uniform. He returned from Bloomington Thursday evening and could not stay out of the game. His playing was all that could be desired. He will play in the game when Washington, D. C., is here, which will be during the first week of next month. Webb played an unusually fine game. He was there at all stages. Three putouts and three assists are good enough for any one.

Emmerling tore his finger during the first of the game, but was game and played as he always does.

Davis accepted everything that went his way. What more could he do?

Grandpa, the ladies' favorite, hit them some. He did everything else, too.

Maley could not have played better, unless he had been in the box.

Eckels has a bright future. He nabs them all. He is quick and is just the kind of a man for the position.

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Kind Words for Win Mercer—Toadix Carey's Excellent Record.

The sporting papers are saying all sorts of things about "Win" Mercer. "Win" is to be associated during the fall with Umpire Cantillon, who is now arranging for post-season games between a picked team of American league players and the Champion Pittsburg team. The first two games will be played in Pittsburg, October 7 and 8; the next two in Cleveland, on the next two days, and two more in Chicago, October 11 and 12. It has not been decided yet where the seventh game will be played.

One paper says: : The makeup of the All-American team of Joe Cantillon, "Win" Mercer and "Tip" O'Neill, is as follows: Catchers, Sullivan and Kahoe; pitchers, Mercer, Bernhard, Lee; first base, Harry Davis; second base, Lajoie; third base, Bradley; shortstop, Monte Cross, left field, Hartzell; center field, Jones; right field, Barrett.

Win Mercer is reported by one paper as pitching the best ball of his career this season, and, oddly enough, batting miserably. Mercer says the American league will surely locate in Pittsburg next year.

In pitching Mercer has gained an average of .518, standing eighteenth in the list of pitchers. He has played 27 games, winning 14 and losing 13.

Toadix Carey, who is playing first base for the Washington American league, on last Friday had a batting average of .302. He is the third best batter in that club.

GOT RELIEF FROM THE START.

If you suffer from lumbago or any other disease of a similar nature, isn't it fair to suppose that if BLOOD WINE will cure another sufferer from the same trouble it will be of the same benefit to you? Hundreds of letters from grateful people tell of the good results which may be obtained from BLOOD WINE. J. L. Toryhen, 10 E. Merrimack Street, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I cannot speak too highly in praise of BLOOD WINE, as it has done me a vast amount of good. For several weeks I suffered terribly from lumbago, but failed to find anything beneficial until I commenced taking BLOOD WINE. I got relief from the start, and was soon able to resume work."

MRS. STEWART DEAD.

THROWN AGAINST A POLE.

Machine Ran Into It—She Was Riding With Two Young Men—Senator at The Hague In Connection With the Pius Arbitration Case.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William M. Stewart, wife of the senior United States senator from Nevada, was killed yesterday at Alameda, Cal. Mrs. Stewart was riding in an automobile with Henry Foote and a young man named Taylor. Through an accident the machine ran into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Stewart was thrown against the pole with great force and was so seriously injured that death soon followed. Her home was at Washington, D. C.

Stewart at The Hague.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Senator Stewart at present is at The Hague in connection with the Pius fund arbitration, in which he has taken a deep interest. The case involves title to a large amount of money claimed by the Catholic church of Lower California, to be held for it by the government of Mexico. It was due largely to the senator's efforts that the claim was submitted to the arbitration of the distinguished European tribunal now engaged on its settlement. The senator and Mrs. Stewart, since the sale of their old home on Dupont Circle, known as Stewart's Castle, to Senator Clark, of Montana, and its subsequent destruction, had lived in the winter time in an old-fashioned residence on F street, near the state, war and navy department building.

Not So Much In Society.

In the summer they spent more or less time at Ashburn, a village in Virginia, where the senator had established a large dairy farm, which he ran on scientific and sanitary principles. Of late years they had not taken so much interest in social affairs as formerly.

KAISER PRAISES ROOSEVELT.

Berlin, Sept. 13.—Emperor William, in saying goodby to Generals Corbin, Young and Wood yesterday, remarked that he was specially interested in the three Americans. He admired President Roosevelt unmeasuredly. He admired his versatility, courage, power for hard work and insight into the needs of his country. His majesty added that he watched Mayor Seth Low's administration of New York because he thought it important to the commercial world that New York city should be well governed. The emperor also said he was very sorry Andrew D. White, the United States ambassador, was leaving his court. He had the most cordial feeling for him personally, because of the man he is and for his services in fostering good will between Germany and the United States.

General Corbin had an opportunity to present President Roosevelt's message about the St. Louis exposition, and Emperor William replied that he would see that Germany had a good representation. "I will send you a large party," he added pleasantly.

His majesty sent some personal messages to President Roosevelt through General Corbin and asked to be remembered especially to "Miss Alice," as he called Miss Roosevelt.

The emperor conversed with each of the Americans and told them how much he had enjoyed their visit. The farewell took place on the field just after Emperor William returned from leading the cavalry charge, which concluded the manoeuvres.

MURDERED FORMER WIFE.

Man In Nebraska Also Killed Her Father and Wounded Her Mother.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 13.—Gottlieb Niegenfind Thursday night shot and killed his former wife, Mrs. Anna Peters, shot five times at Albert Breyer, her father, who died yesterday morning, and shot the wife of Breyer in the shoulder, seriously wounding her. After the shooting Niegenfind left the house and, meeting Mrs. Peters' sister, Lena Breyer, attempted a criminal assault, but was frightened away.

He had quarreled with his father in-law over his children.

Two sheriff's posses were scouring the country for him.

Mrs. Peters had been divorced from her husband two years.

President Appoints Platt's Man.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The president has appointed Representative George W. Ray United States district judge of the northern district of New York, vice Alfred Coxe, who has been appointed United States circuit judge. The appointment settles a long controversy. Mr. Ray was Senator Platt's candidate.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY GREATER.

More So Than at Any Recent Date, Said Dun's Deview—Coke Blockade Still Exists.

Industrial activity is greater than at any recent date. Many new factories and mills have been added to the productive capacity, facilities are being increased at old plants, and idle shops resumed through the settlement of labor controversies. A coke blockade still exists, the railways being unable to handle the output, which is above all records and in urgent request. Despite the rapid development of transportation facilities, the nation's needs have grown still faster, and the situation is distressing for shippers and consumers. Large crops are being harvested, and the greater abundance of foodstuffs caused a decline in prices of commodities during August of 3.5 per cent, as measured by Dun's index number. Retail trade is large, with a bright outlook for the future in jobbing and wholesale business. There are few of the cancellations so numerous at this time last year, while collections are improving. An advance of 22.9 per cent in bank exchanges at New York over the same week last year cannot be explained by speculation, as dealings in stocks were also heavy in 1901. Railway earnings in August exceeded last year's by 4.2 per cent and those of 1900 by 18.1 per cent.

Although the weekly capacity of pig iron furnaces in blast on Sept. 1 was reported as 335,189 tons by the Iron Age, it has since been appreciably curtailed by the inadequate supply of fuel, on which account numerous furnaces were blown out or at least banked. As consumptive requirements are increasing, it is necessary to place orders abroad more extensively, and in some cases the entire output of foreign plants has been secured. Not only raw material, but billets and even rails are sought in other markets.

With the completion of early orders there has come a quiet market for woolens and worsted, but mills have large contracts on hand.

Low stocks of wheat and poor grading of receipts, together with fears of frost in corn sections, sustained quotations when a decline would have been imminent if full confidence were placed in official returns of condition.

Failures for the week numbered 205 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 18 a year ago.

CALL MONEY AT 20.

List Closed With Marked Declines, In Stock Market, Friday.

New York, Sept. 13.—Call money advanced to 20 per cent shortly before the close of yesterday's market and the list, which had been heavy throughout, closed with marked declines. Opening prices were lower, though mostly fractional, but the unsettled tone which characterized the day's comparatively moderate transactions was apparent from the outset. Missouri Pacific was the chief sufferer in the early trading, selling off about 2 points and making no recovery. The decline in the grangers and Pacifics was in part due to reports of frost in the corn belt.

The selling of Baltimore and Ohio was accompanied by reports that insiders had discounted the extra stock issue.

The United States Steel shares were heavy, with little or no evidence of support. There were movements in other stocks.

A Wonderful Echo.

At a watering place in the Pyrenees the conversation at table turned upon a wonderful echo to be heard some distance off on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

"It is astonishing," said an inhabitant of the Garonne. "As soon as you have spoken you hear distinctly the voice leap from rock to rock, from precipice to precipice, and as soon as it has passed the frontier the echo assumes the Spanish accent."—Pearson's Weekly.

Knights of Old.

The knights of the days of chivalry were so well protected by their armor that they were practically invincible to all ordinary weapons. Even when dismounted they could not be injured save by the misericordia, a thin dagger, which penetrated the chains of the armor. In more than one battle knights fallen from their horses could not be killed until their armor had been broken up with axes and hammers.

Good Cooks.

"If all sick people had good cooks," says the London Hospital, "how much greater might be the proportions of recoveries!" The value of the patent foods which are advertised so much lies largely, it says, in the ease with which they are prepared for the table.

A Half Partner.

A.—That woman who just went out is the partner of your joys and sorrows, I suppose.

B.—She's partner to my joys all right, but when it comes to my sorrows she slips over to see her mother.

Rodrick—Say, old man, you have been through the ordeal of proposing. What does a fellow do after he pops the question?

Van Albert—Why, he questions pop, of course.—Chicago News.

Hewitt—When I was on the boat the other night, I had a lower berth, but I dreamed I was sleeping in the upper berth.

HEAD OF NAVAL ACADEMY.

Captain Brownson a Man of Good Record and Wide Experience.

President Roosevelt has paid a signal honor to Captain Willard Herbert Brownson, U. S. N., in appointing him to the post of superintendent of the Naval academy. Captain Brownson will take charge in October, when Commander Richard Wainwright will resume duty afloat. The superintendency of the academy, important at all times, will be even more so in the near future, when the recently authorized improvements and enlargements are to be consummated.

Although Captain Brownson entered the navy just too late to see service in the civil war, he has a brilliant record. He is a native of New York state and is fifty-seven years old. He was appointed a cadet in 1861 and was graduated with honors four years later.

After acting in a number of capacities afloat and ashore and seeing service against pirates in the gulf of Mexico, Commander Brownson was assigned to the Detroit in 1893. He attracted worldwide attention soon after by defying the Brazilian insurgent admiral at Rio Janeiro.

CAPTAIN WILLARD H. BROWNSON.

Just before the Spanish war Captain Brownson was assigned to the task of purchasing war vessels and munitions in Europe. During the war he commanded the Yankee, and since 1900 he has been in charge of the battleship Alabama. He will reach flag rank during his term of office at Annapolis.

Captain Brownson is universally conceded to be one of the ablest officers in the service. One of his superiors said of him a few years ago: "Brownson is poise and pluck personified. He is a fighter by instinct, and his instincts are quick and sure. For a thoroughly trained, all around man, to be depended on absolutely in any emergency, and with unlimited judgment and courage, we have no abler officer in the navy than Brownson."

The Hopping Rheumatism.

"Yes," said the old man, "'peared lak he wuz give over inter de han's er Satan, en Satan 'flicted him wid de hoppin' rheumatism. Fust it wuz in one place, en den it wuz another, but he went ter prayin' ter be relieve' of it, en one day, whilst it wuz a-hoppin' fum one j'int ter another, it hopped into his wooden leg, an' he pulled off de leg an' th'owed it in de fire, en it en de rheumatism wuz teetotally consumed."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Generous Empress.

It is said that one morning at breakfast a general related to the emperor the misfortunes of a brither officer who "because he had not 15,000 francs must be dishonored." While the emperor questioned further particulars Eugenie flew to her room and, returning with a package of banknotes, said, "Take them, general, and never tell me his name." And his name the generous empress never knew.

FOUND HIS WIFE

BUT SHE IS MARRIED TO ANOTHER MAN.

Pennsylvania Man's Hunt for Missing Spouse Leads to a Sensation.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special)—Lycurgus Crossman, a farmer of West Sunbury, Pa., came here today in search of his wife and child. He found his wife married to another man and unwilling to give up the little one. They lived together for six years in Butler county, Pa., and they were anything but happy ones.

Four years ago when Jessie, the youngest, was four months old Mrs. Crossman took the baby, leaving the other two children, and left home. After much wandering she wound up at Lisbon and went to work as a house keeper for William Gamble, a stone mason, 68 years old. Though but 28 years of age she married Gamble on Nov. 6, 1901. She soon concluded that she had not found her affinity and left Gamble for John Griffith, with whom she is now living.

All this time Crossman had never heard from his absent spouse. Six weeks ago he started in search of her and found her here. With Sheriff Leonard he visited the Griffith home this morning. The interview was a stormy one, Mrs. Crossman told him he could not have the child; also that she would knock his brains out if he did not go away and leave her alone. The interested parties will have a meeting before Justice Dickinson this evening to see if their troubles can be patched up.

A Clever Pickpocket.

In Paris two police officers recently got upon the track of a pickpocket. They surprised him in the act at the omnibus bureau and followed him in hot pursuit. He was a thin, poorly clad young fellow. In the Rue Rochechonaut, however, he suddenly disappeared. Judging that he had slipped into one of the houses they set themselves to watch for his reappearance. The thief in the meantime had entered a bathing establishment, and after a refreshing bath entered the box of another bather and calmly clothed himself in the smart suit he found there, then passed proudly and peacefully out before the very eyes of his pursuers. The climax of humor came when the other bather, arrayed in the rags of the pickpocket, was grabbed by the officers of the law at the door and dragged off to the station house. With some difficulty the situation was explained; but the pickpocket is still laughing.

Make the Most of Your Gifts.

Personality has done wonders with both heredity and environment. It has made moderate gifts accomplish marvelous things. Men with moderate gifts, by patient and persistent application have put to shame the splendidly equipped, who have indolently frittered away their patrimony. Out of the most untoward surroundings men have found their way to the grandest achievements. The boy from the log cabin has outstripped the boy from the palace. The barefooted boy has outstripped the boy of pampered indulgence. The plodder has outstripped the genius. The tortoise has passed the hare. Whether a man be richly endowed or moderately endowed, his success will depend on the use he makes of what God has given him.—Independent.

POTTERY MAKING IN NEW JERSEY

Valuable Statistics on the Rise and Growth of the Industry at Trenton.

EFFECT OF COAL FAMINE

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., September 13.—The special committee appointed several weeks ago by the Mercer County Central Labor union to gather statistics of the pottery industry in this city has completed its work. The committee filed its report at a meeting last night. It will place it on file for reference for the several pottery labor organizations, which when disputes arise, are often called upon to consult statistics which are not always available. The central body is making a specialty of gathering reports for the several allied trades which when completed will be distributed in book form. The report begins with a short description of the manner in which clay products are mined, giving the location in New Jersey where the various kinds of material are found. With the exception of some porcelain clays found in the northern part of the state and some in Mercer county, substantially all the valuable clays and sands are mined in Middlesex county, which is the home of the terra cotta industry.

In relating the history of pottery in New Jersey the report reads:

"The first pottery works in New Jersey were erected at Old Bridge, Middlesex county, but the first white ware with any pretentions to artistic beauty was made by the American Pottery company at Jersey City in 1829.

"In 1852 the pottery industry of Trenton was begun by James Taylor in partnership with a man named Speeler. The Centennial exhibition in 1876 opened a new era in the pottery industry. The ivory porcelain and Parian vases exhibited there by Trenton manufacturers attracted much attention and greatly lessened the popular prejudice in favor of foreign made pottery. The stimulus thus given called into existance many new establishments, some of which afterwards became famous. Heretofore there had been little disposition on the part of practical master potters to go beyond the making of such ware as was put to ordinary uses. But employes and workmen grew in experience and skill and the reputation of Trenton pottery products became firmly established."

According to the report there are now 32 potteries in this city, representing a capital of nearly $8,000,000. $4,928,952 is represented in real estate. They are controlled by 42 proprietors and firm members who employ 238 salaried officials and clerks at salaries aggregating nearly $300,000 a year. The total number of men employed, including wage earners and piece workers is 4,289 whose yearly wages amount to $2,343,754.

The total cost of the materials used last year was $1,196,291 divided as follows: Clay, $292,500, fuel, $287,198, packing materials, $128,769, and miscellaneous, $487,914. The total value of products was nearly $5,000,000, showing a vast increase over the census report for 1900, which was $1,785,142.

Of this amount $751,444 represents the sale of cream colored ware and $442,354 was realized on white granite pieces.

Semi-vitreous porcelain brought $194,870. Bone china, delft and hell-eck ware brought a return or $42,000. Sanitary ware, which is coming to be the important branch of the local pottery industry, brought returns reaching nearly $2,000,000.

Solid porcelain bath and laundry tubs which is practically a new line of industry commanded $275,973. Electrical supplies of the same grade of clay together with porcelain door-knobs and hardware trimmings aggregate over $225,000. Terra cotta, fire and other clay products are credited with $83,160.

The machinery of the different plants is as follows: Disintegrators, 60; agitators, 70; slip pumps, 43; lawns, 48; clay presses, iron, 26, wood, 39. The other paradhernalia is set forth in the report as follows: Pug-mills, 45, sagger mills, 58, wad mills, 31, jiggers, 166, and all other machines numbering 562. There are 152 up draft kilns, 33 with down draft and 62 decorating kilns.

Terra cotta, brick and tile are given a prominent place in the report which was only originally intended for statistics concerning the pottery industry.

The present coal famine may completely revolutionize pottery in this city. This is confined principally to the rougher grades of ware which are now being burned in kilns fired with soft coal. This condition was made necessary by the failure of the manufacturers to secure anthracite coal and nearly all in order to burn bituminous coal had their kilns remodeled. Since the soft coal has been given a trial those manufacturing a rougher grade of ware are not likely to go back to hard coal because of the cheapness of the other grade which they claim answers the purpose very well.

Charles M. Doneaghue, proprietor of the Trenton Stilt, Spur and Pin works, in talking to the News Review correspondent yesterday concerning the advisability of soft coal said:

"Before the present coal famine all of my kilns were so constructed as to burn only hard coal. When I learned that hard coal could not be procured I had them remodeled at an expense of $500 each.

I now find that bituminous coal is little adapted to firing materials made from a coarser grade of clay than is anthracite. In the first place it is cheaper and the kiln heats quicker. Even when the coal strike does end I do not think that I shall again use hard coal."

The few minor disputes which arose in some of the sanitary shops over the new sanitary list have been amicably adjusted. The trouble started in the Keystone pottery, when one of the shop foremen tried to place his version upon certain conditions provided for in the list. His ruling met with a protest from the employes, with the result that the trouble received several airings before the Sanitary Ware Pressers' Local No. 45. A committee which was appointed secured a peaceful settlement after several conferences with the owners of the plant.

Vice President Hutchins, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, has returned home after visiting East Liverpool and Baltimore, which was his home before coming to this city.

YOUNG MAN SUED

Charged With Paternity of a Child Born in the County Infirmary.

Miss Laura Munsey, the young woman found in a helpless and pitiable condition under the Jethro bridge on the evening of August 11, and who was taken in charge the next day by the infirmary directors and later was placed in the country infirmary by them, has made information against a young man, Herman Willison, in 'Squire Riddle's court, at Lisbon, charging him with being the father of her child, which was born shortly after her commitment to the institution. Willison was arrested and his case was set for a hearing in 'Squire Riddle's court yesterday, and he was placed under $300 bond.

Miss Munsey made the information a few days after the birth of her child and a warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Leonard. This official came to this city and searched for the man but to no avail. For quite a while Willison eluded the officer and finally tiring of his being hounded met Constable Powell and voluntarily surrendered. The constable took him before 'Squire McLane, who released him on a signed bond for his appearance before 'Squire Riddle.

A MALICIOUS FALSEHOOD

Published By a Sensation Monger on Two Successive Days.

Following the miserable fake published Wednesday by a local evening paper concerning "Big Six" Johnson, a former well known colored man of this city, whom that paper had as a fugitive from justice, charging him with the possible murder of Robert Gilmore at Finleyville, Pa., came another story which was written by the same pipesmoker, which is denounced nothing but a falsehood.

If the wind jammer really received the special from Alliance, as was claimed, he certainly has a confederate in that city of his own type. As was stated in the News Review last evening, the "Big Six" at Alliance is not wanted on the charge of murder and will not be arrested.

Acting Chief Dawson states that he received word from the chief of police at Alliance yesterday afternoon saying that "Big Six" was in Alliance on the day of the crime, and no suspicion rests upon him.

The Reason.

Pa—It is because they are supposed to be for-lawn, my son, but quite frequently it is living in clover to what it was before they became grass widows.—Boston Transcript.

progressing and that a debt of $13,000 is expected to be lifted this year. Several students of the German Wallace college, Berea, O., passed successful examinations for advancement. F. Maijens, J. Lanny and C. Rudin were ordained to the ministry and received into the conference. An invitation from the Third church of Cincinnati for the next conference was accepted unanimously.

In the afternoon Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald held a meeting of his cabinet of four presiding elders at the residence of Jacob Eisele, in the East End. The appointment of pastors for the several churches in the conference was decided. Announcement of these will be made Monday.

Among the standing committee meetings were those of the Bible cause, deaconess cause and church extension. The last named committee decided to distribute about $1,000 in relief.

The evening session was devoted to missions. Rev. H. Praeger, of Cincinnati, spoke upon the deaconess' work, saying a deaconess will soon be at work in this city. Rev. C. E. Severinghaus, of Nashville, Tenn., preached a missionary sermon. The conference treasurer reported that the receipts were $10,697, an increase of $794 over last year.

MINISTERS ARE AROUSED.

Trying to Prevent McGovern-Corbett Contest—Club Lawyers Say They Can't.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 13.—Rev. E. L. Powell, chairman of the ministers' committee of the city, which has taken up the fight against the McGovern-Corbett contest, scheduled to take place in this city Sept. 22, has received the replies to letters addressed to Governor Beckham and Mayor Grainger, of Louisville, protesting against the bout.

Governor Beckham replied that the matter would receive his very careful consideration. Mayor Grainger said: "As mayor, I assure you there shall be no violation of the law."

Attorneys for the Southern Athletic club advised Manager R. C. Gray yesterday that the fighters could not be enjoined and that the articles of agreement are in accordance with the state law governing boxing contests.

BOSS A. R. SHEPHERD DEAD.

Began and Carried Out Improvements Which Made Washington a Magnificent City.

Washington, Sept. 13.—A private telegram received here yesterday afternoon from Batopilas, Mexico, announced the death there yesterday morning of Alexander R. Shepherd, who was vice president of the board of public works of the District of Columbia during the territorial government of the District in 1871 and two years later governor of the District. He was 67 years of age. The cause of death was peritonitis, brought on by an attack of appendicitis. Mrs. Shepherd, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Merchant, who reside in Washington, were informed of the serious illness of the governor Thursday and left at once for Batopilas.

Governor Shepherd, as the executive officer of the board of public works, in spite of vigorous opposition, began and successfully continued improvements in all parts of the city, with the result that Washington became a magnificent capital. To the governor is given credit for nipping in the bud a project for the removal of the capital to some western city, which was warmly agitated at one time. At the expiration of his term as governor, in company with New York capitalists, he purchased the old Hacienda San Miguel silver mines at Batopilas, which in later years have proved profitable, and there he has since resided. He leaves a widow and seven children.

FIRED UPON MOROS.

Americans Dispersed Enemy and Had No Casualties.

Manila, Sept. 13.—A party of Moros who occupied a wooded hill fired into Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, during the night of Sept. 9. The Americans returned the fire spiritedly and dispersed the enemy. There were no casualties among the troops.

Captain John J. Pershing, of the Fifteenth infantry, commanding the American forces at Lake Lanao, Mindanao, visited the friendly natives formally, Sept. 10. He took with him a troop of cavalry, two companies of infantry and two Maxim guns. The friendlies welcomed the Americans cordially and their meeting was successful. Brigadier General Samuel S. Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, cables that the expects to reach Camp Vicars today, Sept. 13.

PRISONERS ESCAPED.

Bound and Gagged Keeper, at Dayton, O.—One Recaptured.

Dayton, O., Sept. 13.—Four prisoners, Joseph Parker, charged with murder; Ira Bechtel, forgery; William Hickey, horse stealing, and Edward Williams, pocket picking, escaped from the county jail shortly after midnight Thursday night. Parker, who murdered his wife, attempted suicide following the murder, and his life for a long time hung by a thread. In consequence a watch was kept on him night and day, Joseph Dear being employed for that purpose.

The prisoners were kept on the second floor of the jail. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Night Turnkey Kershner, in the office of the first floor, was startled by an alarm signal from the second floor. Responding he found Dear greatly excited. He said the prisoners had bound and gagged him and cast him into a corner. They then cut a hole through the steel ceiling and attic floor to the roof, and then slid down lightning rods to freedom.

Dear is unable to give an intelligible explanation. He is held in the jail pending an investigation. Ira Bechtel was recaptured at his home, Green and Tecumseh streets, by Deputy Sheriff Wright. He was with his wife. He said that the prisoners had been engaged for five or six weeks in sawing their way out.

"Your cipher message of this morning received. The revolutionists are near the railroad line and the situation is serious. The transit across the isthmus is still open.

"Potter."

The cipher message referred to was one from the navy department announcing the sending of the Wisconsin and the Cincinnati to the scene. The Cincinnati has left Cape Haytien and will arrive at Colon tomorrow.

The Lieutenants of Morgan

One of the prime elements in the success of J. Pierpont Morgan, the head of the United States Steel corporation and other great industrial and financial enterprises, is his tact in surrounding himself with men competent to carry out the details of his vast projects. His chief lieutenants are George W. Perkins and Charles M. Schwab. The former looks after the Wall street interests of the great financier, while the latter, until recently compelled to take a temporary rest on account of health, managed the affairs of the corporation controlling eight-tenths of the steel output of this country which Mr. Morgan's genius as a promoter brought into being.

wholly dissimilar, there is much in their careers that is analogous. Both are comparatively young men and possessed of remarkable energy and business sagacity. Mr. Perkins was born on Jan. 31, 1862, and Mr. Schwab on Feb. 18 of the same year. Each began at the lower rung of the ladder, though in widely separated spheres, and both have risen to eminence in the financial world with almost meteoric rapidity.

Mr. Perkins was the son of an insurance agent of moderate means in Chicago, where he received his early training. He was even at an early age remarkably quick and accurate at figures, though he cared very little for other studies. His business career was marked with unusual success from its very beginning, which was in a humble position in the Chicago office of the New York Life Insurance company. He became successively bookkeeper, cashier, inspector of agencies and superintendent of the western department. Then he was called to the home office of the company in New York and leaped almost at a bound into the third vice presidency.

From that time forward until he became associated with Mr. Morgan there was not a big loan made or a large investment financed by the company that Mr. Perkins did not know all about, and in most of them he was the guiding spirit.

He was instrumental to a large degree in putting up the big marble building that is the monument of the company on Broadway in New York. He went to Europe and reorganized general agencies there and then came back to reorganize them here. He introduced reforms and suggested policies that attracted the attention of business men.

Mr. Morgan knew of them, as he has known for a long time of the doings of many young men in the mercantile field with a capacity for executive management, a good head for figures and above all an ability to keep their own counsel.

One day Mr. Perkins received an offer from Mr. Morgan to get out of the insurance business and go into his office. It was an opportunity that few men would care to throw away, irrespective of salary considerations. It was said at the time that Morgan gave Mr. Perkins nearly triple the salary he got with the insurance company and that he received $12,000 a year with the latter.

However this may be, it is evident that for the business sagacity and executive ability that he brings to the aid of the great financier's big enterprises he receives an ample reward. Mr. Perkins lives in one of the most palatial residences on Riverside drive, overlooking the Hudson.

For ten years or more Mr. Perkins has been an influential man in financial circles in New York, but not in a manner that was calculated to bring his name much before the public. It is only since his name appeared as going to Ohio for a conference with Senator Hanna as to a possible settlement of the coal strike that he has begun to be talked about. Since then he has been much in the public eye, particularly during the time Mr. Morgan was in Europe, when he was in direct control of the latter's vast interests.

The confidence which Mr. Morgan has in Mr. Perkins and the close relations between them were aptly illustrated by a recent incident. Upon his return the other day from Europe Bishop Potter consulted Mr. Morgan as to the status of the coal strike and the prospect of settlement.

"Go to my office and ask Perkins," was the sole reply of the great man who controls steel and iron and railroads as the player moves the figures on a chessboard.

Mr. Morgan's other lieutenant, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, is perhaps not so closely allied to him as Mr. Perkins and operates in a very different field, though he is no less an important factor in his enterprises. No career in American industrial life has been more spectacular than that of Mr. Schwab. Born amid very humble surroundings and self educated, he was at the age of thirty-nine elected president of the largest combine in the world, the United States Steel corporation, at a salary generally understood to be $1,000,000.

In the steel industrial combination Mr. Schwab is generally considered as the representative of Andrew Carnegie, who holds a prior lien on the entire property of the corporation in the $305,000,000 of bonds paid to him for his Carnegie steel mills, of which Mr. Schwab was then president.

In dates and facts Mr. Schwab's meteoric career may be briefly summarized: Born at Williamsburg, Pa., forty years ago of poor parents, he attended a small elementary school until he was sixteen years of age and then began clerking in a grocery store at $2.50 a week. At eighteen he obtained work in the Edgar Thomson Steel works, operated by Andrew Carnegie at Braddock, Pa., at a dollar a day. He was set to driving stakes and did it so well that within six months he became assistant engineer.

Just seven years after he entered the Carnegie concern he was sent as chief engineer, then at the age of twenty-five, to rebuild the great Homestead steel plant.

In 1887 he became superintendent of the Homestead works, and five years later he was made general superintendent of the Thomson works. He subsequently built the great steel rail mill and practically reconstructed the entire plant, receiving at this time a salary of $35,000 a year.

In 1896 he was elected a member of the board of managers and in 1897 president of the Carnegie steel mills. He drew a salary of $50,000, with an interest in the amount of business done by the company. Then followed the election to the United States Steel corporation presidency in 1901, the position which he now occupies.

Since that time Mr. Schwab has been a resident of New York and has been an interesting figure in the social and financial world. He is many times a millionaire and spends his money freely, both for his own gratification and for benevolent purposes.

Mr. Schwab recently purchased a lot on Riverside drive, in New York, not far from the residence of Mr. Perkins, on which he is to build a home which it is said will be the most gorgeous private residence in America. The entire investment, house and lot, is expected to amount to about $5,000,000.

Mr. Schwab took a trip to Europe last winter, during which time he was almost continually in the public eye. First he went to Monte Carlo. Extravagant reports came back by cable of his winnings and losses at the gambling table. There was widespread comment upon these reports, and it was currently reported in Wall street, though subsequently denied, that J. P. Morgan & Co. cabled to Mr. Schwab inquiring into the truth of the reports and advising no more gambling. The stories of the Monte Carlo winnings and losses thereupon ceased.

When next heard of, Mr. Schwab was in Vienna. He was accorded a most gracious reception by the emperor of

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

Austria, and it was reported that the emperor wanted to see Mr. Schwab again, but found it impossible to arrange it. Then he went to London, and King Edward and he had a half hour's talk, the details of which were more or less fully reported.

A short time ago Mr. Schwab was taken suddenly ill while driving at Atlantic City, where he has a country residence, and is now taking a vacation for his health. He, however, still retains his position as president of the United States Steel corporation, and his close friends declare that his illness is not of a serious character.

Railroad Time Tables.

The genius to arrange a railroad time card, or time table, so that it may be readily, easily and accurately understood by the occasional traveler is not yet born. Perhaps he will have to be made. But no matter how much the patrons of a road may be mystified the management takes particular pains to supply a special card "for the government and information of employees only." This table is so simple that a child can understand it. The second page usually contains a table showing the rate of speed required per mile for a train to travel a given number of miles in an hour. It starts at fifteen miles an hour, which is four minutes to the mile, and goes as high as 100 miles an hour, or a mile in thirty-six seconds, and shows 200 subdivisions.

This card gives locations of regular water stations, yard limits, situations of standard clocks, maximum speed of freight trains between different towns, what days are holidays, speeds at which trains may cross bridges at various hours and a list of all stations and trains. It is likely, of course, that were similar cards furnished to the traveling public there would be no abatement of fool questions. Besides, it is not to the interest of a railroad company to take the public too entirely into its confidence.—New York Press.

Who Executed Charles I.?

In the burial register of Whitechapel under the year 1649 is the following entry:

"June 21st. Richard Brandon, a man out of Rosemary lane. This Brandon is held to be the man who beheaded Charles the First."

A less distinguished candidate for the infamy was one William Howlett, actually condemned to death after the restoration for a part he never played and only saved from the gallows by the urgent efforts of a few citizens who swore that Brandon did the deed. Brandon was not available for retribution. He had died in his bed six months after Charles was beheaded and had been hurried ignominiously into his grave in Whitechapel churchyard. As public executioner of London he could hardly escape his destiny, but it is said that remorse and horror shortened his days. In his supposed "Confession," a tract widely circulated at the time, he claims that he was "fetched out of bed by a troop of horse" and carried against his will to the scaffold; also that he was paid £30, all in half crowns, for the work and had "an orange stuck full of cloves and a handkerchief out of the king's pocket." The orange he sold for 10 shillings in Rosemary lane.—Harper's Magazine.

Washington's Birthday.

Washington's birthday was made a legal holiday by vote of the Massachusetts legislature April 15, 1856; therefore Feb. 22, 1857, was first a legal holiday. For many years previous Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis held a reception at her home on Feb. 22, to which all the people of the city of Boston were invited. Her house was open to the public on that day, and before and after the day became a legal holiday all the military companies of Boston would parade past her house on the 22d. Probably the first occasion of Washington's birthday being recognized was Feb. 12, 1781. That was by the French troops at Newport, R. I. As the 11th fell on Sunday, the celebration was held on the 12th. This was according to the old style of reckoning.

Checking a Hemorrhage.

Even a very slight hemorrhage is always startling, but it does not necessarily mean anything dangerous. It may be caused by a slight disarrangement of the stomach as well as by a disease of the lungs or heart. No one but an experienced physician should decide this question, however. Let the patient lie quietly and give him cold drinks until a physician comes. A little salted water is a simple, familiar household remedy for such cases. Quiet and rest are positively essential if the cause is a serious one.

THE COLLECTOR WHO KNEW

An Illustration of the Danger of Being Too Self Confident.

"The trouble with you fellows is you want things, but you know nothing about 'em. You come over here and carry home a lot of truck that a European collector wouldn't give house room, and when you see a really good thing you don't know it, or you won't pay a price for it unless some dealer makes you. You see, you don't know; that's what's the matter; how can you? Nobody in America wanted antiques before the Centennial. If you'd lived here tweaty years, like me, you'd learn something, you'd find out that collecting isn't a thing of money, but knowing."

We had been walking in Venice down a narrow calle while the collector was speaking. "Look at that old brass scale," he resumed, pointing to a fish stall in the little outdoor market on which we had just emerged. "There's a gem, not very old, but of the finest seventeenth century Venetian work. If you saw that in a New York dealer's, all cleaned up, you'd give up a good deal for it; but you'd 'a' passed it by a dozen times if I hadn't spoken about it. See that old junk stand over there? I never pass a thing like that. You can never tell what you may pick up—if you only know."

We had scarcely reached the stand when the collector thrust out his hand with the swiftness of a hawk darting on its prey, and swooped upon a little jewel box.

"Carnelian! Russian, I should say, from the Ural mountains. It's not of great value, but it's a pretty little thing, if it was cleaned up. It's mine, anyway." To the keeper of the stall: "Quanto?"

The Venetian slowly uncoiled himself and came down from the church steps, where he had been sleeping.

"Does the signore want the pretty trifle? The signore knows its value better than I, and he'll be generous?"

"I'll give you a lira for it. It isn't worth it, but one mustn't be hard with the poor."

"I had hoped I should get five!"

"Well, I'll make it two."

"It is the signore's."

"There, you see!" exultingly chuckled the collector. "That's what it is to know. An exquisite carnelian Russian jewel casket for 40 cents! You'd never have thought of looking among a lot of rusty old iron for a thing like that, would you?"

While speaking he held the box with a miser's clutch.

"May I see it, please?"

He reluctantly handed it to me as though fearing I might make a sudden dash down the calle with his treasure.

"Phew!" said I contemptuously, handing the box back to him. "It's not carnelian at all. It's glass, nothing but glass."

"Glass!" drawing a magnifier from his waistcoat pocket and mutely examining the purchase. "I'm—I'm—afraid—it is!" he said sheepishly.

"Of course it is."

"I—don't know," sadly. "Yes, it is glass! You see, it's so dirty. Oh, well, we all make mistakes at times. Do you want it?" disgust taking the place of sadness. "You can have it for a quarter."

"Well, I guess it's worth a quarter." I think my eyes must have snapped. "Yes."

And that is how an almost unique example of the cinque cento came into my collection of Venetian glass.—New York Post.

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

Financial Manager of The Coal Strike

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 13.—One of the most interesting figures among the men who have been conducting the business end of the anthracite miners' strike is that of William B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. As the financial manager of the strike he receives and disburses funds to the amount of $2,000,000 a month.

For the handling of this vast amount of money he receives a modest salary, of which he contributes 25 per cent to the relief fund. While half a million dollars of miners' money passes through his hands every week, probably not more than $2,000 a year goes to his own account for the services he renders.

Wilson is a Scotchman by birth, slow, frugal and absolutely trusted by his fellows. He is under bond to the United Mine Workers' association in the meager sum of $25,000. He is a round headed man with wide open blue eyes, set well apart, and he talks slowly and with great deliberation. He conveys the impression of possessing great caution, application and fixity of purpose, and he handles the vast sums of money that the mails bring to his desk every morning as if it were a commercial product and not the legal tender of the country. He is assisted in his work by about a dozen young women, who handle the money, keep the books and attend to the vast amount of correspondence that is necessary to conduct the business of the association. Wilson designed the system by which the association's funds are handled, and it is simplicity itself.

The headquarters of President Mitchell are in Wilkesbarre, from which place he directs the miners' strike, while Wilson stays here in Indianapolis and collects and distributes the sinews of war. Indianapolis is the general headquarters of the association because it is the geographical center of the coal mining industry of the United States. Mitchell's office is here, and here he can be found in times of peace, directing the fortunes of the association.

The career of the man is as interesting as his present occupation and office. He was born in Blantyre, Scotland, and came to America when he was seven years old. When he was nine years old, he was a mine worker. His father was a miner, but owing to an injury to his back was able to undercut a coal bank, but unable to do his loading into the cars. This the boy did for him.

At the age of eleven years he was a half member of the Miners and Laborers' Benevolent association. In 1876, when he was fourteen years old, he was local secretary of the union, and he was only nineteen years of age when he was dismissed from employment in the mines because of his active connection with the union. He went to Iowa and dug coal and worked on railroads and returned to Pennsylvania, where he again got occupation in the mines. In 1885 young Wilson was elected a member of the district executive board in Pennsylvania and five years later was a party to the organization of the United Mine Workers' association.

He became a member of the national executive board of that body in 1891 and was then elected president of District No. 2 of Bituminous, Pa. May 8, 190 , he was appointed to fill the vacancy created in the office of secretary-treasurer and was elected to it in 1901 and re-elected in 1902. He is supreme financial officer of the organization.

Such in brief has been the career of the man in whom the mine workers of the country place such absolute trust that they send him their contributions without hesitancy. Wilson is now forty years old, but in spite of the fact that he went to work in the mines when only nine years old he has been able through the qualities of persistence and concentration, which he possesses to a marked degree, to educate himself. He has read much and is a competent mining engineer.

WITH THE WRITERS.

[Special Correspondence.]

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 13.—Will N. Harben was taken to task the other day by the original of one of the characters in his new novel, "Abner Daniel," which the Harpers have just issued. The mountaineer and ex-moonshiner called on the author in his office in Dalton, Ga. Mr. Harben saw by the angry fire in the man's eye that serious trouble was brewing.

"Look y' heer," said the visitor, "folks says you've been pokin' fun at me in a book. I don't know whether it's so or not, but I'm heer to say ef it is me 'n' you'll hitch in short order."

The man, the prototype of Mr. Harben's Pole Baker, was a powerful fellow, who had had as many shooting scrapes as he had fingers and toes, and the worst part of the affair was that the author had really drawn his portrait in the novel. Harben deliberated and then said:

"Mr. ——, I know you are a fair man and will do what is right. Here is a copy of the book. Sit down and read it, and then, if you desire, I will give you satisfaction."

The man flushed under the unusual proposition, but finally consented and sat down near the author's desk. All the afternoon he bent over the book. Mr. Harben went in and out of the office several times without causing the reader to raise his head.

Finally he laid the book down and said sheepishly: "I don't think I kin kick. I was a little afeerd you'd made me show the white feather, but that feller they say is like me's got a sight more grit 'n' I have. Huh!" admiringly. "He'd fight a circular saw bare handed. No, I don't think I kin kick."

One of the most fascinating novels of the Revolutionary period thus far given to the world is "My Captive," which has just been published by D. Appleton & Co. The author is Joseph A. Altsheler, the Kentucky novelist and journalist, whose books, "The Sun of Saratoga," "A Soldier of Manhattan," "In Circling Camps," etc., have given the author a well deserved reputation as a writer of excellent historical fiction. "My Captive" is a pretty Tory, and her captor is Philip Marcel, a Continental soldier, serving under Generals Greene and Morgan. He says:

"I looked at the prisoner, and I was vexed by doubt. With a battle on one side of him and a woman on the other what is a man to do? She returned my gaze with great, pure eyes, which seemed to say I was a villain, a monster. Yet I had been doing my exact duty, that of a faithful soldier in the cause of the Continental congress and freedom, while she—a woman, a girl—had presumed to turn from the things for which God intended her and to meddle with war. I was more than vexed—I was angry, angry at her for attempting such a task and angry at myself for being forced into a situation so full of troubles."

These are the opening lines of the story, and the adventures of the fair Tory and the man she calls "rebel" fill 281 very interesting pages. Mr. Altsheler has the true art of the story teller, and "My Captive" takes the reader's attention prisoner and holds it from first page to finis.

The new novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn," which has been running as a serial, will soon be published in book form. This novel is Mr. Smith's longest one as well as his most ambitious. The chief part of the story deals with the life of an artist in New York, and Mr. Smith pictures artistic and literary life in New York during the last thirty five years, with which he has been so familiar. The early part of the story is practically the history of the end of one civilization—that of the old south, where the hero was born, and from which he is transferred to New York studios and so called Bohemian cafes.

WHY WHITE RETIRES.

Withdrawal of Embassador to Germany Due to Advancing Age.

Andrew D. White, United States embassador to Germany, whose resignation of the post at Berlin goes into effect on Nov. 1, will be seventy years of age on the day fixed for his retirement. The reason assigned for his withdrawal from the post which he has so creditably filled is his advancing years.

Mr. White has represented this country at Berlin since 1897. Much of the time his duties were trying and complicated, especially preceding and during the Spanish-American war, when the sympathy of the German court seemed to favor our enemies.

Mr. White's diplomatic career began when he was only twenty-two years old, just after his graduation from Yale, when he was appointed an attache at St. Petersburg. Later he was president of Cornell university, resigning in 1885. Since then he has been minister to Russia and also a member of the Venezuela commission.

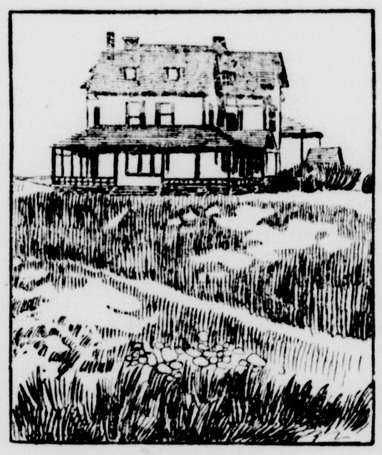

The untimely death of Mr. White's son last year is said to have hastened his decision to retire to private life.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You may prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get the reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

WHERE HOPS GROW

[Special Correspondence.]

Pleasanton, Cal., Sept. 13—Very few people appreciate the growing importance of the hop industry in this country and the present large scale on which it is conducted. Enough is now grown here to supply not only the home demand, but to help out thirsty Englishmen, 65,000 bales being annually exported to Great Britain. The acreage in both countries is the same (55,000), but the demand is different, more beer being consumed by Englishmen than in any other country in the world, not even excluding Germany, figuring on a per capita basis. It will thus be seen that a hop growing country has one big claim to supremacy in the world of trade.

The drawback is that hops will not grow everywhere. They demand warm, dry valleys removed from the sea. Of the area under cultivation in this country 7,500 acres are in California, twice as many as in any other state in the Union, and the biggest single hop farm is at this place, where 500,000 vines grow under one wire, covering the country with a canopy of pale green vines and blossoms and exhaling a heavy odor, which is most oppressive.

The entire product of this farm, amounting to 2,800 bales, is sent direct to a famous maker of pale ale in London and brings in to the growers about $110,000 every year. So highly does the brewer value these hops that he pays from 2 to 4 cents more a pound for them than for any other hops from the same locality.

The entire hop output of America is worth about $16,000,000 annually, and to harvest this crop an army of 240,000 men, women and children is employed as pickers alone, for there are 72,000,000 hop vines to be stripped. The picking has to be done by hand within the month of September, when the blossoms are at their best. The work is not very arduous or difficult, but it demands speed, and for this reason the army of hop pickers must be concentrated in short order at the various farms throughout the country.

The pickers form a picturesque settlement while the season is in progress.

THE BELLE OF THE HOPFIELD.

They come from the countryside, from the mountains and from the cities and camp at the scene of their labors. Their tents, thatched huts and wigwams form a wonderfully attractive picture for the space of a few weeks, and then the pickers, their work done, disappear like magic for another year. The average pay is 85 cents for every 100 pounds of blossoms gathered, and each worker earns on an average $1.05 a day. Their pay, however, is based on the prevailing price for hops. Some families come to hopfields and work as a unit, earning about $10 every day that the season lasts. The biggest individual picking recorded was 458 pounds by a young man of nineteen, who thus earned $3.80 for his day's work.

The Pleasanton plantation is notable in that it employs only white labor and does not allow intoxicants to be used on the premises. The result is that a superior class of workers is attracted to the place, and not a few women and young girls are to be seen busy in the fields. Each harvester pulls down a vine and picks off its hundreds of little, light blossoms, dropping them into a large open basket. When the basket is filled, its contents are transferred to a large sack.

Hop picking has but two drawbacks. One is the so called hop poisoning, which is a sort of prickly heat or rash sometimes produced by contact of face and arms with the nettlelike fuzz on the stalks of the hop vine. It does not affect all pickers. The other is the dark staining of the hands resulting from the resin of the blossom. It may be removed by rubbing with the crushed green leaves of the hop.

"COMPULSORY" LAW

WOULDN'T BIND WORKINGMEN

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, came here last night and was presented with about $3,000 by the organized workmen of this city for the benefit of the striking mine workers, at a joint mass meeting of the United Trades association, the Allied Building Trades and the Central Labor union, held at Labor Lyceum hall. The money was gathered by these organizations through house-to-house contributions, jars placed on street corners and other places and proceeds from picnics. After the relief money had been formally presented to him Mr. Mitchell made a short address. He said, in part, that the spokesmen of the operators contended they were making a fight for individual liberty and for a principle, but Mr. Mitchell claimed the operators are battling to give wages satisfactory only to the coal trust. He said the strikers are just as firm today as they were four months ago.

Three Killed by Police.

The coal operators, he said, have characterized the miners' union as an "irresponsible and lawless body." He admitted there had been some lawlessness, but "of the six persons killed in the coal fields since the strike was started, three were murdered by the coal and iron policemen." No one deplored lawlessness more than he did, even though committed by his own brother. He characterized most of the special policemen as "criminals and thugs."

Continuing, the miners' president said in part:

"Governor Stone is contemplating an extra session of the Pennsylvania legislature for the purpose of having enacted a compulsory arbitration law. The miners are willing to arbitrate, but they are not willing to have compulsory arbitration. They are not willing to enslave the workmen of Pennsylvania in order to get out of their difficulty. It has been the invariable rule for workmen throughout the country to abide by the decision of arbitration boards and also the rule for organized workmen to stand by their contracts."

He referred to the recent public statement of ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, of New York city, in which he said Mr. Mitchell was responsible for the anthracite strike and that he had ordered the bituminous miners to quit work, but they had refused. Mr. Mitchell denied these statements and also refuted Mr. Hewitt's claim that he has been a friend of labor. Mr. Hewitt, he said, is a director in the Erie railroad and a director in a very large coal company. "All of the men in the employ of Mr. Hewitt in West Virginia," Mr. Mitchell said, "are on strike, although he never told that to the public."

Frail Children Have to Work.

He pictured the young and frail children going to the mines and factories, when they ought to be in the schools, where they could receive an education and become good citizens of their country. He asked the citizens of Philadelphia to further assist the strikers. "We cannot win the strike alone," he said, in part, "but with the help of the trades unions of the country victory will be ours."

President Mitchell left here after 11 o'clock last night for Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Sept. 13.—Governor Stone said yesterday afternoon that there was no conflict between him and Senator Quay in attempting to settle the coal strike. He said: "Certainly not. I am glad to see that Senator Quay is moving in the matter. Everyone ought to do all that he can to help on a settlement."

CONFERENCE ON THE STRIKE.

Late Last Night Mitchell, Stone, Flinn and Others Get Together.

Harrisburg, Sept. 13.—A conference was held at the executive mansion last night between Governor Stone, Senator William Flinn and M. K. McMullin, of Pittsburg, President Mitchell and District Presidents Duffy, Fahy and Nichols, of the United Mine Workers, for the purpose of discussing means of settling the anthracite coal strike.

The conference was held at the suggestion of the governor, who has devised a plan by which he hopes to effect a settlement between the operators and miners without the necessity of an extra session of the legislature for the enactment of arbitration legislation.

The governor declined to outline his plan in advance of the conference and none of the other parties to it would make any statement until after they had seen the executive and heard his suggestions for ending the strike.

DEMOCRAT INTRODUCED A CODE.

Reading Interrupted by Adjournment of Ohio Senate—Friend of Foraker Addressed House.

Columbus, Sept. 13.—The senate was only in session about five minutes yesterday. Senator Royer introduced the York code bill, the only measure presented by a Democratic member, and the clerk was proceeding to read it, when he was interrupted by Senator Hosea, who moved an adjournment until Monday at 4:30 p. m. While only four or five members voted in favor of the motion, those opposed to it being given no opportunity to protest, the motion was declared carried by Senator Wirt, who was presiding.

Judge E. B. King, of Sandusky, one of the Republican leaders in Northwestern Ohio and a close friend of Senator Foraker, addressed the house yesterday on the constitutionality of municipal codes. He expressed the opinion that the Guerin amendment to cure the defects in the Cincinnati Traction company property, made by the decision knocking out the Bogers law, would be constitutional. Secretary Goldsmith, of the Ohio Federation of Labor, addressed the committee in a petition that an eight hour law be incorporated in the code.

A committee was appointed to present resolutions upon the anniversary of President McKinley's death. The house adjourned over until Monday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Pierce Dead.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Rev. Dr. William C. Pierce, a pioneer Methodist minister, of the Western Reserve, died yesterday at the residence of his granddaughter in this city. He was born in Peru, Berkshire county, Mass., in 1815, and was for a number of years a member of the faculty of Baldwin university, Berea, O. He had labored in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Await New Legislation.

Akron, O., Sept. 13.—The petit jury in common pleas court was discharged yesterday and there will be no more jury trials in Summit county until a new jury law is passed by the legislature. This is the result of the question raised in a damage case Tuesday that Summit county was working under a law to which it had no right.

Truth.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always near at hand, sits upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cowles, of Akron, O., have celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Sixty years ago he was a teacher at Oberlin college, when Rhoda Barnum, a student and he became sweethearts and soon after were married.

The annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of West Virginia elected officers at Wheeling as follows: T. M. Barnes, of Clarksburg, president; J. W. Leach, of Benwood, first vice president; J. Tregallis, of Grafton, second vice president; M. C. Whitlatch, of Parkersburg, third vice president; John C. Strobel, of Wheeling, secretary; Val Fruth, of Charleston, treasurer. The next convention will be held at Parkersburg.

Prof. Mac Mossman, of Newark, O., caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of his wife, Mrs. Annie Mossman, charging her with threatening to shoot him. Justice Atcherly had not more than issued the warrant for Mrs. Mossman's arrest than he was called upon to issue a similar one, Mrs. Mossman claiming she was afraid of her husband. Prof. Mossman met his wife in Huntington, W. Va., and their wedding followed in a few hours after the meeting.

The body of a man named William Holmes was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, at Pittsburg, by a track walker. The man had been struck by a train. His head was split open, and his brains were scattered over the tracks for some distance.

Chairman Thomas E. Burton and several members of the congressional rivers and harbors committee, accompanied by a number of Pittsburg rivermen, left on an inspection of the local harbors about Pittsburg.

Superintendent John McAleese, of the Pittsburg bureau of police, will probably show conclusively that he intends to strike at the heart of a system of managing disorderly houses that has sprung up in the city. He has practically completed the work preliminary to prosecutions of agents and owners of houses used to line the pockets of certain people.

Ralph J. Williams, 6½ years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Williams, of 1240 Talbot avenue, Braddock, Pa., died from the effects of a teaspoonful of carbolic acid administered by his parents by mistake for a medicine that had been prescribed by a physician.

A Kiss and a Bite.

In his volume, "The Kiss and Its History," Dr. Christopher Nyrop of the University of Copenhagen relates that in England in 1837 Thomas Saveland brought an action against Miss Caroline Newton, who had bitten a piece out of his nose for his having tried to kiss her by way of a joke. The defendant was acquitted, and the judge laid it down that "when a man kisses a woman against her will she is fully entitled to bite his nose if she so pleases."

"And eat it up, if she has a fancy that way," added a jocular barrister half aloud.

His Bluff Quickly Called.

"I want you to understand," he said "that I'm the master in this house."

"All right," she replied. "Go out and tell the cook that we're going to have company all next week."

Then he put on his hat and went away, making sarcastic remarks about people who were afraid to say their souls were their own.—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Well, Tommy, how does it taste?" asked his father.

"Why," replied Tommy, with a puzzled face, "it tastes like your foot's asleep."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

VANDERBILT'S FIANCEE.

Miss Neilson Is a Beauty and Has a Fortune of Her Own.

Miss Kathleen Gebhard Neilson, whose engagement to Reginald C. Vanderbilt has just been announced, is a member of the old New York family of Neilson and has an ample fortune in her own right.

Her father, who died several years ago, was prominent in New York society, and her mother was Miss Belle Gebhard, a sister of Fred Gebhard, the well known clubman.

Miss Neilson inherits the beauty of her mother. She is tall, shapely and in addition to being an excellent golfer, tennis player and swimmer is a highly accomplished horsewoman. She is a devout Catholic and is regular in attendance at confession and mass.

Until the engagement was announced Miss Kathleen spelled her Christian name with a "K," but the cards bearing the notice of her betrothal spelled it with a "C," and society is interested in knowing why the "K" was dropped. It is said that young Vanderbilt's mother was opposed to the marriage because of Miss Neilson's religion, but her objection has been overcome.

Reginald Calhoun Vanderbilt is the youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. He may still be called a college boy, for as he failed to pass his examinations in June at Yale he is supposed to be preparing to take his degree this fall.

When his father died, Reginald fell heir to $5,000,000 without conditions. Then there was a trust fund of $5,000,000 divided among the four children, share and share alike. The rest of his wealth he inherited from his grandfather's estate. The Vanderbilt millions are well invested, and his income is not less than $400,000 a year. Further, in the event of the death of his elder brother, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, without issue, Reginald would be the residuary legatee to an amount which is now more than $40,000,000. But that contingency is very remote.

A Fit Subject.

A Natural Question.

Little Walter was eating lunch, when he gave his arm a sudden shove, and, splash! down went his glass of milk.

"I knew you were going to spill that" said mamma angrily.

"Well, if you knew," queried Walter, "why didn't you tell me?"

Solving the Problem.

"What can I do for my little boy," asked mamma, "so that he won't want to eat between meals?"

"Have the meals ticker together," replied the young hopeful.

DOWN TO FACTS

Read What East Liverpool Citizens Say.

Get down to the facts of the matter. Don't take a stranger's word. It is easier to prove the truthfulness of statements made by citizens of East Liverpool than endorsement coming from some far away place. Read the following:

Mr. S. C. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across my back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W., pharmacy, and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation I have since purchased Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it, when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected of any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbors' experience and profit by his opinions."

19TH YEAR. NO. 217. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1902—TWELVE PAGES. TWO CENTS.

A Large Part of the Capital Stock Has Been Subscribed and Every Prospect Is Promising.

Irondale, Sept. 13. — (Special.) — Irondale is to have a new two-mill tin plant.

When the mills of the American Tin Plate company were shut down last May and most of the equipment removed to the plant in Chester the hardest blow ever realized in the town was struck.

Since that time business has been on a steady decline; the population has decreased at an alarming rate and until the present week everything pointed to an almost total disbandment of both population and business.

As a result of the moves of a score or more of the remaining enterprising residents the town now has excellent prospects of another boom, with the possibility of reaching a point in the industrial world far exceeding that attained prior to the removal of the mills.

A public meeting was held in the town hall last evening for the purpose of determining the action to be taken in having a two-mill plant installed. Quite a large crowd assembled and the meeting was considered a most successful one. Committees previously appointed made encouraging reports. The plant will be an independent concern and will be owned largely by local capital.

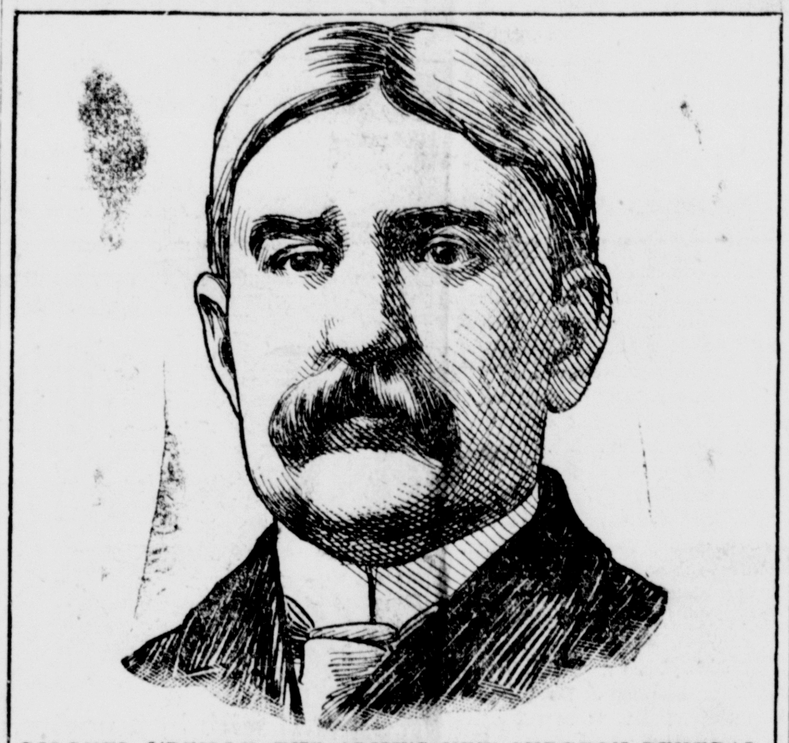

The committee on finances reported that over $20,000 had been subscribed and that they were confident that at least $25,000 more can be raised in the next few days. That the announced stockholders are confident of the project being a successful one was proven when a committee was appointed to apply for a charter.

The charter is to be made out in the name of the Irondale Tin & Sheet Mill company. The meeting adjourned without further action until next Friday evening, when it is expected that final arrangements will be made.

To erect and equip this plant as proposed it is estimated that $70,000 will be necessary. Of that amount $50,000 will be subscribed by local tin workers and business men. From other sources the remainder must come. No difficulty is anticipated in interesting outside capital to that extent. The mills will be operated absolutely independent of all other plants and will be under the supervision of men who will be not only workers in the plant, but stockholders, giving assurance that the financial interests will be attended to in a manner that will give good results to the stockholders.

The plant will be located on the old Furnace Hall property, which is owned by Manager William Banfield, of the American Tin Plate company. This property includes 80 acres of ground and a large building. The property has been optioned and can be purchased for $10,000. The building standing on the land will be put to excellent use, it being well adapted for a wash house.

Although it may be several months before work is commenced on the installation of the plant, the time is not far distant when the plans of those interested will be realized. All of the tin workers who own property in the town and who were compelled to depart to other milling localities will return. Over 100 men will be employed at the mills, and there are enough men who have personal interests in the town to fill the positions. After the mills are in full operation steps will be taken to enlarge the plant and then an influx of people will surely occur.

A MONUMENT DESERVED FOR A HISTORIC BATTERY

Columbus, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Captain T. D. Yost, of Wellsville, who commanded "Yost's Captured Battery," was here for the purpose of securing an appropriation for a monument for that body. Through inadvertance no provision was made by the legislature last winter when it appropriated funds for the erection of monuments in honor of Ohio troops on southern battlefields.

Captain Yost called on members of the Ohio battle monument commission and called their attention to the omission, which they promised to rectify. If an appropriation cannot be secured at the special session, one will likely be forthcoming at the next regular session. The battery was recruited from Columbiana Stark, Mahoning and Carroll counties and had an eventful career. The regiment was captured at Harper's Ferry, and after being exchanged was sent south. At Champion Hill the regiment assisted in the capture of rebel works, and among the equipment taken was a battery. Company F had previously been detached from the regiment and made the 26th Independant Battery of Ohio.

The command was unable to serve as an arm of the artillery, not having the necessary armament.

After the smoke of the engagement at Champion Hills had cleared away, General Gordon who was in command of the division approached Captain Yost, and pointing to the captured battery, said: "Captain, there's your battery; take it." The company at once took charge of the pieces of artillery, turned in all infantry arms and served through the remainder of the war as a battery.

C. A. SMITH'S TEWKSBURY WON AMID EXCITEMENT

Tewksbury, a gray gelding, owned by C. A. Smith, of this city, won the board of trade $1,000 purse at the Wheeling races by clearly demonstrating his superiority in speed and endurance, over all other horses in the race. He won the fourth, fifth and seventh heats with ease, and caused a demonstration against the starter. It was the greatest race of the fair.

There was a rather sensational incident in connection with this race. After winning the fourth and fifth heats, Tewksbury was brought out on the track with the only remaining horses which had heats to their credit, Lucette and Conqueror. Tewksbury was behaving badly and scored several times before the other horses. The fifth time they came down, Tewksbury was a half dozen lengths behind the others, but Starter Al. Bernard gave the word.

Instantly there was a storm of hisses in the grand stand, continuing for several seconds, mingled with cries of "Robber," "Get another starter," etc. With this disadvantage Tewksbury might have won the heat but for going off his feet on the last turn in coming into the stretch. When the driver stepped to the track he was surrounded by the crowd and given a reception which indicated that the start was very unsatisfactory. Then when Tewksbury was brought out on the track for the final heat the crowd cheered vociferously, and when the horse went under the wire an easy winner of the heat and race the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

A considerable sum was won and lost on the result. There was a delegation of Marietta sports who came up to back Lucette, and they lost heavily. They were very sore.

BREAD PAN AS BATH TUB CAUSED BOARDERS' FLIGHT

"Yes, 'Squire McCarron, we absconded during the hours of the night from the home of our landlady, Mrs. Ellen Maloney," said Seth Herbert, speaking for himself and brother Fred this morning. "But I want to tell you we had a good reason for so doing. I'll bet you won't blame us, either. We did it because we found the landlady's son taking a bath in the bread pan. Just think of that a minute! Do you suppose we wanted to live and eat at a house where the bread is flavored with the scales of a human?'

The 'squire could not help smiling even if it is against the rules of the court, but he answered not a word.

Seth and Fred are employed in local potteries. They boarded and roomed at the home of Mrs. Maloney in the East End until about a week ago, when, after darkness had fallen and while Mrs. Maloney was absent, they packed their grips and left for other quarters. Togetner they owed a bill of over $22 to Mrs. Maloney. She had their wages attached and it was while questioning the 'squire as to the legality of Mrs. Maloney's procedure that the above story was narrated.

The reason offered might be considered grounds for moving, but the young men will have to square the bill nevertheless.

PACKERS' LOCAL EXPELS NINE OF ITS MEMBERS

Following in the wake of the expulsion of Mouldmakers' local, No. 22, from the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, nine members of Packers' local, No. 25, all being employed as boss packers, were expelled from that local last evening at a meeting held in the Knights of Columbus hall. While an interesting meeting was expected by all the members of this local, such developments were not expected quite so soon. Reasons alleged to be similar to the charges brought against the mouldmakers are said to have been the cause of the action taken by No. 25 last evening against certain of its members.

It is averred that during or just before the joint conference between committees representing the Brotherhood and the Western Manufacturers' Potters association, a communication similar, in some respects to that drafted by the mouldmakers, was presented to the officers of the manufacturers' association. As the mouldmakers claimed they were satisfied with existing conditions, so it is claimed that the communication prepared by certain members of No. 25 contained intimated satisfaction. This fact, it is said, reached the ears of the officers and other members of No. 25 and charges were preferred against those members who were alleged to have been connected with the drafting of the communication. In course of time these members against whom charges had been preferred were notified of the fact and asked to appear for trial, but this trial never took place, the accused never appearing before the local for that purpose. Last evening nine of the members of No. 25 were expelled and were to be notified of the fact either today or within a reasonable time.

Members of the local were loath to talk of the action taken last night, and further interesting developments may be expected.

J. H. French and Christian Bowman, of Lisbon, and W. K. Gaston, of West Point, representing the county commissioners of Columbiana county, and J. W. Van Auker, M. Westerman and W. K. Wagner, of Youngstown, representing Mahoning county, met yesterday at the Seventh Avenue hotel, Pittsburg, for the purpose of making arrangements for the construction of a joint ditch for drainage purposes.

The ditch, which is about one mile in length, was constructed several years ago, and was calculated to drain a large tract of farm land lying at the northerly end of Columbiana county. The greater portion of the land through which the ditch passes is over the Mahoning county line. Recently it became clogged up, and it will require $3,000 for repairs. It was decided, if the property owners stand the assessment, there was nothing in the way of the progress of the work. It will be necessary, however, for the request to come in the shape of a petition, so that the several properties will come in for their assessments in the regular way.

Prosecuting Attorney J. H. Brookes, of this city, and Prosecutor W. F. Gibson, of Mahoning county, accompanied the parties as their legal advisers.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

Was the High School Boys' Dance Given at Rock Springs Pavilion.

One of the most enjoyable events of the entire social season was the dance given at Rock Springs park last evening by the high school boys. The programs were neat and handsome. On their back they bore the membership roster.

The music, by Rocereto's orchestra, of Rochester, was received with great enthusiasm. The dancing lasted until 1 o'clock.

At Mrs. Altafer's residence near the Harmony school house, Eakin will meet the carrier from Negley. Any mail that is to be exchanged will be transferred at that point.

It is expected that the Azelda postoffice will be abolished.

ROAD CASE DECIDED

After Protracted Litigation, In Favor of the Plaintiffs.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special.)—The case of John Matthews et al against James Faloon and A. Heasley has been decided by Judge Boone in favor of the plaintiffs. Matthews made application September 2, 1895, to the county commissioners to have the road leading through his farm and the farms of James Faloon, Heasley and Rosanna Mellon, in Franklin township, vacated. His petition was granted September 7, 1898.

Faloon and Heasley did not want the road vacated and appealed the case to probate court. Judge Boone affirmed the proceedings before the commissioners.

WIFE BEATING ALLEGED

Salem Aeronaut Held for Court on a Serious Charge.

Salem, September 13.—(Special.)—Frank Johnson, an aeronaut, of this city, has been bound over to court by Mayer Baker on a charge of wife beating.

Johnson went to the Broadway hotel Wednesday night, where his wife is employed as a waiter, and without warning or provocation beat her shamefully. It is not likely that the bond of $200 will be furnished. Johnson is well known throughout the state for his daring feats.

Jamestown vs. Y. M. C. A.

Monday's game between the Y. M. C. A. and Jamestown (N. Y.) teams will afford a good opportunity for the fans, who are so anxious to see a game between the Y. M. C. A.'s and the local team, to make a comparison between the two teams. It is argued that the work of the Y. M. C. A. team so far has been fully up to that of the East Liverpool team, as they had one game won and one lost to Parkersburg, which immediately afterward took two from Walsh's aggregation. They also won from Sewickley last Saturday in a magnificently fought game. The game Monday will be well worth seeing.

To Hold a Rummage Sale.

The officers of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, held a meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. R. B. Watson, of Sixth street. It was decided to hold a rummage sale some time next month.

THE YOUNG MAN WAS NOT FOUND

Constable Gill Discovered Many McIntoshes But Albert Was Not Among Them.

NOT LIKELY TO RETURN HERE

FRIENDS ARE SHIELDING HIM

Constable Charles Gill returned this morning, after spending several days and nights in the vicinity of New Matamoras, where, it is supposed, he was on a search for Albert McIntosh, accused of cutting Albert Thompson in the fight at Grim's bridge last Saturday night.

The constable denies having been there for that purpose, but acknowledges tnat he saw in the neighborhood of 4,000 people who were relatives of McIntosh, and that none of them seemed to know of the young man's whereabouts.

Local authorities now think that not even the father of the wanted man, who stated a few days since that his son would give himself up on or before this evening, knows where the boy is in hiding.

No word has been received from the accused man and he is not expected to carry out his father's assurance. He certainly has a great number of friends. Very few men in this country could evade the officers as successfully as he has done.

If he appears before 'Squire McCarron between now and the day that the grand jury sits he police will be greatly surprised. The thought is advanced that he will remain away until the jury adjourns and then go before the 'squire; sign the bond that has been deposited and run the risk of the case being dropped before the sitting of the grand jury in February.

A PRIVATE SCHOOL

To Be Established to Accommodate Pupils in the Vicinity of Thompson Park.

The school in the vicinity of Calcutta will open Monday, and it is stated that the attendance this term will be much larger than last year. Many families residing north of the Thompson park will not send their children to No. 9 school this year. Instead a private school will be established. Last Tuesday evening a meeting of mothers residing north of the boulevard was held at the residence of Mrs. Mackey, near Thompson park, when it was decided that a private school should be established in that vicinity.

Mrs. Mackey was before her marriage a school teacher, and at the meeting it was decided that she should be engaged to teach the children of that vicinity. A room is to be fitted up similar to an up-to-date school room, and it is stated that about 12 scholars will attend the school at the opening, and that the number will be increased materially before another month. The expense of conducting this school will be paid by the parents of the children who attend the school, which will amount to about from $25 to $40 a month. While it is stated that these children could attend the Gardendale school, it is estimated that the walk is too far for the little ones, and for that reason and no other the parents of these children have decided to establish a private school.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

TWO ENGLISH GENTLEMEN.

Two of the most interesting gentlemen who have been in this city for many months are at the Thompson House, representing an English potters' supply house. They are Bertrand Rhead, representing the decalcomania department of Thomas Hulme, of Hanley, England, and W. J. B. Hulme, a brother of Thomas Hulme. It is the first visit to East Liverpool, and in fact to the United States, by Mr. Hulme. Twice each year Mr. Rhead comes to this city. His first visit to East Liverpool was last February, when he came here in the place of John Clarke, who represented the Thomas Hulme interests for many years until his untimely death early in the year while crossing the Atlantic. On his first trip to this country Mr. Rhead had but two hours' notice to prepare for the trip, and his last visit, from a financial standpoint, was a most successful one.

Mr. Hulme represents the clay department of the Hulme firm, and is here calling on the trade in that interest. He is a most interesting gentleman to talk with, but no more so than is Mr. Rhead, who on his last visit here made many friends. Mr. Rhead, when here early last year, was surprised at the vastness of the pottery industry in this city, but Mr. Hulme is more so, and good naturedly admits it. To a representative of this paper today, Mr. Hulme said:

"To tell you the truth, I was amazed when I looked over your city and saw so many potteries, and every one of them in full operation. You are to be congratulated upon this unusual business condition, although I have known for some time that all the East Liverpool potteries were working full. The offices of your potteries surprised me greatly, for there is not one of them that is not neatly furnished. The officials are most pleasant to talk with, a cordial greeting being extended to everyone. Your potteries are somewhat differently built than those in England. A four or five kiln pottery in the Staffordshire district is considered one of the most convenient size. But things are different here. Potteries with from 25 to 30 kilns are indeed mammoth concerns. In England we call ovens, and here the term kiln is applied. The ware made in this country is fired much harder than it is in England, but still a most excellent class of ware is made in East Liverpool. You have a beautiful little city, and your business is now at its height from what I can understand, and my best wishes for the continued success of this good trade is extended."

Mr. Rhead, since he came to the city a few days ago, has talked most entertainingly about the class of decalcomania that is being used in the decorating departments of the local potteries. Although there are at present no less than six "decal" salesmen in the city, all are apparantly doing a good business, and no person is feeling the effects of so many salesmen in the same line being in the city at the same time. Mr. Rhead among other things said: "It may be a surprise to many to know that one color appears to predominate in the decorating department of the potteries. Wherever I go the cry seems to be for pink. 'Tis a beautiful color, and the decorators knowing this fact, want something with a 'bit of pink in it.' Of course we accomodate them, and gladly. Pink shows well on a piece of ware no matter how small, and when a pleasing decoration is made, the sales of the firms are correspondingly increased."

Mr. Rhead has brought with him on this trip many new designs in "decal" work, the like of which has never been seen in the city before. Samples of these decorations are shown in his room, on East Liverpool made ware. During his last trip to this city he gathered many pieces of ware, taken from parts of dinner sets, and these were taken to England, and the decorations completed there. The decalcomania in some manner has to be made to suit the class of ware it is to be used on, hence this action. Both gentlemen will remain in this country for about six weeks, during which time they will visit all the pottery districts. Before they came here they stopped off for several days at Trenton, and made a tour of the eastern potteries.

MAYER IN SMILES.

William Mayer, residing on Derby Road, and who is employed as a dipper at Laughlin No. 2, is a happy man. When Bertrand Rhead arrived in this city a few days ago, among the first East Liverpool men he met was Mr. Mayer, who is an old friend. Soon after the meeting Mr. Rhead presented Mr. Mayer a plate, made of fine English china, upon which appeared a likeness of the King and Queen. Mr. Mayer was much pleased with the present, and prizes it very highly.

DRAINING THE EAST.

Nearly all the men to operate the new Buffalo pottery will be taken from Trenton. The concern is known as the Larkins Pottery company. The structure has been under course of construction for several weeks and will be ready this fall. James Bailey, a well known Trenton modeler, formerly employed at the Maddocks Lamberton works, has been busy getting out the shapes and designs that will be produced by the concern. Mr. Bailey has been engaged to fill a position at the plant as a modeler. William Rea, the manager, has also engaged John Powers, of Trenton, to be mould maker and Edward Moore, of the same city, to do the blocking and casing at the pottery.

'TIS LOCAL NO. 64.

MANY WERE TRANSFERED.

At a meeting of kilnmen's local No. 9, last evening, several new members were received by transfer. They were Joseph Moon, from Sebring, Fred Heckathorn, from No. 24 at Wellsville and Walter DeYarman, from No. 17. An honorary withdrawal card was issued to Elmer A. Stevenson, who left the trade to go to Mechanicstown to enter the mercantile business. Several committee appointed at the last meeting reported last evening and their reports accepted.

VERY STRANGE ACTIONS.

Word has been received in this city within the past few days, that the Cunard Steamship company has as yet failed to return to the heirs of the late James Clark his personal effects which were found in his stateroom last February after he had been buried at sea. Why this delay, cannot be accounted for by his many friends in America and England. It is intimated that another request will be made to the company soon to return these effects.

A JIGGERMAN HURT.

Herman King, a jiggerman at the French China, at Sebring, met with a serious mishap recently at Alliance. He went to that city on a bicycle, and in coming down the north side of the viaduct on the home trip, his foot slipped from the pedal and he was thrown with great force to the pavement. His face was badly cut and disfigured and it will be several days before he can resume work.

AGED DIPPER DEAD.

William Lynch, formerly employed as a dipper in the Sebring pottery died at the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, recently, aged about 62 years. Mr. Lynch was a soldier in the U. S. army, serving three years in the volunteer and four years in the regular service. He was also a well known railroader. He was born near Massillon and was well known in this city.

APPRENTICE PACKER.

Carl Weaver, who has been employed as a packer at the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, has resigned his position and is now located at the Standard, as an apprentice kilnman.

MURRAY IS ILL.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver, at Sebring, is in the city visiting friends. John has not been in the best of health for some time and he came here for the benefit of his health.

HE RETURNS TO TRENTON.

SOLICITING FUNDS.

Local No. 44, of Sebring, endorsed T. J. Duffy for congress at its last meeting and appointed a committee to solicit campaign funds.

MAKING NEW MODELS.

The Canonsburg pottery is to have a number of new models made in this city. Arrangements are now being made to have a dinner and toilet set modeled here, and it is expected that the work of the modelers will be completed in time for the firm to place the new shapes on the market about the first of December.

Fish Blowing Bait Up the Line.

How on earth or in the water fish contrive to blow large baits three or four yards up the line has yet to be explained. It is a common thing to find large slabs of pilchard bait used for pollack blown right up the line by large fish. This happens only when the pollack is itself hooked. I have recently found that large bass serve one the same trick, writes a correspondent, but in this case the bass, which is a more cunning fish than the pollack, sometimes gets away. To realize the immense difficulty of such a feat let any one put even a piece of paper on a hook and endeavor tho blow it up the line with a bellows. Much more difficult it must be with the resistance of the water, and by what muscular action the fish contrives it I know not. I have searched the textbooks in vain for some hint on the subject.—London Opinion.

The Word "Picnic."

Few people know the original meaning of the word "picnic." It is to be found set out in the London Times of a hundred years ago. "A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes. The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maitre d'hotel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art."

Where He Rode.

A schoolboy who was going to a party was cautioned by his father not to walk home if it rained and was given money for cab hire. It rained heavily, and great was the father's surprise when his son, in spite of the instructions he had received, arrived home drenched to the skin.

"Did you not take a cab as I ordered you, Alfred?" the parent asked sternly.

"Oh, yes; but when I ride with you you always make me ride inside. This time I rode on top with the driver. Say, dad, it was grand!"—Utica Observer.

EAST END

A SPEAKEASY

EVIDENCE INDICATES THAT ONE EXISTED IN THE EAST END.

Basket After Basket of Bottles Found In a Store Room.

It is thought by many in the East End that a speakeasy has been in existence in that section for months and that the shop has been closed up. This opinion is based on certain discoveries made within the past few days. It is said by those who have made these discoveries that there was a small store wheih changed hands on the first of the month, and since that time the new owner of the establishment has been making a general cleaning of the entire premises.

This work was started a few days ago. Basket after basket of whisky bottles were found in a remote part of the building, and under the counter were found half a dozen bottles of wine which had not been opened. Other things clearly indicate, it is alleged, that a speakeasy existed before the store changed ownership.

Several days ago two young men of the East End left their homes very suddenly, and it is intimated that one was given money to leave for a few weeks, or until after the coming session of the grand jury. It is not clearly known, however, that the matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury, but interesting developments are considered probable.

A RUSH FOR LEASES

North of Smith's Ferry As a Result of an Oil Strike.

Eight miles north of the Smith's Ferry field, in Beaver county, and two miles north of the small produced drilled in by Galey Bros. on the Clark Hunter farm, a few days ago, Frank W. Neeley & Co. drilled in a wild cat on the Bradshaw farm and claim to have a 10 or 12-barrel pumper. There has been quite a rush for leases in that locality.

The territory between the last named well and the Galey Bros.' producer to the south, has all been leased within the past week.

An Apple-Paring Party.

An old-fashioned apple-paring party took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Heckathorn, on Pennsylvania avenue. Marriages Without Money.

The poet and divine, John Donne, who became dean of St. Paul's in 1821, married a daughter of Sir George Moore without the consent of her parents. He was told by his father-in-law that he was not to expect any money from him. The bridegroom went home and wrote this witty note. "John Donne, Anne Donne, undone," which he sent to the angry father, and this had the effect of restoring them to favor. They were very poor at first, but things soon got brighter, and they lived most happily together.

Sir Joshua Reynolds after Flaxman had married told him that this would ruin him as an artist. When the husband related this to his wife, she resolved that marriage should make and not mar her husband and to this end further resolved that he should study at Rome and do everything that he might have done without matrimonial responsibilities. "But how?" asked Flaxman. "Work and economize," rejoined the brave woman. So well did they do this that he found that "wedlock is for an artist's good, rather than his harm," and they both discovered that they were made for each other.

Optical Talks...

Care of the Eye from childhood up to old age. Written especially for the News Review, by P. O. Kennedy, the Sixth Street Optician

As I said in a former talk the greatest danger to the eye comes from eye strain, so called. Normal eyes, while they can be abused as readily as defective ones, do not show the strain as easily as do the latter. The reason for this is that in a normal eye the eyeball is neither too long nor too short, and the curvature of the cornea is nearly the same in all merediana. When the eyeball is too short the cilliary muscle is compelled to work "overtime," as it were—to accomodate the eye even when distant objects are being viewed—while in the normal eye the muscles are at rest when the eye is focused for distance.

The result of this "overtime" work on the part of the cilliary muscles is seen in the constantly recurring headaches with which so many people are afflicted.

When the eyeball is too long just the opposite is true—the cilliary muscle is not worked enough. Now it should not be understood that this will have the opposite effect to short eyeball troubles—in fact the results are largely the same—headaches. This is explained by remembering the fast that all the muscles of the eye work in unison. When the eyes are converged so as to bring them together for near work the battle between the muscles begins. The eyes have to be turned in just as much as normal ones but the cilliary muscle does not have to do nearly as much work—thus the different muscles are thrown out of harmony and the result is almost the same as previously stated for short eyeballs.

Astigmatism is, also, frequently the cause of eyestrain but as the space allowed me in these talks is so limited I will not endeavor to go into details.

It will be seen, though, that what I am endeavoring to illustrate is that the eyes should never, under any circumstance, be overtaxed by forcing them to exert the different muscles. It will also be seen that the cause of strain is not, as most people think, in the nerves, but that it is solely in the muscles.

(To be continued Monday.)

A Dumas Story.

The younger Dumas once went to Villers Cotterets, his father's native village, to the unveiling of a statue to the creator of "The Three Musketeers." At the banquet in the evening the younger Dumas sat next to one of the oldest inhabitants who, in perfect good nature, but without any tact, began to tell a story of Dumas pere.

"Ah," said he, "he was a gay soul, your father! How we loved him. He was so kind hearted and generous. The last time he came to Villers Cotterets he gave a banquet in the Hotel de Ville. He forgot for some time after to pay the bill. See that fat man over there? He was the butcher who furnished the feast. I should not be surprised if the meat were still owing to him. But that is nothing. He is proud to this day of being the purveyor to Alexandre Dumas."

The story was an ironical commentary on the set speeches of the afternoon. The son was anxious then and there to settle his father's score.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Lamb Gourd of Samara.

In a book called "The Duke of Holstein's Travels Into Persia and Muscovy," published in 1636, there is an account of a curious vine product called the "lamb gourd," which runs as follows: "In the neighborhood of Samara, Russia, there grows a gourd which closely resembles a lamb in all its members. It changes place in growing as far as the stalk will reach, and wheresoever it turns the grass withers and dies. This change of the gourd plant the Muscovites call 'feeding.' They further say that when it ripens the stalk withers and that the outward rind of the gourd is then covered with a sort of wool, which they use instead of fur."

Scaliger also makes mention of the lamb gourd and says that it grows until the grass fails and that it then dies for want of nourishment. He also says that the wolf is the only animal that will feed upon it.

An Interesting Animal.

Proprietor of Menagerie—Walk up, ladies and gentlemen, and see our famous lion, Mustapha. He is as sensible as any human being. A French sergeant once pulled out of his foot a thorn on which he had stepped. What do you think the noble creature did? It devoured, one by one, in order of rank, all the superior officers of our sergeant until the latter found himself promoted to the grade of colonel. Walk in, gentlemen. Only a penny.—From the German.

An Opportunity.

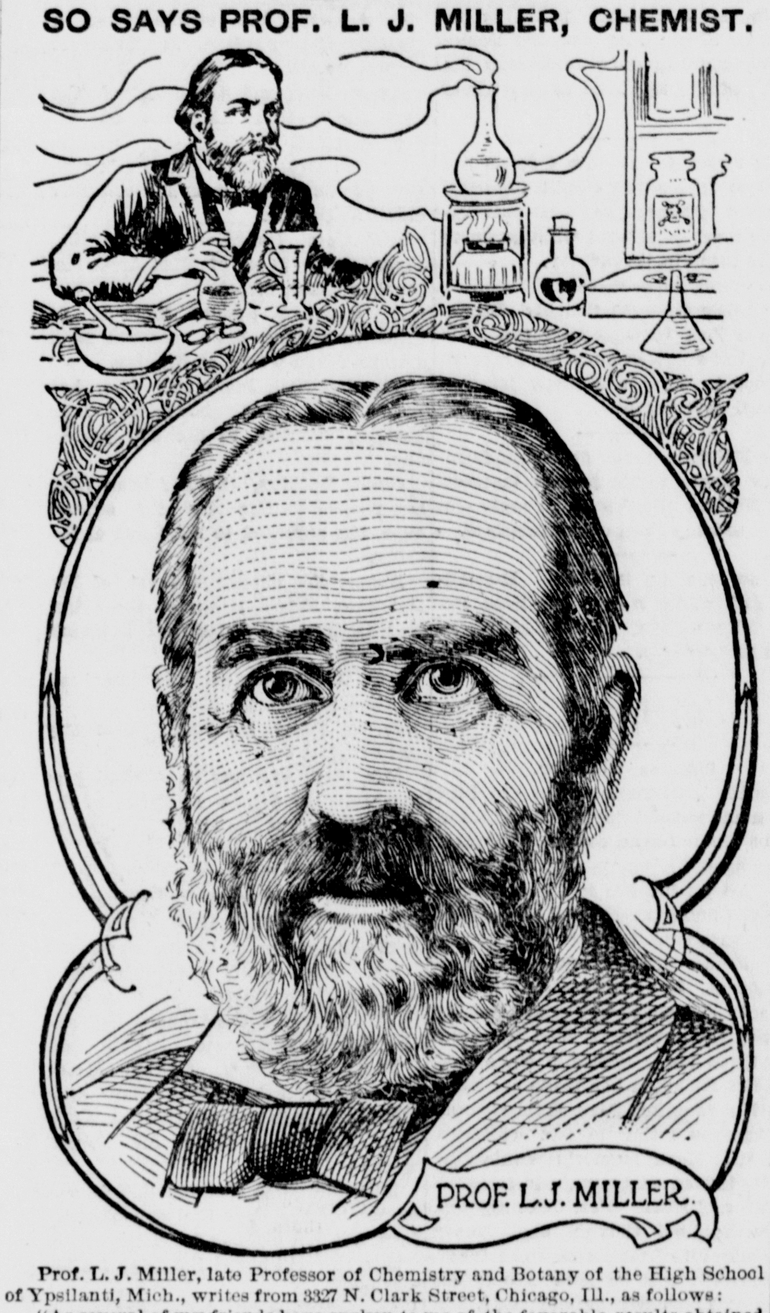

Henry—There's one thing that can be said of poor Tom. He died without owing a dollar to any one in the world.

Dick—And think of the opportunities he must have had! It should be a warning to everybody still alive. You haven't got a couple of dollars about you that you can let me have until I see you again?—Boston Transcript.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 3327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—PROF. L. J. MILLER.

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Treat Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system.

Joseph Ridgeway.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years."

Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."

Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A PRETTY LOVE STORY.

Concerns Germany's Crown Prince and a Beautiful American Girl.

Although vigorously denied on both sides, the general public seems loath to admit that the reported love affair between the crown prince of Germany and Miss Gladys Deacon is all a fiction. The story is too pretty to be false, as well as almost too good to be true.

The crown prince, so the story goes, met the beautiful Miss Deacon at Blenheim castle, England, where she was the guest of the Duchess of Marlborough. Immediately he lost his royal heart. Again and again they met, and in fervid gutturals the heir to the kaiser's crown spoke of his love to the charming American girl. For her he was willing to give up throne and country. Miss Deacon blushed and protested, but she listened. She accepted from her royal lover a ring which had once been worn by Queen Victoria.

When Kaiser William learned of this impetuous affair, he waxed wroth. He sent for the crown prince, shut him up in a castle and dispatched messengers to Miss Deacon demanding the return of the Queen Victoria ring. So persistent were these messengers that Miss Deacon, after numerous refusals, threw the ring in their faces and wept violently. Then her mother took her back to Paris.

Now from Berlin come denials that the crown prince ever gave away his ring. Mrs. Deacon also denies that her daughter had a love affair with the crown prince. They met, she admits, but they did not love.

Miss Deacon, who is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, has spent most of her life abroad. Her parents went to Paris to live soon after their marriage in 1879. Mr. Deacon belonged to a prominent and wealthy Boston family, and his wife was the daughter of the late Admiral Charles H. Baldwin, U. S. N., of New York.

A well remembered tragedy broke up the family, and Mr. Deacon died in 1901 in a sanitarium in this country. He left a considerable fortune to be divided among his four daughters.

Stopped For Once.

A citizen from the frontier, who never had been in Washington before, was visiting a friend in the nation's capital and was taken one day to the gallery of the senate while an important measure was under discussion.

A senator was delivering a long, prosy and apparently aimless speech, and the visitor soon grew tired of it.

"Why doesn't he say something worth listening to?" he whispered to his friend.

"Oh, he's merely talking against time."

"What's the good of that?" asked the other, aghast. "Time goes on just the same, doesn't it?"

His Folded Arms.

"Madge, Harry asked me to be his wife last night."

"Oh, I am so delighted!" replied her friend. "How did it happen?"

"Well, you see, he just asked me, and I said 'Yes,' and then he stood up and folded his arms."

"Well, I never! Was he not more interested than that? Whatever did you do at such treatment?"

"What could I do? You see, I was in his arms when he folded them!"

Saxon State Dinners.

At Saxon dinners slices of bread were the substitutes for plates, and these generally went into the alms basket afterward. Grandees were treated to a silver platter placed beneath the bread, which last in course of time became discarded as people came to recognize the superior advantages of metal and pewter.

A Friend In Need.

Wederly—Did I understand you to say that Enpeck is a relative of yours?

Singleton—You did. He's my stepfriend by marriage.

Wederly—Stepfriend! Why, how's that?

Singleton—He stepped in and eloped with the girl I was engaged to.—Exchange.

An Unwilling Juror.

A New Hampshire judge has in his possession the following letter sent to him by an old farmer who had been notified that he had been drawn as a juror for a certain term of court: "Dear Jedge: I got your letter tellin' me to come to Manchester an' do dooty on the joory, an' I write you these fue lines to let you know that you'll have to git some one else, for it ain't so that I kin leave home now. I got to do some butcherin', an' sort over a lot of apples just about the time the joory will be settin' in your court. Si Jackman of this town says that he would as soon as not go, for he ain't nothin' else to do jess now, so you better send fer him. I hate the worst way not to oblidge you, but it ain't so I kin at present. Ennyhow, I ain't much on the law, never havin' been a jooryman 'ceptin' when old Bud Stiles got killed by the cars here some years ago when I was one that set on the boddy with the koroner. So you better send for Si Jackman, for he has got some kin in manchester he wants to visit ennyhow, an' he'd be willin' to go for his car fare there an' back. Ancer back if you want Si."—Lippincott's.

An Ingersoll Story.

John W. Mackay once invited Robert G. Ingersoll to visit the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft of one of the mines Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air, "Privately I always believed there was a hades somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

TWELVE PAGES.

A Japanese commissioner, sent here three years ago, returned to his country and said: "We asked, 'What is it that makes the United States such a great nation?' We investigated and found it was patents. And so we will have patents." There is a vast amount of truth in these sage remarks. Our patent system, adopted in Thomas Jefferson's day, has had its main features incorporated into the systems of the principal European countries, while American inventions are in use the world over. Our rank as a manufacturing nation, our industrial prosperity, our progress in arts and science, are due in a great measure to the inventive genius of Americans, whose knowledge and skill have revolutionized the processes in use in nearly every line of industry and effort, from the farm and the shop to the chemical laboratory and the astronomical observatory. True it is that thousands of inventions are made and never patented, and thousands that are patented come to naught, Yet every once in a while something is put before the public—the telephone and the trolley car for example—which creates a new industry and surprises the world. The great manufacturing states as a rule are the homes of inventors. In the recent decade beginning in 1890 New York led, with 37,519 patents, Pennsylvania following with 22,705, Illinois with 19,936, Massachusetts with 18,718 and Ohio with 15,248.

Twelve months have elapsed since President McKinley died, but McKinley prosperity is still with us in full strength and vigor. It is highly appropriate that the country give thought to the statesman and patriot whose wise policy caused his name to be blessed and revered by millions. It is a satisfaction that the local churches generally will observe McKinley day tomorrow. East Liverpool, both for sentimental and business reasons, has excellent cause for honoring the memory of one of our greatest presidents.

The Hungarian government is taking steps to prevent the emigration of its people. All America familiar with the Hungarian subjects that have landed on these shores in the past fifteen years will rejoice if the effort meets with success.

As a result of special legislation in past years, Summit county, according to the opinion of some of its foremost lawyers, is now without a jury law that is constitutional. There will be no jury trials in that county, it is announced, until the legislature enacts a new law. The pernicious and far-reaching effect of class legislation was never more convincingly illustrated.

There has been an anti-Tillman victory in the Democratic primaries in South Carolina. For once the Democratic party has done something deserving of the applause of the whole country.

It is reported that the Cubans are trying to revive the bandit industry. President Palma, an old warrior, doesn't need to be told what to do to kill the thing in its infancy.

Throwing mud at Senator Hanna will win Tom Johnson no votes. The people know the senator as a man to be trusted. They also know Johnson too well to trust him.

The Filipinos are to be taught farming by Uncle Sam's private instructors. Nothing like keeping people employed to keep them out of mischief.

Bryan is again in Ohio. Republicans rather like to have him here. Defeat follows him, as inevitably as night follows day.

No Luck About It.

There is no luck about advertising, no chance, no scheme. It is legitimate, straightforward business from beginning to end, from the day the campaign is started clear up to the close of business at the finish. Advertising is a legitimate, reasonable means of gaining an end. The advertisement which appeals best is that which is planned with the greatest intelligence, contains the greatest volume of honest intention and speaks in frank, unequivocal words about reliable goods and about the careful, painstaking methods of those who are handling the business; presents in the best way logical arguments for the purchase of goods from the merchant in question. This is advertising that will pay, that cannot help it.—Advertising World.

Due to Advertising.

Chicago people believe, with apparent reason, that the surprising growth of their city is largely due to their confirmed habit of advertising its advantages. At a recent meeting of enterprising business men it was decided that an effort should be made to bring to Chicago some of the manufacturing establishments which are no longer prosperous in Europe and some of the European capital which is seeking investment. After considering the means of publicity the promoters of the project resolved to advertise Chicago in the leading newspapers of the principal cities of Europe.—Philadelphia Record.

AT THE THEATER

On Tuesday night the farcical comedy, "A Foxy Boy," will be presented for the first time at the Grand, and it is said to be a bunch of fun that will be delivered to the audience on that evening. The name of Charles H. Phillips, a gentleman who enjoys a reputation both in this country and in Europe as a whistler, appears in the list of entertainments. Mr. Phillips gives imitations of any and every bird that ever was known, without the aid of a mouthpiece which every stage whistler uses, using simply his teeth and tongue. Some of his effects are simply marvelous.

"Mr. Plaster of Paris," the successful musical farcical production, is furnishing huge amusement to the patrons of the theater all over the United States. It is a combine of wholesome comedy, fresh jokes, spirited music and a great deal of clever specialty work introduced during the play, which make things move swiftly during every moment of the performance. The comedians are worthy the name and as a real amusing and entertaining combination of music and fun "Mr. Plaster of Paris" is entitled to first place.

DON'T GET MORBID.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

As a rule, the thought that kills relates to something the individual dreads more than anything else in the world. There is the germ of fatal thought in ninety-nine persons in every hundred, and the exception is only proof against the thought disease by having been inoculated with the lymph of optimism or philosophy.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of them or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much "doctoring" as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have. The thought disease sometimes cures itself after running its course; so does smallpox. But who would settle down to suffer from smallpox and chance recovery, as thousands of foolish persons settle down to let the thought disease, which has attacked them, do its worst?

Every melancholy thought, every morbid notion and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be physicked by cheerful thoughts, of which there is a store in every one's possession, bright companions—cheaper than drugs and pleasanter.

There have occurred scores of dozens of cases where healthy persons have thought themselves into having tumors and cancers—cases which admit of no doubt whatever that the diseases resulted from constant morbid fear. There might possibly be fewer cases of cancer if some great doctors could assure the world that it is not a hereditary disease, but morbid minded persons on hearing that there is cancer in their families generally do the very worst thing they can do under the circumstances—they conceive an awful dread that they will be afflicted with it. They dwell upon the fear constantly, and every trifling ailment which troubles them is at first mistaken for the premonitory symptoms of cancer.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

POULTRY POINTERS.

The best eggs are the result of a meat diet.

Weak legs come from forced growth, high feeding and close confinement.

Use no deformed or weak fowls for breeding and do not keep the same cock more than one season.

A molting hen seldom lays. She cannot be supplying eggs while the strain of growing new feathers is upon her.

A very fat hen seldom lays anything but soft shelled eggs. Apoplexy and egg bound are the result of excessive fat.

Leaves and hay chaff make excellent litter for the floors, and by throwing grain among it fowls are often kept busy scratching.

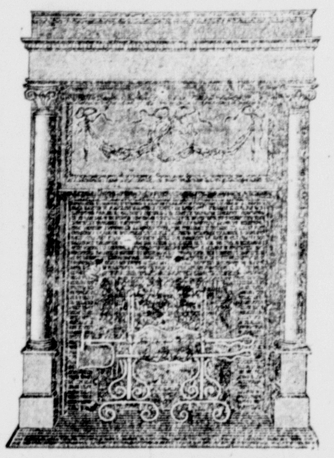

Keep the fowls away from the barns, stables and carriage houses. In such places they are nuisances; besides they are more comfortable in a place by themselves.

Hens must have carbonate and phosphate of lime for their shells, and these will be found in old plastering, broken oyster shells and bones, with some of the meat and gristle attached.

WELLSVILLE

READY FOR WORK

Supervisors of Water Works Improvements Have Arrived in Wellsville.

The consulting engineers in the employ of the R. W. Hunt company, of Pittsburg and Chicago, who are to superintend the construction of the new water works pumping station and sinking of the supply wells, arrived this morning and will have the work started as soon as the site has been decided upon.

The water works trustees will hold a meeting this evening at which time it is thought that the property belonging to Lester Laughlin just northeast of the city limits will be chosen.

THE TRUANCY LAW

A Wellsville Man Invokes It in Case of a Neighbor's Children.

A complaint has been filed with Mayor Fogo by Truant Officer Ellis J. Pease, who asks the mayor to enforce the law compelling all children to attend school and especially the boy and girl who are the children of Mrs. Henderson, residing on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

Mr. Pease has been having considerable trouble with the mother of these children, who, he says, refuses to send them to school.

The mayor stated last evening that he would enforce the law.

No Action Taken.

J. A. McMynn, of Chicago, and John R. Bower, of Pittsburg, representatives of the R. W. Hunt company, held a secret conference last evening with the city water works trustees. Matters relative to the new water works pumping station and supply wells were talked over, but no action taken. Mr. McMynn thought the city was making a mistake in not voting for a supply from Yellow Creek.

Likely to Be Fined.

Larry Chiley, the last of the four Italians who were arrested a few days ago for having stolen 150 pounds of brass fittings from the C. & P. Railroad company, was given a preliminary hearing last evening before Mayor Fogo. He will be given a final hearing next Monday evening and will be assessed probably $20 and costs, as were his alleged partners in the crime.

Old Machinery Sold.

All of the Champion Fire Brick and Clay company's machinery at the plant in the West End has been sold to Pittsburg parties and today Thomas Silver, Jr., is engaged in tearing it apart and placing it on cars ready for shipment. The new plant up "Driven From Home" hollow is to be entirely equipped with new machinery.

Chester Avenue Opening.

Street Commissioner Herbert and City Engineer Leith started the work this morning of opening Chester avenue in the West End. This work is in accordance with an action recentaly taken by council. The new street will be of vast benefit to several West End properties.

A Coming Wedding.

Rev. R. H. Edwards, rector of the Church of the Ascension, who recently accepted a call to St. Paul's church, Pittsburg, will preach his first sermon there October 5. It is reported that he will be married next Monday evening to a prominent Wellsville young lady.

Surprised the Pastor.

A surprise party was held last evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Prewitt, on Center street, by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church of which Dev. Prewitt is pastor. Nearly all of the active members of the society were present and the affair was most enjoyable.

May Reinstate Davis.

One of Wellsville's city officials stated last evening that Mayor Fogo has decided to re-instate Officer Davis, of the local police force, who was suspended. The mayor will make no statement.

A $5,000 Deal.

Regarded In Different Ways.

That one can obtain more favors by "jollying" than by being brusque is just as true as "one can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar." Two young men have lived in a boarding house in West Twenty-third street for some time, and one has the reputation of being a "jollier," while the other is quick spoken and of a bearish disposition. The young men are friends and usually breakfast together. Their respective standings in the estimation of the dining room maid may be judged from the way in which that damsel shouted their order—both had requested steaks—down the dumb waiter shaft recently:

"A nice beefsteak, a trifle rare, for Mr. Wood; some meat for Baldwin."—New York Tribune.

Very Simple.

A rather simple looking lad halted before a blacksmith's shop on his way home from school and eyed the doings of the proprietor with much interest.

The brawny smith, dissatisfied with the boy's curiosity, held a piece of red-hot iron suddenly under the youngster's nose, hoping to make him beat a hasty retreat.

"If you'll give me half a dollar, I'll lick it," said the lad.

The smith took from his pocket half a dollar and held it out.

The simple looking youngster took the coin, licked it and slowly walked away whistling.—Chums.

The Dissyllabic Scot.

The difficulty of rhyming to "girl" is mainly due to the varieties of its pronunciation. It is never pronounced, as it is so often conventionally written, "gall," but one often hears "gell," with a hard "g." Moreover, in Scotland, though it is as well not to mention the fact to a Scotsman, it consists of two syllables—"gurrel." The other day it was pointed out to a Scotsman that the name of his national poet was a dissyllable in Ayrshire. "Hoot awa'!" he said, or words to that effect. "Burruns two syllables! Absurrud!"—London Chronicle.

A Curious Custom.

Reciprocity.

Suburbanite—Well, you have told my fortune. How much?

Gypsy—Only 50 cents.

Suburbanite—Here it is. Now I'll tell your fortune for nothing. If any of my chickens are missing tomorrow morning, I'll have your entire gang run in.—Chicago Tribune.

In Chester School House Basement To Be Fitted Up At Once.

The Chester board of education at a meeting today, decided to fit up the basement of the Chester Central school for school purposes, making an addition of two rooms to this building. The probable teachers will be Miss Nellie Carman, of the East End, and Miss Edna Joseph, of Wellsville.

The contract for remodeling the cellar of the Central school was let to John Mercer, who will commence work at once.

Rival Candidates.

Prof. G. A. Allison, principal of the Chester schools, and Miss Jane Stewart, the primary teacher, are rival candidates for the office of county superintendent of schools in Hancock county. The contest promises to be interesting, as both candidates have a large number of friends working in their interests.

An Interesting Meeting.

Jr. O. U. A. M. council meeting Monday evening will be unusually interesting, as Enoch Riley, the state delegate, will give his report of the proceedings of the state council. Brunt Shriver, of New Martinsville, State Councilor O. O. Allison's secretary, will receive a salary of $1,000 per year.

Mixed Eggs.

Professor Edwin Ray Lankester was sitting in his office in the Natural History museum, London, when he was visited by an elderly woman, evidently from the country, who carried a parcel which she handled with the most exaggerated care. She was in a state of great excitement and exclaimed:

"I've got two of 'em."

"Two of what?" inquired the professor.

"Two 'awks' eggs," replied the woman. "I'm told they're worth a thousand pounds apiece."

The professor, much interested, looked at the eggs. "These are not auks' eggs," he said.

"They are 'awks' eggs," said his visitor. "My son Joe found 'em."

A light dawned on the naturalist. "The kind of eggs which are so valuable," he remarked gently, "are the eggs of an extinct bird called the auk—a-u-k."

"Oh, hauk!" said the woman. "I'll pay out that 'Enry 'Obhouse as told me it was 'awks' eggs as was wanted."

And she went away."

Soft and Warm.

The latest device of girlhood is a fancy for stuffing pillows with old love letters. There is one thing about the contents of these pillows that can be depended upon with a marked degree of certainty—they are sure to be soft.

More Than Clumsy.

"My fingers seem to be all thumbs today," apologetically remarked the clumsy butcher.

"Ah," said the customer significantly, "that accounts for them getting in the weigh."—Philadelphia Record.

Discouraging.

It is discouraging, to say the least, to a young man who has been tenderly nursing a few straggling hairs on his upper lip for three months to have his girl say, "Oh, Charley, why don't you let your mustache grow?"

The reason we don't see our own faults is that our eyes are just big enough for other people's.—New York News.

Thunder Lore.

The natives of the Hawaiian Islands considered thunder as being Mauna Loa's echo from the clouds. This curious notion has crystallized a weather proverb which is now current among many of the white residents of the islands—viz, "It will rain today; Mauna Loa shakes the clouds." In this conpection it may be remarked that the early Scandinavian settlers in Iceland believed that there were some mysterious and supernatural connections between the roarings of Hecla and the "angry mutterings of Jove." In England many of the peasantry still plant the house leek—"Jupiter's beard"—on their house roofs as a preventive against thunder, lightning and evil spirits, a custom which reminds one of Charlemagne's edict, "Et habeat quisque supra domum suam Jovis barbam."

Another widespread superstition, and one that has been noted among the tribes and nations from China to England and from Cape Hatteras to the Golden Gate, tells us that if the "claps" or reports of thunder come in even numbers the storm will be of short duration and very mild, but, on the other hand, if they come in uneven numbers, especially if the reports be a series of five, nine or thirteen distinct claps, much loss of life and property will result.

The Gleaners.

The old custom of gleaning in the harvest fields, which recalls the Biblical story of Ruth and Naomi, is not obsolete in England, and in Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and the neighboring counties as soon as the wheat is gathered in the late days of August there may be seen in the newly cleared fields numbers of women and children diligently picking up one by one the scattered ears and forming them into neat little sheaves, which they carry in their hands until large enough to be bound up. When the daylight fails, all the booty is bound up in cloths and carried home on the heads of the gleaners. At home they thrash it out by hand and sell the grain or use it for their chickens. The gathering of a half peck is usually a full day's work for a child, and often a woman spends a whole day in gathering very little more. Gleaning, however, is looked upon somewhat in the light of a picnic. The mother and children leave home in the morning, take with them food for the day, and stay out in the fields until nightfall.—Detroit Free Press.

A Quick Witted Pastor.

In Germany a country preacher was preaching a sermon when suddenly he lost the thread of his discourse, and, do what he would, he could not find it again.

The congregation was greatly embarrassed and was wondering what the matter was when he startled it by exclaiming hurriedly, "Pardon me, my brethren, for pausing in my sermon, but it seems to me that I smell fire somewhere—and—and it might be well to see that it has not broken out in the church or in any of the nearby houses."

Before the words were all uttered the congregation was pouring out of the church, each family being anxious to make sure that its home was not on fire. It need hardly be said that the fire existed only in the pastor's imagination.

They are just out—new fall style suits.

Softening the Blow.

The cashier of a certain firm had absconded, and the staff of clerks were deciding on a fit and proper person to acquaint the head of the firm of the fact on his arrival.

Ultimately the matter was left in the hands of the head clerk, possibly because none of the others cared to undertake the responsibility.

There had been a dogfight in the street, and a small crowd was just dispersing as the chief's carriage dashed up.

"What's that crowd after, Jorkins?" demanded the head of the firm.

"Vacancy? What vacancy?"

"Cashier, sir."

"But we want no cashier, Jorkins."

"Beg pardon, sir; but we've a vacancy for one!"

"Jorkins, are you mad?"

"No, sir. That is, sir, I don't know, sir. Fact is, sir—all the cash is gone and—and"—

"Well?"

"The cashier's gone with it, sir."

Foiled by Humidity.

Noiselessly, but with all his might, the burglar tugged at the bureau drawer.

In vain.

It refused to open.

He tugged again.

"Give it another jerk," said a voice behind him.

The burglar turned.

The owner of the house was sitting up in bed and looking at him with an expression of the deepest interest on his face.

"Jerk it again. There's a lot of valuable property in that drawer, but we haven't been able to open it since the damp weather began. If you can pull it out, I'll give you a handsome royalty on everything that's"—

But the burglar had jumped out through the window, taking a part of the sash with him.—Chicago Tribune.

OF INTEREST TO LADIES.

Every woman is interested in her complexion, and anything which will tend to improve it usually receives her careful consideration. The idea that local treatment with lotions and creams is the correct way to improve the complexion is decidedly erroneous. There is always a cause for every effect, and the cause for a bad complexion is a sluggish liver, poor digestion, or bad, poisonous blood. The only way to improve it is nature's way—remove the cause—and as a natural consequence the skin will become clear, fresh and bright. Wright's Celery Tea is especially adapted to the delicate organism of woman, and to these prrticular causes which are so baneful to her pride. It cleanses the blood, whitens the skin, and imparts the glow of youth to the complexion. 25c and 50c.

SECOND DEFEAT FOR WASHINGTON

They Lost the Game In the Ninth When Reilly Landed a Threebagger.

Everybody played a good game. It was one of the best of the season. It was fight from the first. The visiting twirler bested Gehring on the strikeouts, but at the end his work fell a little short. It was undoubtedly due to agitation, nowever. Just at the time that Colonel Ridgely, one of the star pitchers of the real Washington & Jefferson college team, would have the locals guessing he would go into the air over some trifling matter and allow the next man up his base on four wild ones.

Hits, eight in number, were made by each aggregation. But they were all scattered and did little good. That is, all of them but that one landed by Reilly in the ninth, when he made the ball hunt the tall timbers in left field and by so doing allowed Godwin to score the winning run.

In the first inning neither side scored. The second resulted in a similar manner for the visitors, but not so with the locals. Barker ,not the boy, but the "kid," was first up. He got smashed. But it was because he did not try to get out of harm's way. Heckathorn placed a beauty for two bases. Barker scored. Emmerling fanned. Webb was out. Maley had his luck with him, getting first on McIlveen's error. Heckathorn scored on the rankness. Maley went out, just because he didn't think that Redleg could throw to first .

The next inning showed a turn of the tables. This time the locals got an egg, while the college boys jumped up three notches. Gehring gave them two bases on balls and a three-base hit. That caused it all. In the next a few more were made by the locals, three in all. A conglomoration of hits, bases on balls and a fielder's choice mixed with a few drops of a rattling substance caused this. A blank for each was the result of the fifth. In the sixth and seventh the visitors tied the score, making one in each inning. That was the last of the runs registered for the visitors. They failed thereafter to reach third base. How the locals won in the ninth has already been told.

Carson Finch, the ball player from New Cumberland, umpired the game and did good work. One decision made by him did not meet with the approval of the visitors, but it was straight nevertheless. It was when he called McIlveen out after he had hit for two bases and reached the bag. When he crossed first base he should have stopped long enough to let his No. 11's touch the bag. That is what it is there for. Instead he ran madly over it, and in consequence was called out.

Many were pleased beyond measure when they saw Barker in uniform. He returned from Bloomington Thursday evening and could not stay out of the game. His playing was all that could be desired. He will play in the game when Washington, D. C., is here, which will be during the first week of next month. Webb played an unusually fine game. He was there at all stages. Three putouts and three assists are good enough for any one.

Emmerling tore his finger during the first of the game, but was game and played as he always does.

Grandpa, the ladies' favorite, hit them some. He did everything else, too.

Maley could not have played better, unless he had been in the box.

Eckels has a bright future. He nabs them all. He is quick and is just the kind of a man for the position.

BASEBALL GOSSIP

The sporting papers are saying all sorts of things about "Win" Mercer. "Win" is to be associated during the fall with Umpire Cantillon, who is now arranging for post-season games between a picked team of American league players and the Champion Pittsburg team. The first two games will be played in Pittsburg, October 7 and 8; the next two in Cleveland, on the next two days, and two more in Chicago, October 11 and 12. It has not been decided yet where the seventh game will be played.

One paper says: : The makeup of the All-American team of Joe Cantillon, "Win" Mercer and "Tip" O'Neill, is as follows: Catchers, Sullivan and Kahoe; pitchers, Mercer, Bernhard, Lee; first base, Harry Davis; second base, Lajoie; third base, Bradley; shortstop, Monte Cross, left field, Hartzell; center field, Jones; right field, Barrett.

Win Mercer is reported by one paper as pitching the best ball of his career this season, and, oddly enough, batting miserably. Mercer says the American league will surely locate in Pittsburg next year.

In pitching Mercer has gained an average of .518, standing eighteenth in the list of pitchers. He has played 27 games, winning 14 and losing 13.

Toadix Carey, who is playing first base for the Washington American league, on last Friday had a batting average of .302. He is the third best batter in that club.

GOT RELIEF FROM THE START.

If you suffer from lumbago or any other disease of a similar nature, isn't it fair to suppose that if BLOOD WINE will cure another sufferer from the same trouble it will be of the same benefit to you? Hundreds of letters from grateful people tell of the good results which may be obtained from BLOOD WINE. J. L. Toryhen, 10 E. Merrimack Street, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I cannot speak too highly in praise of BLOOD WINE, as it has done me a vast amount of good. For several weeks I suffered terribly from lumbago, but failed to find anything beneficial until I commenced taking BLOOD WINE. I got relief from the start, and was soon able to resume work."

MRS. STEWART DEAD.

THROWN AGAINST A POLE.

Machine Ran Into It—She Was Riding With Two Young Men—Senator at The Hague In Connection With the Pius Arbitration Case.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William M. Stewart, wife of the senior United States senator from Nevada, was killed yesterday at Alameda, Cal. Mrs. Stewart was riding in an automobile with Henry Foote and a young man named Taylor. Through an accident the machine ran into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Stewart was thrown against the pole with great force and was so seriously injured that death soon followed. Her home was at Washington, D. C.

Stewart at The Hague.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Senator Stewart at present is at The Hague in connection with the Pius fund arbitration, in which he has taken a deep interest. The case involves title to a large amount of money claimed by the Catholic church of Lower California, to be held for it by the government of Mexico. It was due largely to the senator's efforts that the claim was submitted to the arbitration of the distinguished European tribunal now engaged on its settlement. The senator and Mrs. Stewart, since the sale of their old home on Dupont Circle, known as Stewart's Castle, to Senator Clark, of Montana, and its subsequent destruction, had lived in the winter time in an old-fashioned residence on F street, near the state, war and navy department building.

Not So Much In Society.

In the summer they spent more or less time at Ashburn, a village in Virginia, where the senator had established a large dairy farm, which he ran on scientific and sanitary principles. Of late years they had not taken so much interest in social affairs as formerly.

KAISER PRAISES ROOSEVELT.

Berlin, Sept. 13.—Emperor William, in saying goodby to Generals Corbin, Young and Wood yesterday, remarked that he was specially interested in the three Americans. He admired President Roosevelt unmeasuredly. He admired his versatility, courage, power for hard work and insight into the needs of his country. His majesty added that he watched Mayor Seth Low's administration of New York because he thought it important to the commercial world that New York city should be well governed. The emperor also said he was very sorry Andrew D. White, the United States ambassador, was leaving his court. He had the most cordial feeling for him personally, because of the man he is and for his services in fostering good will between Germany and the United States.

General Corbin had an opportunity to present President Roosevelt's message about the St. Louis exposition, and Emperor William replied that he would see that Germany had a good representation. "I will send you a large party," he added pleasantly.

His majesty sent some personal messages to President Roosevelt through General Corbin and asked to be remembered especially to "Miss Alice," as he called Miss Roosevelt.

The emperor conversed with each of the Americans and told them how much he had enjoyed their visit. The farewell took place on the field just after Emperor William returned from leading the cavalry charge, which concluded the manoeuvres.

MURDERED FORMER WIFE.

Man In Nebraska Also Killed Her Father and Wounded Her Mother.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 13.—Gottlieb Niegenfind Thursday night shot and killed his former wife, Mrs. Anna Peters, shot five times at Albert Breyer, her father, who died yesterday morning, and shot the wife of Breyer in the shoulder, seriously wounding her. After the shooting Niegenfind left the house and, meeting Mrs. Peters' sister, Lena Breyer, attempted a criminal assault, but was frightened away.

He had quarreled with his father-in-law over his children.

Two sheriff's posses were scouring the country for him.

Mrs. Peters had been divorced from her husband two years.

President Appoints Platt's Man.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The president has appointed Representative George W. Ray United States district judge of the northern district of New York, vice Alfred Coxe, who has been appointed United States circuit judge. The appointment settles a long controversy. Mr. Ray was Senator Platt's candidate.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY GREATER.

More So Than at Any Recent Date, Said Dun's Deview—Coke Blockade Still Exists.

Industrial activity is greater than at any recent date. Many new factories and mills have been added to the productive capacity, facilities are being increased at old plants, and idle shops resumed through the settlement of labor controversies. A coke blockade still exists, the railways being unable to handle the output, which is above all records and in urgent request. Despite the rapid development of transportation facilities, the nation's needs have grown still faster, and the situation is distressing for shippers and consumers. Large crops are being harvested, and the greater abundance of foodstuffs caused a decline in prices of commodities during August of 3.5 per cent, as measured by Dun's index number. Retail trade is large, with a bright outlook for the future in jobbing and wholesale business. There are few of the cancellations so numerous at this time last year, while collections are improving. An advance of 22.9 per cent in bank exchanges at New York over the same week last year cannot be explained by speculation, as dealings in stocks were also heavy in 1901. Railway earnings in August exceeded last year's by 4.2 per cent and those of 1900 by 18.1 per cent.

Although the weekly capacity of pig iron furnaces in blast on Sept. 1 was reported as 335,189 tons by the Iron Age, it has since been appreciably curtailed by the inadequate supply of fuel, on which account numerous furnaces were blown out or at least banked. As consumptive requirements are increasing, it is necessary to place orders abroad more extensively, and in some cases the entire output of foreign plants has been secured. Not only raw material, but billets and even rails are sought in other markets.

With the completion of early orders there has come a quiet market for woolens and worsted, but mills have large contracts on hand.

Low stocks of wheat and poor grading of receipts, together with fears of frost in corn sections, sustained quotations when a decline would have been imminent if full confidence were placed in official returns of condition.

Failures for the week numbered 205 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 18 a year ago.

CALL MONEY AT 20.

List Closed With Marked Declines, In Stock Market, Friday.

New York, Sept. 13.—Call money advanced to 20 per cent shortly before the close of yesterday's market and the list, which had been heavy throughout, closed with marked decline. Opening prices were lower, though mostly fractional, but the unsettled tone which characterized the day's comparatively moderate transactions was apparent from the outset. Missouri Pacific was the chief sufferer in the early trading, selling off about 2 points and making no recovery. The decline in the grangers and Pacifics was in part due to reports of frost in the corn belt.

The selling of Baltimore and Ohio was accompanied by reports that insiders had discounted the extra stock issue.

The United States Steel shares were heavy, with little or no evidence of support. There were movements in other stocks.

A Wonderful Echo.

At a watering place in the Pyrenees the conversation at table turned upon a wonderful echo to be heard some distance off on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

"It is astonishing," said an inhabitant of the Garonne. "As soon as you have spoken you hear distinctly the voice leap from rock to rock, from precipice to precipice, and as soon as it has passed the frontier the echo assumes the Spanish accent."—Pearson's Weekly.

Knights of Old.

The knights of the days of chivalry were so well protected by their armor that they were practically invincible to all ordinary weapons. Even when dismounted they could not be injured save by the misericordia, a thin dagger, which penetrated the chains of the armor. In more than one battle knights fallen from their horses could not be killed until their armor had been broken up with axes and hammers.

Good Cooks.

"If all sick people had good cooks," says the London Hospital, "how much greater might be the proportions of recoveries!" The value of the patent foods which are advertised so much lies largely, it says, in the ease with which they are prepared for the table.

A Half Partner.

A.—That woman who just went out is the partner of your joys and sorrows, I suppose.

B.—She's partner to my joys all right, but when it comes to my sorrows she slips over to see her mother.

Reversed.

Van Albert—Why, he questions pop, of course.—Chicago News.

In His Dreams.

Hewitt—When I was on the boat the other night, I had a lower berth, but I dreamed I was sleeping in the upper berth.

Jewett—Sort of overslept yourself, eh?

HEAD OF NAVAL ACADEMY.

Captain Brownson a Man of Good Record and Wide Experience.

President Roosevelt has paid a signal honor to Captain Willard Herbert Brownson, U. S. N., in appointing him to the post of superintendent of the Naval academy. Captain Brownson will take charge in October, when Commander Richard Wainwright will resume duty afloat. The superintendency of the academy, important at all times, will be even more so in the near future, when the recently authorized improvements and enlargements are to be consummated.

Although Captain Brownson entered the navy just too late to see service in the civil war, he has a brilliant record. He is a native of New York state and is fifty-seven years old. He was appointed a cadet in 1861 and was graduated with honors four years later.

After acting in a number of capacities afloat and ashore and seeing service against pirates in the gulf of Mexico, Commander Brownson was assigned to the Detroit in 1893. He attracted worldwide attention soon after by defying the Brazilian insurgent admiral at Rio Janeiro.

CAPTAIN WILLARD H. BROWNSON.

Just before the Spanish war Captain Brownson was assigned to the task of purchasing war vessels and munitions in Europe. During the war he commanded the Yankee, and since 1900 he has been in charge of the battleship Alabama. He will reach flag rank during his term of office at Annapolis.

Captain Brownson is universally conceded to be one of the ablest officers in the service. One of his superiors said of him a few years ago: "Brownson is poise and pluck personified. He is a fighter by instinct, and his instincts are quick and sure. For a thoroughly trained, all around man, to be depended on absolutely in any emergency, and with unlimited judgment and courage, we have no abler officer in the navy than Brownson."

The Hopping Rheumatism.

"Yes," said the old man, "'peared lak he wuz give over inter de han's er Satan, en Satan 'flicted him wid de hoppin' rheumatism. Fust it wuz in one place, en den it wuz another, but he went ter prayin' ter be relieve' of it, en one day, whilst it wuz a-hoppin' fum one j'int ter another, it hopped into his wooden leg, an' he pulled off de leg an' th'owed it in de fire, en it en de rheumatism wuz teetotally consumed."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Generous Empress.

It is said that one morning at breakfast a general related to the emperor the misfortunes of a brither officer who "because he had not 15,000 francs must be dishonored." While the emperor questioned further particulars Eugenie flew to her room and, returning with a package of banknotes, said, "Take them, general, and never tell me his name." And his name the generous empress never knew.

We know Walther's Peptonized Port is above and beyond all as a nutritious tonic and curative.

FOUND HIS WIFE

BUT SHE IS MARRIED TO ANOTHER MAN.

Pennsylvania Man's Hunt for Missing Spouse Leads to a Sensation.

Lisbon, September 13.—(Special)—Lycurgus Crossman, a farmer of West Sunbury, Pa., came here today in search of his wife and child. He found his wife married to another man and unwilling to give up the little one. They lived together for six years in Butler county, Pa., and they were anything but happy ones.

Four years ago when Jessie, the youngest, was four months old Mrs. Crossman took the baby, leaving the other two children, and left home. After much wandering she wound up at Lisbon and went to work as a house keeper for William Gamble, a stone mason, 68 years old. Though but 28 years of age she married Gamble on Nov. 6, 1901. She soon concluded that she had not found her affinity and left Gamble for John Griffith, with whom she is now living.

All this time Crossman had never heard from his absent spouse. Six weeks ago he started in search of her and found her here. With Sheriff Leonard he visited the Griffith home this morning. The interview was a stormy one, Mrs. Crossman told him he could not have the child; also that she would knock his brains out if he did not go away and leave her alone. The interested parties will have a meeting before Justice Dickinson this evening to see if their troubles can be patched up.

A Clever Pickpocket.

In Paris two police officers recently got upon the track of a pickpocket. They surprised him in the act at the omnibus bureau and followed him in hot pursuit. He was a thin, poorly clad young fellow. In the Rue Rochechonaut, however, he suddenly disappeared. Judging that he had slipped into one of the houses they set themselves to watch for his reappearance. The thief in the meantime had entered a bathing establishment, and after a refreshing bath entered the box of another bather and calmly clothed himself in the smart suit he found there, then passed proudly and peacefully out before the very eyes of his pursuers. The climax of humor came when the other bather, arrayed in the rags of the pickpocket, was grabbed by the officers of the law at the door and dragged off to the station house. With some difficulty the situation was explained; but the pickpocket is still laughing.

Make the Most of Your Gifts.

Personality has done wonders with both heredity and environment. It has made moderate gifts accomplish marvelous things. Men with moderate gifts, by patient and persistent application have put to shame the splendidly equipped, who have indolently frittered away their patrimony. Out of the most untoward surroundings men have found their way to the grandest achievements. The boy from the log cabin has outstripped the boy from the palace. The barefooted boy has outstripped the boy of pampered indulgence. The plodder has outstripped the genius. The tortoise has passed the hare. Whether a man be richly endowed or moderately endowed, his success will depend on the use he makes of what God has given him.—Independent.

POTTERY MAKING IN NEW JERSEY

Valuable Statistics on the Rise and Growth of the Industry at Trenton.

EFFECT OF COAL FAMINE

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., September 13.—The special committee appointed several weeks ago by the Mercer County Central Labor union to gather statistics of the pottery industry in this city has completed its work. The committee filed its report at a meeting last night. It will place it on file for reference for the several pottery labor organizations, which when disputes arise, are often called upon to consult statistics which are not always available. The central body is making a specialty of gathering reports for the several allied trades which when completed will be distributed in book form. The report begins with a short description of the manner in which clay products are mined, giving the location in New Jersey where the various kinds of material are found. With the exception of some porcelain clays found in the northern part of the state and some in Mercer county, substantially all the valuable clays and sands are mined in Middlesex county, which is the home of the terra cotta industry.

In relating the history of pottery in New Jersey the report reads:

"The first pottery works in New Jersey were erected at Old Bridge, Middlesex county, but the first white ware with any pretentions to artistic beauty was made by the American Pottery company at Jersey City in 1829.

"In 1852 the pottery industry of Trenton was begun by James Taylor in partnership with a man named Speeler. The Centennial exhibition in 1876 opened a new era in the pottery industry. The ivory porcelain and Parian vases exhibited there by Trenton manufacturers attracted much attention and greatly lessened the popular prejudice in favor of foreign made pottery. The stimulus thus given called into existance many new establishments, some of which afterwards became famous. Heretofore there had been little disposition on the part of practical master potters to go beyond the making of such ware as was put to ordinary uses. But employes and workmen grew in experience and skill and the reputation of Trenton pottery products became firmly established."

According to the report there are now 32 potteries in this city, representing a capital of nearly $8,000,000. $4,928,952 is represented in real estate. They are controlled by 42 proprietors and firm members who employ 238 salaried officials and clerks at salaries aggregating nearly $300,000 a year. The total number of men employed, including wage earners and piece workers is 4,289 whose yearly wages amount to $2,343,754.

The total cost of the materials used last year was $1,196,291 divided as follows: Clay, $292,500, fuel, $287,108, packing materials, $128,769, and miscellaneous, $487,914. The total value of products was nearly $5,000,000, showing a vast increase over the census report for 1900, which was $4,785,142.

Of this amount $751,444 represents the sale of cream colored ware and $442,354 was realized on white granite pieces.

Semi-vitreous porcelain brought $194,870. Bone china, delft and helleck ware brought a return or $42,000. Sanitary ware, which is coming to be the important branch of the local pottery industry, brought returns reaching nearly $2,000,000.

Solid porcelain bath and laundry tubs which is practically a new line of industry commanded $275,973. Electrical supplies of the same grade of clay together with porcelain door-knobs and hardware trimmings aggregate over $225,000. Terra cotta, fire and other clay products are credited with $83,160.

The machinery of the different plants is as follows: Disintegrators, 60; agitators, 70; slip pumps, 43; lawns, 48; clay presses, iron, 26, wood, 39. The other paradhernalia is set forth in the report as follows: Pugmills, 45, sagger mills, 58, wad mills, 31, jiggers, 166, and all other machines numbering 562. There are 152 up draft kilns, 33 with down draft and 62 decorating kilns.

Terra cotta, brick and tile are given a prominent place in the report which was only originally intended for statistics concerning the pottery industry.

The present coal famine may completely revolutionize pottery in this city. This is confined principaliy to the rougher grades of ware which are now being burned in kilns fired with soft coal. This condition was made necessary by the failure of the manufacturers to secure anthracite coal and nearly all in order to burn bituminous coal had their kilns remodeled. Since the soft coal has been given a trial those manufacturing a rougher grade of ware are not likely to go back to hard coal because of the cheapness of the other grade which they claim answers the purpose very well.

Charles M. Doneaghue, proprietor of the Trenton Stilt, Spur and Pin works, in talking to the News Review correspondent yesterday concerning the advisability of soft coal said:

"Before the present coal famine all of my kilns were so constructed as to burn only hard coal. When I learned that hard coal could not be procured I had them remodeled at an expense of $500 each.

I now find that bituminous coal is little adapted to firing materials made from a coarser grade of clay than is anthracite. In the first place it is cheaper and the kiln heats quicker. Even when the coal strike does end I do not think that I shall again use hard coal."

The few minor disputes which arose in some of the sanitary shops over the new sanitary list have been amicably adjusted. The trouble started in the Keystone pottery, when one of the shop foremen tried to place his version upon certain conditions provided for in the list. His ruling met with a protest from the employes, with the result that the trouble received several airings before the Sanitary Ware Pressers' Local No. 45. A committee which was appointed secured a peaceful settlement after several conferences with the owners of the plant.

Vice President Hutchins, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, has returned home after visiting East Liverpool and Baltimore, which was his home before coming to this city.

YOUNG MAN SUED

Charged With Paternity of a Child Born in the County Infirmary.

Miss Laura Munsey, the young woman found in a helpless and pitiable condition under the Jethro bridge on the evening of August 11, and who was taken in charge the next day by the infirmary directors and later was placed in the country infirmary by them, has made information against a young man, Herman Willison, in 'Squire Riddle's court, at Lisbon, charging him with being the father of her child, which was born shortly after her commitment to the institution. Willison was arrested and his case was set for a hearing in 'Squire Riddle's court yesterday, and he was placed under $300 bond.

Miss Munsey made the information a few days after the birth of her child and a warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Leonard. This official came to this city and searched for the man but to no avail. For quite a while Willison eluded the officer and finally tiring of his being hounded met Constable Powell and voluntarily surrendered. The constable took him before 'Squire McLane, who released him on a signed bond for his appearance before 'Squire Riddle.

A MALICIOUS FALSEHOOD

Published By a Sensation Monger on Two Successive Days.

Following the miserable fake published Wednesday by a local evening paper concerning "Big Six" Johnson, a former well known colored man of this city, whom that paper had as a fugitive from justice, charging him with the possible murder of Robert Gilmore at Finleyville, Pa., came another story which was written by the same pipesmoker, which is denounced nothing but a falsehood.

If the wind jammer really received the special from Alliance, as was claimed, he certainly has a confederate in that city of his own type. As was stated in the News Review last evening, the "Big Six" at Alliance is not wanted on the charge of murder and will not be arrested.

Acting Chief Dawson states that he received word from the chief of police at Alliance yesterday afternoon saying that "Big Six" was in Alliance on the day of the crime, and no suspicion rests upon him.

Pittsburg, Sept. 13.—At the second day's opening session of the Central German conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in the First church of Pittsburg, South Eighteenth street, yesterday, elders of the several districts reported work in excellent shape, with the exception of the Ohio district, where much sickness has prevailed in the past year.

progressing and that a debt of $13,000 is expected to be lifted this year. Several students of the German Wallace college, Berea, O., passed successful examinations for advancement. F. Maijens, J. Lanny and C. Rudin were ordained to the ministry and received into the conference. An invitation from the Third church of Cincinnati for the next conference was accepted unanimously.

In the afternoon Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald held a meeting of his cabinet of four presiding elders at the residence of Jacob Eiscle, in the East End. The appointment of pastors for the several churches in the conference was decided. Announcement of these will be made Monday.

Among the standing committee meetings were those of the Bible cause, deaconess cause and church extension. The last named committee decided to distribute about $1,000 in relief.

The evening session was devoted to missions. Rev. H. Praeger, of Cincinnati, spoke upon the deaconess' work, saying a deaconess will soon be at work in this city. Rev. C. E. Severinghaus, of Nashville, Tenn., preached a missionary sermon. The conference treasurer reported that the receipts were $10,697, an increase of $794 over last year.

BOSS A. R. SHEPHERD DEAD.

Began and Carried Out Improvements Which Made Washington a Magnificent City.

Washington, Sept. 13.—A private telegram received here yesterday afternoon from Batopilas, Mexico, announced the death there yesterday morning of Alexander R. Shepherd, who was vice president of the board of public works of the District of Columbia during the territorial government of the District in 1871 and two years later governor of the District. He was 67 years of age. The cause of death was peritonitis, brought on by an attack of appendicitis. Mrs. Shepherd, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Merchant, who reside in Washington, were informed of the serious illness of the governor Thursday and left at once for Batopilas.

Governor Shepherd, as the executive officer of the board of public works, in spite of vigorous opposition, began and successfully continued improvements in all parts of the city, with the result that Washington became a magnificent capital. To the governor is given credit for nipping in the bud a project for the removal of the capital to some western city, which was warmly agitated at one time. At the expiration of his term as governor, in company with New York capitalists, he purchased the old Hacienda San Miguel silver mines at Batopilas, which in later years have proved profitable, and there he has since resided. He leave, a widow and seven children.

FIRED UPON MOROS.

Americans Dispersed Enemy and Had No Casualties.

Manila, Sept. 13.—A party of Moros who occupied a wooded hill fired into Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, during the night of Sept. 9. The Americans returned the fire spiritedly and dispersed the enemy. There were no casualties among the troops.

Captain John J. Pershing, of the Fifteenth infantry, commanding the American forces at Lake Lanao, Mindanao, visited the friendly natives formally, Sept. 10. He took with him a troop of cavalry, two companies of infantry and two Maxim guns. The friendlies welcomed the Americans cordially and their meeting was successful. Brigadier General Samuel S. Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, cables that the expects to reach Camp Vicars today, Sept. 13.

PRISONERS ESCAPED.

Bound and Gagged Keeper, at Dayton, O.—One Recaptured.

Dayton, O., Sept. 13.—Four prisoners, Joseph Parker, charged with murder; Ira Bechtel, forgery; William Hickey, horse stealing, and Edward Williams, pocket picking, escaped from the county jail shortly after midnight Thursday night. Parker, who murdered his wife, attempted suicide following the murder, and his life for a long time hung by a thread. In consequence a watch was kept on him night and day, Joseph Dear being employed for that purpose.

The prisoners were kept on the second floor of the jail. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Night Turnkey Kershner, in the office of the first floor, was startled by an alarm signal from the second floor. Responding he found Dear greatly excited. He said the prisoners had bound and gagged him and cast him into a corner. They then cut a hole through the steel ceiling and attic floor to the roof, and then slid down lightning rods to freedom.

Dear is unable to give an intelligible explanation. He is held in the jail pending an investigation. Ira Bechtel was recaptured at his home, Green and Tecumseh streets, by Deputy Sheriff Wright. He was with his wife. He said that the prisoners had been engaged for five or six weeks in sawing their way out.

SITUATION REPORTED SERIOUS.

Revolutionists on Isthmus of Panama Near Railroad Line.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The navy department received from Commander Potter, of the gunboat Ranger, at Panama, the following dispatch, dated Thursday:

"Your cipher message of this morning received. The revolutionists are near the railroad line and the situation is serious. The transit across the isthmus is still open.

"Potter."

The cipher message referred to was one from the navy department announcing the sending of the Wisconsin and the Cincinnati to the scene. The Cincinnati has left Cape Haytien and will arrive at Colon tomorrow.

Large Sums For McKinley Memorial.

The donors, 15 in number, are Philadelphians. They requested their names to be held from the public. He promises a check for $15,000 more soon.

Coal was for the first time used as fuel in this country at Wilkesbarre on Feb. 11, 1802.

The Lieutenants of Morgan

One of the prime elements in the success of J. Pierpont Morgan, the head of the United States Steel corporation and other great industrial and financial enterprises, is his tact in surrounding himself with men competent to carry out the details of his vast projects. His chief lieutenants are George W. Perkins and Charles M. Schwab. The former looks after the Wall street interests of the great financier, while the latter, until recently compelled to take a temporary rest on account of health, managed the affairs of the corporation controlling eight-tenths of the steel output of this country which Mr. Morgan's genius as a promoter brought into being.

wholly dissimilar, there is much in their careers that is analogous. Both are comparatively young men and possessed of remarkable energy and business sagacity. Mr. Perkins was born on Jan. 31, 1862, and Mr. Schwab on Feb. 18 of the same year. Each began at the lower rung of the ladder, though in widely separated spheres, and both have risen to eminence in the financial world with almost meteoric rapidity.

Mr. Perkins was the son of an insurance agent of moderate means in Chicago, where he received his early training. He was even at an early age remarkably quick and accurate at figures, though he cared very little for other studies. His business career was marked with unusual success from its very beginning, which was in a humble position in the Chicago office of the New York Life Insurance company. He became successively bookkeeper, cashier, inspector of agencies and superintendent of the western department. Then he was called to the home office of the company in New York and leaped almost at a bound into the third vice presidency.

From that time forward until he became associated with Mr. Morgan there was not a big loan made or a large investment financed by the company that Mr. Perkins did not know all about, and in most of them he was the guiding spirit.

He was instrumental to a large degree in putting up the big marble building that is the monument of the company on Broadway in New York. He went to Europe and reorganized general agencies there and then came back to reorganize them here. He introduced reforms and suggested policies that attracted the attention of business men.

Mr. Morgan knew of them, as he has known for a long time of the doings of many young men in the mercantile field with a capacity for executive management, a good head for figures and above all an ability to keep their own counsel.

One day Mr. Perkins received an offer from Mr. Morgan to get out of the insurance business and go into his office. It was an opportunity that few men would care to throw away, irrespective of salary considerations. It was said at the time that Morgan gave Mr. Perkins nearly triple the salary he got with the insurance company and that he received $12,000 a year with the latter.

However this may be, it is evident that for the business sagacity and executive ability that he brings to the aid of the great financier's big enterprises he receives an ample reward. Mr. Perkins lives in one of the most palatial residences on Riverside drive, overlooking the Hudson.

For ten years or more Mr. Perkins has been an influential man in financial circles in New York, but not in a manner that was calculated to bring his name much before the public. It is only since his name appeared as going to Ohio for a conference with Senator Hanna as to a possible settlement of the coal strike that he has begun to be talked about. Since then he has been much in the public eye, particularly during the time Mr. Morgan was in Europe, when he was in direct control of the latter's vast interests.

The confidence which Mr. Morgan has in Mr. Perkins and the close relations between them were aptly illustrated by a recent incident. Upon his return the other day from Europe Bishop Potter consulted Mr. Morgan as to the status of the coal strike and the prospect of settlement.

"Go to my office and ask Perkins," was the sole reply of the great man who controls steel and iron and railroads as the player moves the figures on a chessboard.

Mr. Morgan's other lieutenant, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, is perhaps not so closely allied to him as Mr. Perkins and operates in a very different field, though he is no less an important factor in his enterprises. No career in American industrial life has been more spectacular than that of Mr. Schwab. Born amid very humble surroundings and self educated, he was at the age of thirty-nine elected president of the largest combine in the world, the United States Steel corporation, at a salary generally understood to be $1,000,000.

In the steel industrial combination Mr. Schwab is generally considered as the representative of Andrew Carnegie, who holds a prior lien on the entire property of the corporation in the $305,000,000 of bonds paid to him for his Carnegie steel mills, of which Mr. Schwab was then president.

In dates and facts Mr. Schwab's meteoric career may be briefly summarized: Born at Williamsburg, Pa., forty years ago of poor parents, he attended a small elementary school until he was sixteen years of age and then began clerking in a grocery store at $2.50 a week. At eighteen he obtained work in the Edgar Thomson Steel works, operated by Andrew Carnegie at Braddock, Pa., at a dollar a day. He was set to driving stakes and did it so well that within six months he became assistant engineer.

Just seven years after he entered the Carnegie concern he was sent as chief engineer, then at the age of twenty-five, to rebuild the great Homestead steel plant.

In 1887 he became superintendent of the Homestead works, and five years later he was made general superintendent of the Thomson works. He subsequently built the great steel rail mill and practically reconstructed the entire plant, receiving at this time a salary of $35,000 a year.

In 1896 he was elected a member of the board of managers and in 1897 president of the Carnegie steel mills. He drew a salary of $50,000, with an interest in the amount of business done by the company. Then followed the election to the United States Steel corporation presidency in 1901, the position which he now occupies.

Since that time Mr. Schwab has been a resident of New York and has been an interesting figure in the social and financial world. He is many times a millionaire and spends his money freely, both for his own gratification and for benevolent purposes.

Mr. Schwab recently purchased a lot on Riverside drive, in New York, not far from the residence of Mr. Perkins, on which he is to build a home which it is said will be the most gorgeous private residence in America. The entire investment, house and lot, is expected to amount to about $5,000,000.

Mr. Schwab took a trip to Europe last winter, during which time he was almost continually in the public eye. First he went to Monte Carlo. Extravagant reports came back by cable of his winnings and losses at the gambling table. There was widespread comment upon these reports, and it was currently reported in Wall street, though subsequently denied, that J. P. Morgan & Co. cabled to Mr. Schwab inquiring into the truth of the reports and advising no more gambling. The stories of the Monte Carlo winnings and losses thereupon ceased.

When next heard of, Mr. Schwab was in Vienna. He was accorded a most gracious reception by the emperor of

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

Austria, and it was reported that the emperor wanted to see Mr. Schwab again, but found it impossible to arrange it. Then he went to London, and King Edward and he had a half hour's talk, the details of which were more or less fully reported.

A short time ago Mr. Schwab was taken suddenly ill while driving at Atlantic City, where he has a country residence, and is now taking a vacation for his health. He, however, still retains his position as president of the United States Steel corporation, and his close friends declare that his illness is not of a serious character.

Railroad Time Tables.

The genius to arrange a railroad time card, or time table, so that it may be readily, easily and accurately understood by the occasional traveler is not yet born. Perhaps he will have to be made. But no matter how much the patrons of a road may be mystified the management takes particular pains to supply a special card "for the government and information of employees only." This table is so simple that a child can understand it. The second page usually contains a table showing the rate of speed required per mile for a train to travel a given number of miles in an hour. It starts at fifteen miles an hour, which is four minutes to the mile, and goes as high as 100 miles an hour, or a mile in thirty-six seconds, and shows 200 subdivisions.

This card gives locations of regular water stations, yard limits, situations of standard clocks, maximum speed of freight trains between different towns, what days are holidays, speeds at which trains may cross bridges at various hours and a list of all stations and trains. It is likely, of course, that were similar cards furnished to the traveling public there would be no abatement of fool questions. Besides, it is not to the interest of a railroad company to take the public too entirely into its confidence.—New York Press.

Who Executed Charles I.?

In the burial register of Whitechapel under the year 1649 is the following entry:

"June 21st. Richard Brandon, a man out of Rosemary lane. This Brandon is held to be the man who beheaded Charles the First."

A less distinguished candidate for the infamy was one William Howlett, actually condemned to death after the restoration for a part he never played and only saved from the gallows by the urgent efforts of a few citizens who swore that Brandon did the deed. Brandon was not available for retribution. He had died in his bed six months after Charles was beheaded and had been hurried ignominiously into his grave in Whitechapel churchyard. As public executioner of London he could hardly escape his destiny, but it is said that remorse and horror shortened his days. In his supposed "Confession," a tract widely circulated at the time, he claims that he was "fetched out of bed by a troop of horse" and carried against his will to the scaffold; also that he was paid £30, all in half crowns, for the work and had "an orange stuck full of cloves and a handkerchief out of the king's pocket." The orange he sold for 10 shillings in Rosemary lane.—Harper's Magazine.

Washington's Birthday.

Washington's birthday was made a legal holiday by vote of the Massachusetts legislature April 15, 1856; therefore Feb. 22, 1857, was first a legal holiday. For many years previous Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis held a reception at her home on Feb. 22, to which all the people of the city of Boston were invited. Her house was open to the public on that day, and before and after the day became a legal holiday all the military companies of Boston would parade past her house on the 22d. Probably the first occasion of Washington's birthday being recognized was Feb. 12, 1781. That was by the French troops at Newport, R. I. As the 11th fell on Sunday, the celebration was held on the 12th. This was according to the old style of reckoning.

Checking a Hemorrhage.

Even a very slight hemorrhage is always startling, but it does not necessarily mean anything dangerous. It may be caused by a slight disarrangement of the stomach as well as by a disease of the lungs or heart. No one but an experienced physician should decide this question, however. Let the patient lie quietly and give him cold drinks until a physician comes. A little salted water is a simple, familiar household remedy for such cases. Quiet and rest are positively essential if the cause is a serious one.

THE COLLECTOR WHO KNEW

"The trouble with you fellows is you want things, but you know nothing about 'em. You come over here and carry home a lot of truck that a European collector wouldn't give house room, and when you see a really good thing you don't know it, or you won't pay a price for it unless some dealer makes you. You see, you don't know; that's what's the matter; how can you? Nobody in America wanted antiques before the Centennial. If you'd lived here tweaty years, like me, you'd learn something, you'd find out that collecting isn't a thing of money, but knowing."

We had been walking in Venice down a narrow calle while the collector was speaking. "Look at that old brass scale," he resumed, pointing to a fish stall in the little outdoor market on which we had just emerged. "There's a gem, not very old, but of the finest seventeenth century Venetian work. If you saw that in a New York dealer's, all cleaned up, you'd give up a good deal for it; but you'd 'a' passed it by a dozen times if I hadn't spoken about it. See that old junk stand over there? I never pass a thing like that. You can never tell what you may pick up—if you only know."

We had scarcely reached the stand when the collector thrust out his hand with the swiftness of a hawk darting on its prey, and swooped upon a little jewel box.

"Carnelian! Russian, I should say, from the Ural mountains. It's not of great value, but it's a pretty little thing, if it was cleaned up. It's mine, anyway." To the keeper of the stall: "Quanto?"

The Venetian slowly uncoiled himself and came down from the church steps, where he had been sleeping.

"Does the signore want the pretty trifle? The signore knows its value better than I, and he'll be generous?"

"I'll give you a lira for it. It isn't worth it, but one mustn't be hard with the poor."

"I had hoped I should get five!"

"Well, I'll make it two."

"It is the signore's."

"There, you see!" exultingly chuckled the collector. "That's what it is to know. An exquisite carnelian Russian jewel casket for 40 cents! You'd never have thought of looking among a lot of rusty old iron for a thing like that, would you?"

While speaking he held the box with a miser's clutch.

"May I see it, please?"

He reluctantly handed it to me as though fearing I might make a sudden dash down the calle with his treasure.

"Phew!" said I contemptuously, handing the box back to him. "It's not carnelian at all. It's glass, nothing but glass."

"Glass!" drawing a magnifier from his waistcoat pocket and mutely examining the purchase. "I'm—I'm—afraid—it is!" he said sheepishly.

"Of course it is."

"I—don't know," sadly. "Yes, it is glass! You see, it's so dirty. Oh, well, we all make mistakes at times. Do you want it?" disgust taking the place of sadness. "You can have it for a quarter."

"Well, I guess it's worth a quarter." I think my eyes must have snapped. "Yes."

Miss Monie Bowey.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

Financial Manager of The Coal Strike

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 13.—One of the most interesting figures among the men who have been conducting the business end of the anthracite miners' strike is that of William B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. As the financial manager of the strike he receives and disburses funds to the amount of $2,000,000 a month.

For the handling of this vast amount of money he receives a modest salary, of which he contributes 25 per cent to the relief fund. While half a million dollars of miners' money passes through his hands every week, probably not more than $2,000 a year goes to his own account for the services he renders.

Wilson is a Scotchman by birth, slow, frugal and absolutely trusted by his fellows. He is under bond to the United Mine Workers' association in the meager sum of $25,000. He is a round headed man with wide open blue eyes, set well apart, and he talks slowly and with great deliberation. He conveys the impression of possessing great caution, application and fixity of purpose, and he handles the vast sums of money that the mails bring to his desk every morning as if it were a commercial product and not the legal tender of the country. He is assisted in his work by about a dozen young women, who handle the money, keep the books and attend to the vast amount of correspondence that is necessary to conduct the business of the association. Wilson designed the system by which the association's funds are handled, and it is simplicity itself.

The headquarters of President Mitchell are in Wilkesbarre, from which place he directs the miners' strike, while Wilson stays here in Indianapolis and collects and distributes the sinews of war. Indianapolis is the general headquarters of the association because it is the geographical center of the coal mining industry of the United States. Mitchell's office is here, and here he can be found in times of peace, directing the fortunes of the association.

The career of the man is as interesting as his present occupation and office. He was born in Blantyre, Scotland, and came to America when he was seven years old. When he was nine years old, he was a mine worker. His father was a miner, but owing to an injury to his back was able to undercut a coal bank, but unable to do his loading into the cars. This the boy did for him.

At the age of eleven years he was a half member of the Miners and Laborers' Benevolent association. In 1876, when he was fourteen years old, he was local secretary of the union, and he was only nineteen years of age when he was dismissed from employment in the mines because of his active connection with the union. He went to Iowa and dug coal and worked on railroads and returned to Pennsylvania, where he again got occupation in the mines. In 1885 young Wilson was elected a member of the district executive board in Pennsylvania and five years later was a party to the organization of the United Mine Workers' association.

He became a member of the national executive board of that body in 1891 and was then elected president of District No. 2 of Bituminous, Pa. May 8, 1900, he was appointed to fill the vacancy created in the office of secretary-treasurer and was elected to it in 1901 and re-elected in 1902. He is supreme financial officer of the organization.

Such in brief has been the career of the man in whom the mine workers of the country place such absolute trust that they send him their contributions without hesitancy. Wilson is now forty years old, but in spite of the fact that he went to work in the mines when only nine years old he has been able through the qualities of persistence and concentration, which he possesses to a marked degree, to educate himself. He has read much and is a competent mining engineer.

WILLIAM P. HASTINGS.

[Special Correspondence.]

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 13.—Will N. Harben was taken to task the other day by the original of one of the characters in his new novel, "Abner Daniel," which the Harpers have just issued. The mountaineer and ex-moonshiner called on the author in his office in Dalton, Ga. Mr. Harben saw by the angry fire in the man's eye that serious trouble was brewing.

"Look y' heer," said the visitor, "folks says you've been pokin' fun at me in a book. I don't know whether it's so or not, but I'm heer to say ef it is me 'n' you'll hitch in short order."

The man, the prototype of Mr. Harben's Pole Baker, was a powerful fellow, who had had as many shooting scrapes as he had fingers and toes, and the worst part of the affair was that the author had really drawn his portrait in the novel. Harben deliberated and then said:

"Mr. ——, I know you are a fair man and will do what is right. Here is a copy of the book. Sit down and read it, and then, if you desire, I will give you satisfaction."

The man flushed under the unusual proposition, but finally consented and sat down near the author's desk. All the afternoon he bent over the book. Mr. Harben went in and out of the office several times without causing the reader to raise his head.

Finally he laid the book down and said sheepishly: "I don't think I kin kick. I was a little afeerd you'd made me show the white feather, but that feller they say is like me's got a sight more grit 'n' I have. Huh!" admiringly. "He'd fight a circular saw bare handed. No, I don't think I kin kick."

One of the most fascinating novels of the Revolutionary period thus far given to the world is "My Captive," which has just been published by D. Appleton & Co. The author is Joseph A. Altsheler, the Kentucky novelist and journalist, whose books, "The Sun of Saratoga," "A Soldier of Manhattan," "In Circling Camps," etc., have given the author a well deserved reputation as a writer of excellent historical fiction. "My Captive" is a pretty Tory, and her captor is Philip Marcel, a Continental soldier, serving under Generals Greene and Morgan. He says:

"I looked at the prisoner, and I was vexed by doubt. With a battle on one side of him and a woman on the other what is a man to do? She returned my gaze with great, pure eyes, which seemed to say I was a villain, a monster. Yet I had been doing my exact duty, that of a faithful soldier in the cause of the Continental congress and freedom, while she—a woman, a girl—had presumed to turn from the things for which God intended her and to meddle with war. I was more than vexed—I was angry, angry at her for attempting such a task and angry at myself for being forced into a situation so full of troubles."

These are the opening lines of the story, and the adventures of the fair Tory and the man she calls "rebel" fill 281 very interesting pages. Mr. Altsheler has the true art of the story teller, and "My Captive" takes the reader's attention prisoner and holds it from first page to finis.

The new novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn," which has been running as a serial, will soon be published in book form. This novel is Mr. Smith's longest one as well as his most ambitious. The chief part of the story deals with the life of an artist in New York, and Mr. Smith pictures artistic and literary life in New York during the last thirty-five years, with which he has been so familiar. The early part of the story is practically the history of the end of one civilization—that of the old south, where the hero was born, and from which he is transferred to New York studios and so called Bohemian cafes.

WHY WHITE RETIRES.

Withdrawal of Embassador to Germany Due to Advancing Age.

Andrew D. White, United States embassador to Germany, whose resignation of the post at Berlin goes into effect on Nov. 1, will be seventy years of age on the day fixed for his retirement. The reason assigned for his withdrawal from the post which he has so creditably filled is his advancing years.

Mr. White has represented this country at Berlin since 1897. Much of the time his duties were trying and complicated, especially preceding and during the Spanish-American war, when the sympathy of the German court seemed to favor our enemies.

Mr. White's diplomatic career began when he was only twenty-two years old, just after his graduation from Yale, when he was appointed an attache at St. Petersburg. Later he was president of Cornell university, resigning in 1885. Since then he has been minister to Russia and also a member of the Venezuela commission.

The untimely death of Mr. White's son last year is said to have hastened his decision to retire to private life.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You may prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get the reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

WHERE HOPS GROW

[Special Correspondence.]

Pleasanton, Cal., Sept. 13—Very few people appreciate the growing importance of the hop industry in this country and the present large scale on which it is conducted. Enough is now grown here to supply not only the home demand, but to help out thirsty Englishmen, 65,000 bales being annually exported to Great Britain. The acreage in both countries is the same (55,000), but the demand is different, more beer being consumed by Englishmen than in any other country in the world, not even excluding Germany, figuring on a per capita basis. It will thus be seen that a hop growing country has one big claim to supremacy in the world of trade.

The drawback is that hops will not grow everywhere. They demand warm, dry valleys removed from the sea. Of the area under cultivation in this country 7,500 acres are in California, twice as many as in any other state in the Union, and the biggest single hop farm is at this place, where 500,000 vines grow under one wire, covering the country with a canopy of pale green vines and blossoms and exhaling a heavy odor, which is most oppressive.

The entire product of this farm, amounting to 2,800 bales, is sent direct to a famous maker of pale ale in London and brings in to the growers about $110,000 every year. So highly does the brewer value these hops that he pays from 2 to 4 cents more a pound for them than for any other hops from the same locality.

The entire hop output of America is worth about $16,000,000 annually, and to harvest this crop an army of 240,000 men, women and children is employed as pickers alone, for there are 72,000,000 hop vines to be stripped. The picking has to be done by hand within the month of September, when the blossoms are at their best. The work is not very arduous or difficult, but it demands speed, and for this reason the army of hop pickers must be concentrated in short order at the various farms throughout the country.

The pickers form a picturesque settlement while the season is in progress.

THE BELLE OF THE HOPFIELD.

They come from the countryside, from the mountains and from the cities and camp at the scene of their labors. Their tents, thatched huts and wigwams form a wonderfully attractive picture for the space of a few weeks, and then the pickers, their work done, disappear like magic for another year. The average pay is 85 cents for every 100 pounds of blossoms gathered, and each worker earns on an average $1.05 a day. Their pay, however, is based on the prevailing price for hops. Some families come to hopfields and work as a unit, earning about $10 every day that the season lasts. The biggest individual picking recorded was 458 pounds by a young man of nineteen, who thus earned $3.80 for his day's work.

The Pleasanton plantation is notable in that it employs only white labor and does not allow intoxicants to be used on the premises. The result is that a superior class of workers is attracted to the place, and not a few women and young girls are to be seen busy in the fields. Each harvester pulls down a vine and picks off its hundreds of little, light blossoms, dropping them into a large open basket. When the basket is filled, its contents are transferred to a large sack.

Hop picking has but two drawbacks. One is the so called hop poisoning, which is a sort of prickly heat or rash sometimes produced by contact of face and arms with the nettlelike fuzz on the stalks of the hop vine. It does not affect all pickers. The other is the dark staining of the hands resulting from the resin of the blossom. It may be removed by rubbing with the crushed green leaves of the hop.

When the wife is tormented with backache, distressed by headache, and racked by nervousness, she has no ambition for exercise or pleasure.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures headache, backache, and other womanly ills by curing the diseases of the womanly organism which cause them. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"COMPULSORY" LAW

WOULDN'T BIND WORKINGMEN

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, came here last night and was presented with about $3,000 by the organized workmen of this city for the benefit of the striking mine workers, at a joint mass meeting of the United Trades association, the Allied Building Trades and the Central Labor union, held at Labor Lyceum hall. The money was gathered by these organizations through house-to-house contributions, jars placed on street corners and other places and proceeds from picnics. After the relief money had been formally presented to him Mr. Mitchell made a short address. He said, in part, that the spokesmen of the operators contended they were making a fight for individual liberty and for a principle, but Mr. Mitchell claimed the operators are battling to give wages satisfactory only to the coal trust. He said the strikers are just as firm today as they were four months ago.

Three Killed by Police.

The coal operators, he said, have characterized the miners' union as an "irresponsible and lawless body." He admitted there had been some lawlessness, but "of the six persons killed in the coal fields since the strike was started, three were murdered by the coal and iron policemen." No one deplored lawlessness more than he did, even though committed by his own brother. He characterized most of the special policemen as "criminals and thugs."

Continuing, the miners' president said in part:

"Governor Stone is contemplating an extra session of the Pennsylvania legislature for the purpose of having enacted a compulsory arbitration law. The miners are willing to arbitrate, but they are not willing to have compulsory arbitration. They are not willing to enslave the workmen of Pennsylvania in order to get out of their difficulty. It has been the invariable rule for workmen throughout the country to abide by the decision of arbitration boards and also the rule for organized workmen to stand by their contracts."

He referred to the recent public statement of ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, of New York city, in which he said Mr. Mitchell was responsible for the anthracite strike and that he had ordered the bituminous miners to quit work, but they had refused. Mr. Mitchell denied these statements and also refuted Mr. Hewitt's claim that he has been a friend of labor. Mr. Hewitt, he said, is a director in the Erie railroad and a director in a very large coal company. "All of the men in the employ of Mr. Hewitt in West Virginia," Mr. Mitchell said, "are on strike, although he never told that to the public."

Frail Children Have to Work.

He pictured the young and frail children going to the mines and factories, when they ought to be in the schools, where they could receive an education and become good citizens of their country. He asked the citizens of Philadelphia to further assist the strikers. "We cannot win the strike alone," he said, in part, "but with the help of the trades unions of the country victory will be ours."

President Mitchell left here after 11 o'clock last night for Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Sept. 13.—Governor Stone said yesterday afternoon that there was no conflict between him and Senator Quay in attempting to settle the coal strike. He said: "Certainly not. I am glad to see that Senator Quay is moving in the matter. Everyone ought to do all that he can to help on a settlement."

CONFERENCE ON THE STRIKE.

Late Last Night Mitchell, Stone, Flinn and Others Get Together.

Harriaburg, Sept. 13.—A conference was held at the executive mansion last night between Governor Stone, Senator William Flinn and M. K. McMullin, of Pittsburg, President Mitchell and District Presidents Duffy, Fahy and Nichols, of the United Mine Workers, for the purpose of discussing means of settling the anthracite coal strike.

The conference was held at the suggestion of the governor, who has devised a plan by which he hopes to effect a settlement between the operators and miners without the necessity of an extra session of the legislature for the enactment of arbitration legislation.

The governor declined to outline his plan in advance of the conference and none of the other parties to it would make any statement until after they had seen the executive and heard his suggestions for ending the strike.

DEMOCRAT INTRODUCED A CODE.

Reading Interrupted by Adjournment of Ohio Senate—Friend of Foraker Addressed House.

Columbus, Sept. 13.—The senate was only in session about five minutes yesterday. Senator Royer introduced the York code bill, the only measure presented by a Democratic member, and the clerk was proceeding to read it, when he was interrupted by Senator Hosea, who moved an adjournment until Monday at 4:30 p. m. While only four or five members voted in favor of the motion, those opposed to it being given no opportunity to protest, the motion was declared carried by Senator Wirt, who was presiding.

Judge E. B. King, of Sandusky, one of the Republican leaders in Northwestern Ohio and a close friend of Senator Foraker, addressed the house yesterday on the constitutionality of municipal codes. He expressed the opinion that the Guerin amendment to cure the defects in the Cincinnati Traction company property, made by the decision knocking out the Rogers law, would be constitutional. Secretary Goldsmith, of the Ohio Federation of Labor, addressed the committee in a petition that an eight hour law be incorporated in the code.

A committee was appointed to present resolutions upon the anniversary of President McKinley's death. The house adjourned over until Monday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Pierce Dead.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Rev. Dr. William C. Pierce, a pioneer Methodist minister, of the Western Reserve, died yesterday at the residence of his granddaughter in this city. He was born in Peru, Berkshire county, Mass., in 1815, and was for a number of years a member of the faculty of Baldwin university, Berea, O. He had labored in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Await New Legislation.

Akron, O., Sept. 13.—The petit jury in common pleas court was discharged yesterday and there will be no more jury trials in Summit county until a new jury law is passed by the legislature. This is the result of the question raised in a damage case Tuesday that Summit county was working under a law to which it had no right.

Truth.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always near at hand, sits upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

A Stay at Home Traveler.

Stranger—What wonderful tales old Blinks relates! He must have been a great traveler in his day.

Native—He was never outside the county in his life; but, you see, his mind has wandered for years.—Exchange.

Every man should know something of law. If he knows enough to keep out of it he is a pretty good lawyer.

A fast man is very slow when it comes to paying his debts.—Philadelphia Record.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

SOME TRI-STATE EVENTS.

The Pen Mar Coal company has purchased the Standard Nos. 1, 2 and 3 mines at Pine Hill, Pa., from the W. T. Rainey company.

Mrs. W. Bowman, wife of a motorman on the Mahoning valley electric lines, died in a dentist's chair at Niles, O., while under the influence of chloroform.

The National Association of Master Bakers adjourned at Cincinnati to meet next year in Philadelphia and the following year in St. Louis. Robert B. Ward, of Pittsburg, was chosen a member of the executive committee.

Perry S. Minshall, ex-president of the Mineral county court, and a member of the firm of Puter & Minshall, who had been suffering with nervous prostration for several months, shot and killed himself at Piedmont, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cowles, of Akron, O., have celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Sixty years ago he was a teacher at Oberlin college, when Rhoda Barnum, a student, and he became sweethearts and soon after were married.

The annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of West Virginia elected officers at Wheeling as follows: T. M. Barnes, of Clarksburg, president; J. W. Loach, of Benwood, first vice president; J. Tregallis, of Grafton, second vice president; M. C. Whitlatch, of Parkersburg, third vice president; John C. Strobel, of Wheeling, secretary; Val Fruth, of Charleston, treasurer. The next convention will be held at Parkersburg.

Prof. Mac Mossman, of Newark, O., caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of his wife, Mrs. Annie Mossman, charging her with threatening to shoot him. Justice Atcherly had not more than issued the warrant for Mrs. Mossman's arrest than he was called upon to issue a similar one, Mrs. Mossman claiming she was afraid of her husband. Prof. Mossman met his wife in Huntington, W. Va., and their wedding followed in a few hours after the meeting.

The body of a man named William Holmes was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, at Pittsburg, by a track walker. The man had been struck by a train. His head was split open, and his brains were scattered over the tracks for some distance.

Chairman Thomas E. Burton and several members of the congressional rivers and harbors committee, accompanied by a number of Pittsburg rivermen, left on an inspection of the local harbors about Pittsburg.

Superintendent John McAleese, of the Pittsburg bureau of police, will probably show conclusively that he intends to strike at the heart of a system of managing disorderly houses that has sprung up in the city. He has practically completed the work preliminary to prosecutions of agents and owners of houses used to line the pockets of certain people.

Ralph J. Williams, 6½ years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Williams, of 1240 Talbot avenue, Braddock, Pa., died from the effects of a teaspoonful of carbolic acid administered by his parents by mistake for a medicine that had been prescribed by a physician.

A Kiss and a Bite.

In his volume, "The Kiss and Its History," Dr. Christopher Nyrop of the University of Copenhagen relates that in England in 1837 Thomas Saveland brought an action against Miss Caroline Newton, who had bitten a piece out of his nose for his having tried to kiss her by way of a joke. The defendant was acquitted, and the judge laid it down that "when a man kisses a woman against her will she is fully entitled to bite his nose if she so pleases."

"And eat it up, if she has a fancy that way," added a jocular barrister half aloud.

His Bluff Quickly Called.

"I want you to understand," he said "that I'm the master in this house."

"All right," she replied. "Go out and tell the cook that we're going to have company all next week."

Then he put on his hat and went away, making sarcastic remarks about people who were afraid to say their souls were their own.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Learning.

Elizabeth, a little Boston girl, is seven. Quite an old girl now is Elizabeth. "You do not mind me as well as you did when you were two years old," observed her grandmother.

"You see, I didn't know anything then, and so of course I always did just what any one told me to," replied Elizabeth.—Buffalo Commercial.

Expressive.

It was Tommy's first glass of soda water that he had been teasing for so long.

"Well, Tommy, how does it taste?" asked his father.

"Why," replied Tommy, with a puzzled face, "it tastes like your foot's asleep."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

VANDERBILT'S FIANCEE.

Miss Neilson Is a Beauty and Has a Fortune of Her Own.

Miss Kathleen Gebhard Neilson, whose engagement to Reginald C. Vanderbilt has just been announced, is a member of the old New York family of Neilson and has an ample fortune in her own right.

Her father, who died several years ago, was prominent in New York society, and her mother was Miss Belle Gebhard, a sister of Fred Gebhard, the well known clubman.

Miss Neilson inherits the beauty of her mother. She is tall, shapely and in addition to being an excellent golfer, tennis player and swimmer is a highly accomplished horsewoman. She is a devout Catholic and is regular in attendance at confession and mass.

Until the engagement was announced Miss Kathleen spelled her Christian name with a "K," but the cards bearing the notice of her betrothal spelled it with a "C," and society is interested in knowing why the "K" was dropped. It is said that young Vanderbilt's mother was opposed to the marriage because of Miss Neilson's religion, but her objection has been overcome.

Reginald Calhoun Vanderbilt is the youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. He may still be called a college boy, for as he failed to pass his examinations in June at Yale he is supposed to be preparing to take his degree this fall.

When his father died, Reginald fell heir to $5,000,000 without conditions. Then there was a trust fund of $5,000,000 divided among the four children, share and share alike. The rest of his wealth he inherited from his grandfather's estate. The Vanderbilt millions are well invested, and his income is not less than $400,000 a year. Further, in the event of the death of his elder brother, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, without issue, Reginald would be the residuary legatee to an amount which is now more than $40,000,000. But that contingency is very remote.

A Fit Subject.

Mrs. De Jarr—Is there an idiot asylum near here?

Mr. De Jarr—I believe so.

"Do they take people on their own recommendation?"

"My stars! How should I know? Why?

"Oh, nothing, only today I got hold of a package of my old love letters."—New York Weekly.

A Natural Question.

Little Walter was eating lunch, when he gave his arm a sudden shove, and, splash! down went his glass of milk.

"I knew you were going to spill that" said mamma angrily.

"Well, if you knew," queried Walter, "why didn't you tell me?"

Solving the Problem.

"What can I do for my little boy," asked mamma, "so that he won't want to eat between meals?"

"Have the meals ticker together," replied the young hopeful.

Use Walther's Peptonized Port once and you will use no other medicine. Test it. See advertisements.

DOWN TO FACTS

Get down to the facts of the matter. Don't take a stranger's word. It is easier to prove the truthfulness of statements made by citizens of East Liverpool than endorsement coming from some far away place. Read the following:

Mr. S. C. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across my back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W., pharmacy, and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation I have since purchased Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it, when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected of any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbors' experience and profit by his opinions."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Sold by W. & W. pharmacy.
